Anti-ABM Leaders, Senators Disagree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evidence is conflicting, but leaders of a renewed drive to curb the Safeguard ABM system insist they've found a formula to win a Senate majority without incurring undue White House wrath.

The Senate's Republican chieftains disagree.

Mass., say it will provide as much defensive power as the Nixon plan and maintain the momentum President Nixon has said he needs at arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

They find no broad agreement on that point either.

The Brooke plan would, simply put, bar a requested Safeguard expansion to two bases and use the money saved to improve ABM at the two sites authorized last year.

The aim is to stop the geographical expansion of a system some say has built-in technical faults in its present form and will not function adequately under Soviet missile attack.

Two pland rejected by the Senae last Wednesday would either have stopped Safeguard spending altogether—except for research on an improved system—or denied the money to carry out expansion.

Brooke said last week he has evidence from inside the administration and the Pentagon that both could comfortably live with his plan.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., who for more than a week has been saying a vote against Safeguard will be considered a vote against Nixon and his administration, rejected that view:

"The Nixon administration will not accept any amendment that will limit Safeguard, including the Brooke amendment."

As it has been throughout this year's debate, the key to the final Senate decision remains the degree to which an expanded or restricted Safeguard will effect the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Russia.

In other words, is Safeguard the vital "bargaining chip" the President needs to get a meaningful agreement on limiting offensive and defensive nuclear arms?

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., who voted against the previous amendments primarily because of the bargaining-chip argument, said he is co-sponsoring Brooke's plan because he believes it is the solution.

"My consultations with the American delegation in Vienna have led me to conclude that intensified work at the Phase I sites—Malmstrom and Grand Forks air bases—will provide ample momentum to support our negotiators," McIntyre said.

Opponents of any change in Safeguard also used the SALT

Claim Large Victory

SAIGON (AP) — Moving by night, 5,000 South Vietnamese militiamen fell upon a sprawling Viet Cong base area in the enemy-infested jungles south of Da Nang and claimed one of their biggest victoires of the war Saturday.

The militiamen claimed they killed 125 enemy troops, including the regional commander, and captured 25 prisoners in a coordinated series of more than 80 raids centered in the jungled foothills 45 miles south of Da Nang Friday and Saturday.

It was the second major victory this week for the militia in South Vietnam's northern Military Region 1.

It also was a big morale boost for U.S. officers whose Vietnamization strategy rests heavily on the still shaky belief that the militia will be able to help handle enemy forces after the Americans have left.

"I've never experienced anything like this in planning, coordination and spirit," said Lt. Col. M. G. Stafford of Eagle-Pass., Tex., the senior U.S. adviser.

Associated Press correspondent Willis Johnson reported from Da Nang that the operation was masterminded by Col. Hoang Dihn Tho, chief of Quang Tin Province, who wanted to derail an expected enemy offensive in September.

Copying enemy tactics, dozens of raiding parties of 5 to 15 men set out through the jungle on foot Friday at one minute after midnight, guided by Viet Cong defectors to known enemy base camps.

They struck early and "caught the enemy napping," Stafford said.

Unlike most allied operations in Vietnam, the Quang Tin raids relied on surprise rather than fire power to defeat the enemy. The militia called in no U.S. air strikes, and only about 300 of the 5,000 militiamen in the operation were lifted into their target area by helicopter.

In the other major action involving the militia this week, government communiques credited the regional and popular forces with killing 308 enemy troops in four days of fighting along the coastal strip known as the "Street Without Joy" below the demilitarized zone.

Other 1st Infantry Division troops continued to encounter heavy resistance as they tried to break up fortified North Vietnamese positions around Fire Base O'Reilly in the northern mountains between Hue and the Laos border.

Fighting involving American ground troops remained light and scattered.

Warns Of Possible Effects If Cease-Fire Breaks Down

TEL AVIV (AP) — A former chief of Israel's military intelligence predicted Saturday that a breakdown in the Middle East cease-fire would touch off a "very bitter struggle" and an attempt by Egypt to cross the Suez Canal.

The warning came as Jordan accused Israel of trying to torpedo peace efforts by violating the cease-fire and Israel indicated it would not sit down to talks until Egypt pulls back the SAM missiles it reportedly has moved closer to the canal cease-fire line.

Israel should make sure it is ready to deal with any move to cross the canal, said Reserve Gen. Haim Herzog, now a military commentator, in abroadcast over the Israeli state radio.

Herzog declared that Egypt has "no prospects whatsoever even to prepare for such a situation, unless the entire anti-aircraft missile system is advanced so as to be in position to give adequate cover to the planned concentration, crossing the bridgeheads areas."

"From a purely military point of view," he went on, "the question before Israel is clear, once it is clear the cease-fire is merely a cover for military preparations on the other side.

"It is to ensure that any action taken is the right action, of suitable scope, in the right place and at the right time.

Herzog said President Gamal Abdel Nasser has indicated that Cairo's only aim is to thrust across the 103-mile long canal.

It must be obvious that should the cease-fire cease to operate, the next stage will be a very bitter struggle with the central theme an attempt by the Egyptians to cross the canal," he predicted.

Herzog, like several other Israeli leaders, questioned Washington's reaction to Israeli complaints that the Egyptians had brought up Soviet-built missiles into the Suez Canal standstill zone in violation of the week-old cease-fire.

The question, Herzog said, "is whether the desire of U.S. officials to achieve a political success, however short-lived, will blind them to the facts of life when dealing with the Russians, in which they should now be well versed."

Mordechai Gazit, deputy director-general of the Foreign Ministry, said in a radio interview that, in light of "continued Egyptian violations of the cease-fire," Israel is considering easing off on its contacts with the U.N. peace envoy to the Middle East, Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden.

Jarring is in New York trying to get indirect talks under way among Israel, Egypt and Jordan.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats said Saturday that President Nixon's first "inflation alert" had "all the potential for action of a notice from the Weather Bureau saying it rained last Thursday."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The new president of the American Bar Association said Saturday the Nixon Administration may be spared some embarrassment by checking Supreme Court nominees with the ABA.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — California police continued Saturday the hunt for Angela Davis, a former UCLA instructor, sought on warrants charging her with murder and kidnap in connection with a courtroom raid in which a judge and three others died.

The Farmer, A Power To Be Reckoned With

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Rep. John M. Zwach, R-Minn., said today the ability to work together, first shown this summer, indicates the farmer will be a power to be reckoned with in the future.

In an address prepared for the annual convention of the Mid continent and Missouri Farmers Association Zwach referred to the National Farm Coalition and said "the current cooperation among farm groups is one of the greatest things that has happened in agriculture in the past half century."

He told the convention continued cooperation with other farm groups presented the only hope for meaningful farm legislation in the future.

Zwach, a member of the House Agriculture Committee said the composition of the House made it difficult to get farm legislation adopted. Of the 435 members, he said, only 31 are from districts that are 25 per cent or more rural, and 21 states do not have even one congressional district that is at least 15 per cent rural.

Another speaker, Fred V. Heinkel, president of the MFA and chairman of the National Farm Coalition, criticized the farm bill recently passed by the House.

In his prepared speech he said:

"It was the best the House could do after much effort, time spent in conference and considerable compromise on the part of everyone. We hope and believe the Senate will improve it.

"The bill contains so much discretionary authority that if it becomes law, farmers will centerally be at the mercy of the administrators.

"Poor administration could mean the end of the farm programs and the end of a farming career for thousands of farmers. If we finally get a good law and good administration of the law, it can mean greater progress in the 1970s."

He said the unity provided by the National Farm Coalition is the greatest thing for the good of the farmers that farm groups have accomplished in the past 40 years.

The coalition is composed of 32 farm organizations, commodity groups and farmer cooperatives.

"This broad based united was necessary to defeat such unsound proposals as massive land retirement," he said. "This proposal could have wrecked farmers and triggered a depression in all of the towns in rural America."

Nixon Receives Welcome

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — President Nixon personally carried the unsettling message of "desegregate now" to the Democratic heart of the Deep South last week and received the pleasantly unexpected—a clamorous welcome in New Orleans.

Fresh from an arrival by motorcade where he lost both gold cufflinks to the enthusiastic crowd, the Republican chief executive reaffirmed his goal of presiding this fall over the largest dose of desegregation the South has known.

The significance of the President's meeting with leaders of desegregation advisory councils from seven Southern states was less what he said than where he said it.

Nixon was again careful to emphasize that the fall deadline for desegregation of most Southern rural and small-town school districts was more the Supreme Court's than his own; that he counted on local cooperation rather than federal coercion to accomplish the change; that he had no intention of acting punitively toward one region of the Soviet Union Sends Watchdog to Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has sent one of its chief ideological watchdogs to Peking to resume trouble-plagued border talks with the Red Chinese.

He is Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid F. Ilyichev, 64, veteran propagandist and widely traveled diplomat who rose in the Communist party ranks during Nikita S. Khrushchev's foreign policy "thaw."

A brief official announcement of his arrival in the Chinese capital Saturday could be seen two ways-either as a Kremlin move to downgrade its negotiating team or to get the talks off the ground after 10 months of stops, starts and apparent lack of progress.

Ilyichev is one of seven deputies under First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov, who began the talks with the Chinese last October in an effort to resolve longstanding territorial disputes on the borders of Manchuria and the Soviet maritimes.

Kuznetsov broke off negotiations three times to return to Moscow, the last time on July 2. The official news agency Tass said Kuznetsov came home "on the advice of doctors and has resumed his duties of first deputy foreign minister."

It is not known if his ailment was medical or political.

Since the beginning of the year there have been indications that the talks were stalled. When not flying home to Moscow, Kuznetsov was reported cooling his heels in Peking with nothing to do.

Soviet-Chinese polemics have died down in the past three months, however. No major attacks on Peking have appeared in the Soviet press since May, and there have been unconfirmed reports that the Russians and Chinese are ready to exchange ambassadors after four years at the charge d'affaires level.

All this could be aimed at a

Religious Violence Spreading

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — The focus of religious violence in Northern Ireland shifted Saturday from the street battles of Londonderry to the border with the republic of Ireland.

British troops shot a man and his wife at a border checkpoint when their car crashed through three barriers.

Other troops stopped the postmaster general of the Irish republic inside the Northern Ireland border, searched his car, checked his credentials and after an hour turned him back south.

The Irish minister, Joseph Brennan, called the incident—reported to have drawn requests for a protest to the British government in London—"a storm in a teacup."

Brennan said his driver took a wrong turn en route home from a wedding and wound up on a road just inside the border which had been banned to border traffic by the British army.

The border between the Irish republic to the south and Northern Ireland became even more sensitive than normal after the deaths of two Northern Ireland policemen from a parked car booby trapped with a bomb.

In London, Scotland Yard has been raiding to break up units of the Outlawed Irish Republican Army, which has never stopped fighting to switch Northern Ireland from British to Irish control.

Several border roads have been banned to traffic to ease the patrol load on British troops and such roads normally are spiked to prevent IRA terrorists from making getaways across the border.

The Irish postmaster general was found on such a road.

The wounded couple—identified as Michael Stokes and his wife— crashed a checkpoint south of Omagh in County Tyrone. An army spokesman said they were wounded when a soldier fired at their car tires.

Suspect Foul Play In Death of Woman

Mrs. Barbara Jean Galliher, 22, 2404 North Woodlawn, was found dead in the living room of her home Saturday evening, an apparent victim of foul play.

Sedalia police were called to the scene about 6:15 p.m. by Mrs. Galliher's mother-in-law, who discovered the body. She reportedly went to look for Mrs. Galliher after trying to phone her daughter-in-law twice without recieving any answer.

The results of the autopsy were not available at Democrat-Capital presstime, however Sedalia police, The Pettis County Sheriff's Department and other local law enforcement agencies were combining efforts Saturday night to follow several leads discovered in connection with the incident.

Mrs. Galliher's body was found lying face up in the middle of the living room of the home with her clothes partially torn away. The living room of the home looked as if some struggle had taken place, due to the displacement of the living room furnishings.

Mrs. Galliher's body had several marks, identified by Pettis County Coroner Dr. C. Gordon Stauffacher as scratches and bruises during his preliminary investigation at the scene.

The marks on Mrs. Galliher's throat were apparently made with something other than a person's hands, due to the depth of the abrasions to the skin.

Reports at the scene were that Mrs. Galliher had been seen in at least one local store during business hours Saturday morning.

No possible time of death was set by the coroner at the scene due to the condition of the body and prospective results of the immediate autopsy.

Storm Breakup Raises Hopes

SUNNY POINT, N.C. (AP) — The breakup of a budding tropical storm off Florida raised Army hopes Saturday that it can tow its much-disputed nerve gas shipment toward an ocean grave Sunday or Monday.

A decision was to be made late Saturday whether the sea phase of Operation Chase will start Sunday morning. Chase stands for Cut Holes and Sink 'em.

If the go-ahead is given, commercial tugs will begin hauling a rusting Liberty ship laden with 418 concrete vaults of gas to a point 282 miles east of Cape Kennedy, Fla., where it will be sunk Tuesday in 16,000 feet of water.

Navy Capt. A. J. Hamilton, in charge of the sinking operation, had hoped to head for open sea Saturday but had to delay at

Attend Governor's Conference On Environmental Quality

COLUMBIA — Three Sedalia girls are among the 300 youths attending the Governor's Youth Conference on Environmental Quality, which winds up today.

Lucy Tompkin, 1622 West Fifth; Sara Spence, 1507 South Warren, and Kris Eidson, 2601 South Stewart, left Friday to attend the three-day conference. The girls are members of the local ecology group "PEOPLE."

"We have been lucky so far that the pollution problem hasn't affected us much here, but unless we act now our luck will run out," Sara explained.

The girls hoped with the rest of the conference to draw up recommendations and reports to present to Gov. Warren Hearnes today. This action follows many special interest workshops and panel discussions on pollution, conservation, urban environmental problems and population regulation.

"We need to find out what we can do to help legislators pass needed laws to protect the environment," Kris commented.

Sara thinks the hardest part of the environment crusade is getting people involved. "It is extremely hard to get Sedalians to take action of their own. We need to find a way to motivate these people out of their apathy," she said.

"When you consider that the last totally pure air in the United States disappeared seven years ago, then it is hard to ignore the environment problem," observed Lucy.

The girls, students at Smith-Cotton High School, were chosen to represent the local University Extension Center at the conference. They were joined at the session by Bill Young, environmental health agent at the Extension Center.

Today's meeting with the governor began at 9:30 a.m.

There Are Problems In a U.S. Penitentiary

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — Yes, there are problems inside the U.S. Penitentiary.

They are the same problems found in any prison, or for that matter, almost any city in the United States, Warden Robert I. Moseley said in an exclusive interview.

There is a drug problem as evidenced by the recent exposure of an inmate drug ring with nationwide scope and with headquarters inside the walls of the prison.

Liquor, too, poses a problem as do racial tensions and homosexuality.

For the past two weeks the prison has been beset by another kind of problem—an inmate work stoppage. Thursday the administration and inmates agreed to terms for settling the strike and the prison was back to normal.

Terms included no retaliation or punishment for the strikers; release of agitators confined to their cells; formation of an inmate council, elected by prisoners working industries, to meet with the administration at least once a month to settle grievances.

The work stoppage was precipitated by inmate demands, including one for a federal minimum wage of $1.60 an hour. Convicts now receive 17 to 42 cents an hour for a 40-hour week, the amount varying according to the skill.

The convicts are employed under Federal Prison Industries, Inc., created in 1934 to provide work for prisoners in the first major rehabilitation step taken by the Federal Bureau of Prisons. All items manfactured in the prison are used by the government and the armed services.

Profits support all vocational training and educational programs throughout the prison system, provide for meritorious service awards for exceptional work and to provide compensation for inmates injured on the job.

"It is only natural people are not happy to be serving time in prison," the warden said.

"We have had no major violence and no murders inside the prison for several years," he pointed out.

There have been some racial incidents but so far they have been minor, he said. He indicated the problems involved the militant blacks.

In order to combat the flow of narcotics inside the penitentiary two men have been assigned to a full-time team to investigate possible leaks and search for drugs.

Asked about liquor, the warden commented: "Yes, we have a problem." He displayed a store of liquor seized in the shakedowns of cells.

The plastic bag—a boon to the housewife—is a headache for the warden. The inmate bootleggers use the bags to brew their beer and ferment their wine.

Before the plastic bag, the warden said, they had to use bottles which were easier to located.

In a large institution of this kind, the warden said, establishing an open line of communication is one of the hardest things to achieve. Even more difficult is maintaining a continuity of information from the administration to the inmates, Moseley added.

It appears he may be bridging this gap. Friday he received a letter from one of the farm inmates who complimented him on the manner in which he had handled the strike situation. Men at the camp worked as did some of the other inmates. For working, the warden promised them a reward.

He has not told the inmates yet just what the reward will be, but Moseley said he is authorized to allow them extra good time benefits or a small monetary bonus, which he said could amount to $5 or $10.

As for the future, Warden Mosley sees Leavenworth within the next 10 years as a penitentiary housing 1,300 to 1,350 men in the main penitentiary with another 200 or 250 at the farm camp.

Air conditioning will be a way of life, not only in the administration offices but in the cellblocks, kitchens, dining rooms, auditorium and possibly in the factories.

Air conditioning may not involve the expense imagined. It probably would amount only to the cost of the equipment and installation.

U.S. Drive Rooted In Failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' drive to win a cease-fire in the Middle East was rooted in failure and nourished by despair. That it has succeeded so far is a rare and unexpected triumph of persistent diplomacy over deep fears and bitter hatreds matured by 22 years of Arab-Israeli conflict.

But the apparently simple agreement—to stop shooting and start talking—has violently divided the Arab world and split off a party of the ruling coalition in Israel. The danger that the cease-fire may collapse, already great, is likely to grow as the days pass, as the concessions of peace-making are dramatized, and charges of truce violations increase.

American officials foresee at least as much difficulty in preserving the cease-fire as they encountered in negotiating it.

In fact, when the effort was being planned in the spring the chances of success were rated by top Washington policy makers as near zero.

Prolonged attempts at peacemaking, including the year-long joint U.S.-Soviet effort that collapsed in December, had already failed.

But the wreckage of past enterprises, particularly the 1969 series of talks involving four men, held proposals that could be renewed, and to try again and fail was judged by President Nixon and his advisers to be better than to accept failure.

The four key figures in the first Washington-Moscow search for a peace-making formula were Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Asst. Secretary Joseph J. Sisco, and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

The Russians consulted continuously with Arab leaders, particularly President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, and the Americans were in almost continuous consultation with Prime Minister Golda Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel. Cooperation between the White House and the Kremlin fell apart when the Soviets rejected a series of American proposals which Rogers and Sisco thought had been fully agreed upon by Gromyko in their personal talks.

The joint effort never recovered from that blow and the United States was confronted this spring with an escalating Middle Eastern war and increasing pressure from Israel for permission to buy 125 new jet fighters from this country.

It was also confronted with grim warnings from moderate Arab leaders—warnings which Nixon and Rogers took seriously—that a big sale of American planes to Israel would finally wreck U.S. relations with the Arab world.

Behind this immediate danger was the possibility that increasing Soviet involvement in the conflict on the Egyptian side would eventually threaten the existence of Israel and force the United States in on the Israeli side.

That spectre—a possible nuclear power confrontation in the Middle East—remains a major source for the quiet desperation which motivates this country's search for peace in the Middle East.

Beginning in late spring two decisions of great importance to the drive for a cease-fire were developed in the State Department's Near Eastern Bureau, which Sisco heads. Most of this spade work and many of the major ideas of the cease-fire plan were developed in the bureau under the guidance of Sisco and Rogers. After Israel's acceptance of the cease-fire topped off the agreement already received from Egypt and Jordan, Nixon acclaimed the results and observed that "the people in the State Department ought to be very proud of this."

The basic new decision recommended by Rogers and approved by Nixon was that the United States should strike out on its own in search of a peace formula. The next most important decision was that the proposal to be presented to Israel, Egypt and Jordan should be stripped of all detail and stated in the simplest possible form. As Rogers later commented, "It had to be hard for either side to turn down."

The new tactics evolved from a trip Sisco made to the Middle East April 8-24. He decided on the basis of talks with Arab leaders—he also visited Israel—that the U.S. position had been distorted to the Arabs as it filtered through Soviet diplomatic channels. He concluded the United States should speak for itself and he re-opened direct contact with Nasser.

When Nasser accused the United States of being pro-Israeli and anti-Arab, Sisco disagreed, saying this country was trying to stabilize and pacify the Middle East. His challenge to Nasser, as later reported here, was "Test us."

On May 1 Nasser appeared to give Sisco a counter challenge. In a speech appealing to and warning the United States not to sell more jets to Israel, Nasser addressed some of his words directly and by name to President Nixon, and said "in spite of all that has happened, we have not closed the

In Mixon had decided to keep Israel's request for jet fighters in suspension. At the same time, Rogers assured the Israelis that if the balance of power was threatened "the President will not hesitate to reconsider this matter."

By the time Sisco returned to Washington in late April the Russians had gravely threatened if not actually upset the balance. They had installed highly sophisticated anti-aircraft missile batteries in Egypt, and Soviet pilots had begun flying defensive patrols.

Those two developments had been planned earlier in the year when Nasser appealed to Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin for help in defense against deep penetration raids by the Israeli air force, strikes aimed at countering Nasser's strategy of trying to wear down Israel in a war of attrition.

Nixon ordered a full review following Sisco's return. Sisco told newsmen and his colleagues in government, "I accomplished 80 per cent of what I set out to do . . ."

What he had not accomplished was any kind of an agreement for Arab-Israeli peace talks.

As the policy review dragged on through May, it became increasingly apparent that the United States would have to do something about Israel's request for planes. It was equally apparent that an open announcement would cause enormous damage to American relations with the Arab countries including the non-belligerent oil-producing states.

Nasser's May Day speech, with its direct appeal to Nixon, was seen as a possible plus element in an otherwise apparently hopeless situation. Then, on May 26, Mrs. Meir told Parliament that Israel was ready to accept the U.N. Security Council resolution of November 1967. It meant Israeli acceptance of the principle of withdrawal from occupied territories, a major Arab demand.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the first peacetime draft on Sept. 16, 1940.

Al-Anon Can Offer Help For Families

Dear Ann Landers: Me — writing to you. I can't believe it. But I have something to say — in fact I want to shout it to the world.

A wonderful thing has happened. My husband has stopped drinking. He might have experienced this miracle ten years ago if I hadn't been ashamed to admit I was married to an alcoholic. I guess I had to wait until things got so bad I was willing to do anything. Well, they got that bad four months ago. I took a friend's advice and attended my first meeting of Al-Anon.

What great people I met at that meeting! They never push themselves. They just let you know they are available if you need them.

I learned how to handle my shame and anxiety over my husband's drinking. I learned why people drink too much and what members of the family can do to help them. When I became better informed and able to cope with the problem of living with an alcoholic, my husband announced he was ready to go to an A.A. meeting.

And this is where the miracle happened.

Tell your readers, Ann, if they have this booze trouble in their lives, to run, not walk, to the nearest telephone. If Al-Anon isn't listed, call the police station and ask where the nearest chapter is. The next step is to go there. It's worth the trouble. — Edmonton, Canada

Dear Ed: Thanks for your letter. Anyone who wants information about Al-Anon should write to the National Headquarters in New York. The address is: Al-Anon, Family Group Headquarters, Inc., P. O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, New York 10010.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to Stunned In Stamford was good — as far as you went — but you didn't go far enough.

After several months of intensive counseling I now know a domineering mother can make an adulterer out of her son. A mama's boy cannot relate properly to his wife because she is a respectable woman and an extension of Mom. Such a husband is constantly dragging women to bed, trying to prove himself. Sex with his wife does nothing for him because it is legal and therefore respectable.

When these little boys learn to let go of their mothers they develop a better relationship with their wives and cut out the bed-hopping. I know because I did it. — Tyler, Texas

Dear Tex: There are almost as many reasons for bed-hopping as there are beds. Thanks fo· your theory. I'll run it up the flagpole and see if anybody salutes.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago the husband of a close friend made a pass at me. I was dumbfounded by the openness of his approach and the vulgarity of his language.

Now I am repulsed by the sight of him and have said no to all his wife's dinner invitations and suggestions that the four of us have another weekend trip together. She cannot understand it and neither can my husband. Shall I tell them both why I don't want to be in the man's company? I'm beginning to look like the villainess and this is unfair to me. Please advice. — Panic Button

Dear Pan: Say nothing. See the woman during the day and tell your husband you no longer enjoy them as a couple. No details are necessary.

Disaster Aid Asked In Kansas

TOPEKA (AP) — A request that 43 Kansas counties be declared drought disaster areas was made Friday by the Kansas Disaster Committee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The Committee asked that Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin allow ranchers and farmers in the counties to graze their cattle and take hay on lands and diverted from wheat and feed grain planting under the cropland adjustment program.

"This action is taken because the severe drought conditions have created a shortage of livestock feed, and release of the diverted areas is needed to help alleviate extreme hardship to farmers maintaining their livestock," Gov. Robert Docking said in a wire to Hardin.

The counties for which the action was sought are Allen, Anderson, Atchison, Barbour, Bourborn, Coffey, Comanche, Doniphan, Douglas, Franklin, Harper, Harvey, Jackson, Jefferson, Jewell, Johnson, Kiowa, Labette, Leavenworth, Linn, Lyon, Marshall, Meade, Miami, Mitchell, Morris, Morton, Neosho, Osage, Osborne, Pratt, Rice, Reno, Riley, Rooks, Seward, Smith, Stafford, Stevens, Wabaunsee, Washington, Wilson and Wyandotte.

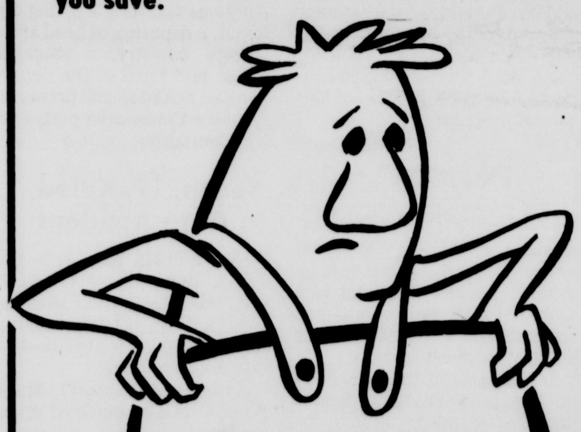

Annatto, a dyestuff, is used to color butter, usually.

Czechs Jail An American For 'Spying'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young American formerly employed by Radio Free Europe has been jailed in Czechoslovakia on suspicion of spying, the State Department says.

It said Friday that the Czech foreign ministry had informed the United States Aug. 6 of the arrest three days earlier of Fred H. Eidlin, 27, of Rochester, N.Y. It said Eidlin had entered Czechoslovakia July 25 and there were indications the actual date of his arrest may have been any time after that.

U.S. Embassy officials in Prague have not been allowed to talk to Eidlin. "We are concerned about this continued failure of Czech authorities to grant prompt access," said State Department Press Officer Robert McCloskey in a news conference.

In Rochester Eidlin's father, Ephraim, said, "I am shocked." He said he had last heard from his bachelor son Aug. 2 when he received a postcard mailed from Czechoslovakia. He said young Eidlin had been touring Europe.

Prisoner Exchange Possible

MONTEVIDEO (AP(— Uruguay's government sought Saturday a special meeting of the Organization of American States (OAS) to endorse its refusal to release political prisoners in exchange for a Brizilian diplomat and a U.S. agronomist kidnaped by leftist guerrillas.

The government has refused to deal with the Tupamaros guerrillas, who carried out one of their threats Monday by killing a U.S. police adviser they had abducted 11 days earlier.

Persons claiming to be Tupamaros left a message in Porto Alegre, Brazil, saying that kidnaped Brazilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide would be killed within 72 hours unless Uruguay released 183 political prisoners. Radio reports said Brazil police were studying the message to determine its authenticity. Porto Alegre is 200 miles north of the Brazil-Uruguay border.

Earlier Tupamaros communiques demanded that Uruguay free all political prisoners, estimated to number about 250.

The government said it would not and a Foreign Ministery spokesman said Uruguay has asked the OAS to convene this week to adopt a common policy opposing kidnapings of diplomats.

Uruguay wants the policy to be refusal to negotiate with left wing terrorists who have kidnaped diplomats with increasing frequency in Latin America since 1968. A similar proposal was rejected at a recent OAS meeting in Washington.

More than 12,000 soldiers and police continued their house-by-house hunt for Dias Gomide, 41, and Claude L. Fly, 65, a U.S. agriculture expert working for the agriculture ministry.

Warns

In its latest charge, filed Friday with the U.N. truce superviser in Jerusalem, Israel accused Egypt of emplacing an additional missile battery and resuming work on incomplete and empty missile sites.

Israeli officials have said they hold Washington responsible for seeing to it that the Egyptians honor the truce and pull back their missiles.

Burial was in the Memorial Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Katie Grabau

COLE CAMP — Funeral services for Mrs. Katie Grabau, 88, who died Friday at the Good Samaritan Nursing Home, will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at St. Paul's Lutheran, with the Rev. Arlyn Saathoff officiating.

Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery.

The body is at the Fox Funeral Home.

Mrs. Pauline Neece

SAUGUS, Calif. — Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Neece, 76, a former Sedalian, who died here Wednesday in Holy Cross Hospital, were held at noon Saturday at the Kingley and Gates Funeral Home.

Burial was in Eternal Valley Cemetery, Newhall, Calif.

Funeral Services

Mrs. Ruth Rasa

Funeral services for Mrs. Ruth Rasa, 60, 215 East Saline, who died at the Bothwell Hospital Thursday, were held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 3:00 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. James W. Kalthoff, pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church, officiated.

Mrs. Kenneth Schreiner and Mrs. Harold Bergmann sang, "Rock of Ages" and "Just As I Am" accompanied by Miss Mildred Backman at the organ.

Pallbearers were Robert Paul, Joe Stout, Roy Ford,

Mail Rates Adjusted

The mail subscription rate of The Sedalia Democrat, or Capital, daily and Sunday, in Pettis, Benton, Camden, Cooper, Henry, Hickory, Johnson, Lafayette, Moniteau, Morgan and Saline Counties, will be $15 per year effective Sept. 1. Mail subscriptions outside of these counties will be $24 per year.

The adjustment, the first in nearly four years for mail subscribers, is being made to help offset three straight years of second class mail rate increases, and higher newsprint and production costs, according to K. U. Love, publisher and general manager.

Current mail rates will be in effect through Aug. 31.

Fires In The City

Sedalia firemen were called to 19th and Montgomery at 3:40 p.m. Friday to extinguish a burning tree stump.

The cause was undetermined and no damage was reported.

Sedalia firemen responded to a call at 5:49 p.m. to go to Fourth and Osage where a 1962 Mercury, owned by Phil Hilderbrant, was reportedly burning. Damage was slight.

Summer College For Defense, Criminal Lawyers

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP)— A resolution to establish a national summer college for defense criminal lawyers has been passed by about 300 delegates attending the defense attorney's annual convention at the Lake of the Ozarks.

"The intent of this 8-12 week college is to train lawyers in criminal law and to give them the same type training that judges and district attorneys get," said Morris Shenker, a nationally-known trial lawyer from St. Louis.

Shenker said he had been appointed to head a committee which will report after Labor Day on the college and how it should be funded.

"Our object will be to work out an arrangement with an established law school, preferably centrally located, so all lawyers in the country can be attracted to the school."

Accidents

One person was taken to Bothwell Hospital following a motorcycle-truck accident at 4:30 p.m. Friday on West Highway 50 at the Howard's quarry turn-off.

First Lt. Eugene Edard Fuhrman, 26, Whiteman Air Force Base, the operator of a 1967 Honda motorcycle, was treated for severe lacerations to his right foot, right arm and back. He was later transfered to the Whiteman hospital.

Fuhrman was passing a series of cars and failed to see the turn signal of a Howard's dump truck, driven by William M. Burns, 36, 1210 East 10th. He struck the left front of the truck and was thrown approximately 100 feet.

Damage to the motorcycle was extensive. Fuhrman was issued a summons for careless and imprudent driving.

Police Report

John Harvey, owner of Harvey Brothers Implement Co., 305 West Main, reported to police someone broke into his business sometime Thursday night by sliding a thin object through the back door and lifting the bar across the door.

Nineteen dollars in dollar bills and change was reported missing.

John T. McMeekin, Warrensburg, reported to police that $285 worth of clothes were taken from his automobile sometime Friday night.

The car was parked in the Bothwell Hotel parking lot.

William J. Jarnett, 901 South Quincy, reported to police that sometone threw a beer bottle through the rear window of his 1966 Buick sometime Friday night while it was parked in front of his house.

Robert Fingland, owner of the Fingland Glass Co., 208 West Second, reported to police that the rear overhead door of his shop was damaged and a crate of windshields were broken sometime Friday night.

According to police reports, a cream-colored car apparently backed into the door, with the impact knocking over the crate of windshields.

Total damage was listed at $450.

Lorraine Bird, 117 South Grand, reported to police that someone tampered with the electrical system of her car sometime Saturday morning.

The car was parked in Bothwell Hospital's west parking lot.

negotiations as a bargaining point, covertly circulating just before last Wednesday's crucial vote a communication—purportedly from Gerard Smith, chief U.S. negotiator at Vienna—stating Safeguard is indeed as vital to his success.

Democratic leaders roundly scored that move, saying that if such a letter existed, it should be placed on the table for all to see and discuss.

McIntyre and Brooke forces contend that if the SALT talks fails, the United Sates will be in a better defensive posture with an amplified and enforced first-phase Safeguard than an expanded system offering thinner defenses.

The essential justification for Safeguard has been the defense of the nation's fleet of retaliatory Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles aimed at Soviet targets. To defend Minutemen adequately, the reasoning goes, is to preserve the U.S. deterrant, the quick-draw six gun that will persuade the other fellow not to shoot first.

Accusation Draws Quick Rebuttal

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. John Bell Williams accused the President's Commission on Campus Unrest of bias and drew a quick rebuttal Saturday from commission member Joseph Rhodes Jr.

Williams said the commission conducted a "pointedly biased inquisition" as it probed the deaths of the Negro youths. Killed in a barrage of police gunfire during disorders last May at Jackson State College.

Countered Rhodes: "The governor's statement reflects the fact that the commission saw through the many mists of Mississippi and saw the reality of Mississippi."

When the commission adjourned Thursday after three days of hearings, several members of the panel, including chairman William Scranton, former Pennsylvania governor, issued statements critical of Mississippi law enforcement officials and the state's racial attitudes. Scranton was unavailable for comment on Williams' charge.

Williams, in a telegram to President Nixon asked that the commission be dissolved. He said the panel put on trial "duly constituted law enforcement authorities of the state of Mississippi and deliberately sought to create racial strife, animosity, and to encourage violence among our people."

The commission was appointed by Nixon in the wake of disorders that broke out after the President ordered troops into Cambodia.

In addition to Jackson, it has held hearings in Washington and Santa Barbara, Calif., and will meet this week in Kent, Ohio, where four students were killed in a confrontation with National Guardsmen on the campus of Kent State University.

Reached at Cambridge and asked about Williams' comments, Rhodes said, "The fact is he's worried...and he should responsible."

Rhodes, a Negro, is a fellow at Harvard and the only student member of the commission. His appointment drew criticism from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew who accused him of having prejudged the situation.

He is directly and personally responsible."

country.

But in choosing a Southern forum, the President for the first time enlisted the personal and institutional power of his office in the desegregation drive.

Nixon personally had come into the home ground of figures involved in desegregation to discuss the issue with them. Previously, the matter largely had been left to the departments of Justice and Health, Education and Welfare, with the White House acting as something of a distant referee.

And Nixon added a rarely sounded moral note to his usual lawyer-like arguments for desegregation. Southern children of both races will be most harmed if things go badly this fall, he said.

least 24 hours because of the tropical depression.

The storm failed to intensify as expected and started breaking up Saturday.

"Conditions are improving," Hamilton said. "We're sending out reconnaissance planes to check the disposal area. The only problem could be high waves created by the depression."

Asked whether pending court action in Washington would affect the departure, Hamilton replied, "the court situation is being handled at a much higher level."

He said, in reply to another question, that authorities in Washington might be "considering the possibility of changing the dumping site, but I can't say."

In rejecting a petition to halt the gas disposal, a U.S. district judge in Washington Friday urgently requested that a shallower dumping site be found.

Judge Green accepted the Army's contention that the delay might be harmful to humans because the gas may already be leaking inside some of the steel and concrete coffins.

But she said she had "serious misgivings about the site of the proposed dumping." She said shallow water would lessen the danger that water pressure would collapse the vaults and release the gas all at once.

resumption of serious border negotiations, although Tass made no reference as to when this might be.

Ilyichev, deputy foreign minister since 1962, was acted the rank of envoy extraordinary and plenipotentiary in 1965. His first experience in bargaining with the Chinese was in 1963, when he went to Peking with a Soviet Communist party delegation to try to mend ideological differences.

Beginning his career as a political "agitator" in factories and later as a political science professor, Ilyichev rose under Joseph Stalin to become editor-in-chief of the party's leading propaganda organs—the government newspaper Izvestia and the Communist party paper Pravda.

In the Khrushchev era, Ilyichev was variously a roving diplomat, a department head at the foreign ministry, a magazine editor and head of the department of agitation and propaganda of the Communist party Central Committee.

Youth, 19, Killed In Auto Accident

ST. PETERS, Mo. (AP)—Donald J. Baty, 19, of Overland, Mo., was killed Friday when his auto left St. Charles County Route C and landed upside down in a drainage ditch.

A passenger, Donald L. Stock, 17, of Overland, suffered minor injuries.

Warrants Charge Murder

SAN RAFAEL, Calif.(AP) — Black militant Angela Davis, avowed Communist and former university instructor, was sought Saturday on warrants charging murder and kidnap in the Aug. 7 shootout that killed a judge and three others.

Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales said he issued an all-points bulletin for Miss Davis after heavily armed police officers failed to find her in a raid late Friday on a San Francisco home.

Miss Davis, 26, identified by police and news media as the purchaser of three guns used in the courthouse kidnapings, was charged with one count of murder in the judge's death and five counts of kidnap, Bales said.

Similarly charged was Ruchell Magee, 31, San Quentin convict who was wounded in the shootout.

Bales said Miss Davis was charged under California law holding that anyone who aids or abets in a major crime is equally guilty with the direct participants.

Warrants against Miss Davis were issued on the eve of a funeral in Oakland Saturday for Jonathan Jackson, 17. Police say he smuggled weapons into a Marin County courtroom for the attempted escape of three San Quentin convicts.

Jackson and two of three convicts to whom he gave arms were killed as they tried to drive away in a van. Inside the van, Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, 65, one of five hostages, was shot to death.

Two San Quentin convicts—James D. McClain, 37, and William Christmas, 27—also were killed.

Bales said investigators had "a number of leads" on Miss Davis' whereabouts.

In Friday night's raid, police found her sister, Fania Jordan of Los Angeles, but released her after questioning.

Bales said he understood four guns were brought into the courtroom by Jackson.

At least two were purchased by Miss Davis, the office of California Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch said Wednesday.

Lynch said Miss Davis bought a Browning .380 automatic pistol on Jan. 12, 1968, and a .30-caliber Plainfield rifle, M1A1, carbine on April 7, 1969, from Los Angeles stores.

Annual Officer Election

Pettis County Republicans will hold their annual committee officers election at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Circuit courtroom, reports Leroy Iuchs, county GOP chairman.

Up for election are chairman, vice-chairman, presently Mrs. Paul Steinkuhler, LaMonte; secretary, presently Mrs. Thelma Kraft, Hughesville, and treasurer, presently Everett Stumpf, 611 West 32nd.

County Democrats hold their election the same day in the same place, but four hours earlier at 10 a.m.

EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE THEIR PERSONAL PHARMACY
There are important reasons why the American Medical Association suggests that you have one personal pharmacy from which you obtain all the medicines and health aids needed by your family.
When one pharmacy fills all your prescriptions, the record file contains all the information needed for the pharmacist to help protect you. Some people are allergic to certain drugs. Others may be getting prescriptions from more than one Doctor and the medicines could conflict with each other. We hope that you will choose us to be the personal pharmacy for your family.
YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine and we will gladly deliver it without charge. If you prefer you may pick it up at our drive up window. We keep accurate records for tax and insurance purposes. We carefully fill welfare prescriptions and deliver or mail free of charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. Question
Essentially the Federal Government is underwriting hospitalization and some phases of medical care for the elderly. Do you think this will be expanded to include burial expenses?
Answer
Although possible it is improbable any Federal government Social Welfare program will expand into burial insurance. At the present and in the forseeable future it appears private life insurance companies are capable of meeting these needs without governmental assistance.
The cost of funeral services has advanced at a rate considerably below that of all other goods and services. At our funeral home we have several complete funeral services under $800.00. The reasonableness of our funeral costs with the efficiency of private insurance companies brings the cost of a funeral in Sedalia within the scope of everyone.

Not Camera Shy

This Snow Goose at Houston's Herman Park was a little coy when the photographer approached ready to "click the quack." It shied from having its picture taken so the lensman tried a little strategem. Leaving one of his cameras on the shore, he retired and the curious goose fell for the snow job. (UPI)

Says Forced Integration Hasn't Hampered Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, the only Southerner in the Nixon Cabinet, says administration action to enforce school desegregation hasn't hurt the President's popularity in the South.

"There is great enthusiasm in the South for the Nixon administration," Blount said in an interview.

Even though desegregation is "a difficult issue for people in the South," polls show Nixon's popularity is high in the area, the postmaster general said.

He contended the favorable image has resulted, not from a deliberate attempt to woo the South, but an "even handed" approach to problems in both the North and the South.

"I don't believe treating all parts of the country the same is what you could call a Southern strategy," Blount said. "That is what I would call a national strategy."

Nixon has denied there is a Southern Strategy.

Blount, a member of the cabinet committee set up under Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to sell holdout Southern districts on voluntary desegregation, said he feared no political repercussions from acting to end dual school systems for blacks and whites.

He brushed aside criticism from civil rights groups that contend the administration is doing too little to insure that segregation will be ended when schools open across the South this fall.

"It's awfully easy, in a situation like this, for people who know nothing about the problems to take a position and do a lot of talking," Blount said.

"There are great changes going on in the South," he said. "The administration position is one of being helpful. I don't think it helps any if you assume their intention is to be disruptive."

Blount said most Southern school officials are living up to agreements to desegregate their districts. In those that do not, he said, "we are going to have to see that the job is carried out."

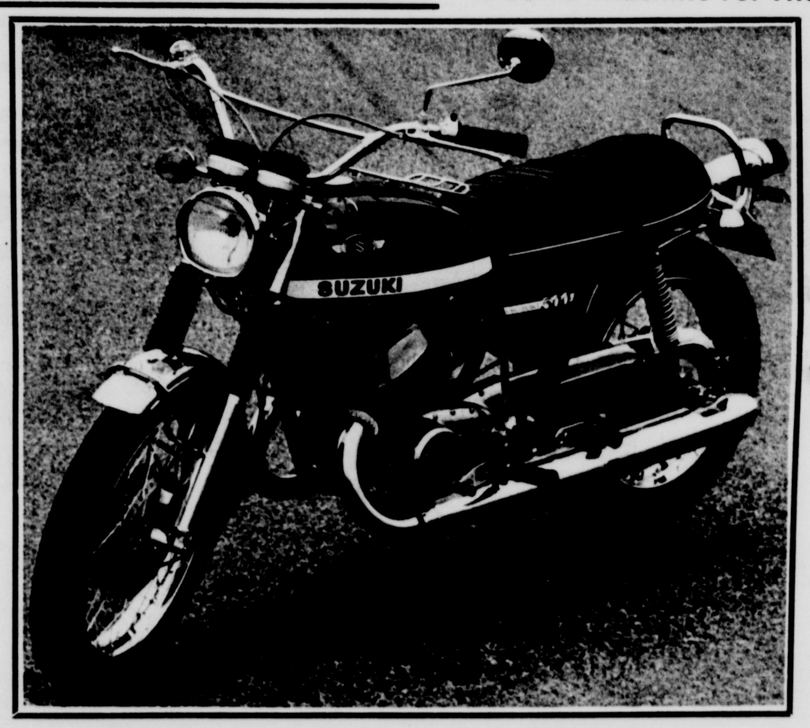

In most cases, enforcement can be carried out by federal personnel already in the area, such as U.S. attorneys, U.S. marshals and resident employes of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Blount said.

Cross' Inscription

The initials INRI seen at the top of the cross in pictures of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ is taken from the Latin words which Pontius Pilate ordered inscribed on the cross: "Iesus Nazarenus Rex Iudaeorum" (Jesus of Nazareth, the king of the Jews) as recorded in the Book of John.

Israel's Defenders Are True Veterans

Haga Squad

The men of Israel's Haga, the civil defense, are the heroes of the war against terrorism in the cities. They are also a "disaster unit," and in the photo they are wearing fire helmets as they wait to begin a fire-fighting training session near Tel Aviv. Usually they are recognized by their more familiar green berets as they patrol streets and buildings on the lookout for trouble. (AP)

EDITOR'S NOTE—Some Israeli men have served through three wars and then continued as army reservists. But they didn't stop their military service there. At 50 or 55 years of age, some are members of the Haga, Israel's civil defense.

By MICHAEL GROSS
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Wearing pale green berets covering receding hairlines, the middle-aged men of Haga—Israel's civil defense—are not very impressive to the eye.

But behind the exterior of rumpled khaki uniforms, Haga veterans are winning the war against terrorism in Israel's cities.

The "orphan" of Israel's military establishment, Haga came into its own when a rash of Arab terrorist bombings rocked Israeli cities less than a year after the 1967 Middle East war.

To combat such attacks against markets, theaters and private homes, the military swelled the ranks of Haga, then a disaster unit, and turned the Haga guards out on the streets.

Mixed Haga and police patrols took up posts at roadblocks along major highways, stopping and searching suspicious vehicles.

The green beret has become a familiar sight at the entrance to movie theaters, where parcels and bags are often checked, in the teeming Arab and Jewish markets, and outside buildings after dark.

Haga's chief, a tall, former combat commander, admits that the patrols of middle-aged soldiers aren't an end to terrorism, "but a saboteur will think twice before he tries to plant a bomb under the noses of our men."

Col. Shlomo Imbar maintains that "Haga has paid for itself in protection."

Indeed, the number of serious terrorist bombings in Israeli cities has fallen from more than a dozen major blasts in 1969, to only one in the first half of 1970.

Moreover, Haga guards, most of them former combat soldiers, have been responsible for preventing a number of near disasters by locating ticking explosives and quickly calling in police and army sappers.

"Our main job is to save lives," Imbar says.

Pulled out of all branches of the military reserve when they reach the age of 45, Haga men also train in 10-man teams to fight fires and serve as rescue squads in case of calamities.

First-aid and gas warfare detection courses are also required for Haga men during their week to 10 days of yearly training. They are required to serve another three weeks annually.

Like the regular army reserves, they receive time off from their employers.

The men are paid up to $410, according to their regular monthly salaries, by the government.

House Panel OK's Bill On Drug Searches

WASHINGTON (AP) — A narcotics control bill allowing police under some conditions to break into homes without warning has been approved by the House Commerce Committee.

The idea of the no-knock provision is to prevent destruction of evidence.

The bill lowers penalties for drug possession, provides for rehabilitation of addicts and drug research, and generally parallels proposals made by the Nixon administration. It would cost about $400 million.

The measure applies to barbiturates, amphetamines, tranquilizers, marijuana and the hallucinogens, such as LSD. It also seeks to control imports and exports of hard narcotics.

FDA Sets Cyclamate Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — All foods containing cyclamates must be taken off the market by Sept. 1, the Food and Drug Administration has ordered in accepting a report the artificial sweetener could cause cancer.

The deadline is the same date by which all soft drinks containing cyclamates must be removed from grocery shelves under a previous FDA order.

The National Canners Association immediately attacked the order issued Friday. The group estimated the ruling will cost the industry $30 million to $35 million, in addition to the cost of disposing of present stocks.

"We are troubled that in a hungry world such destruction is necessary under the FDA's new ruling," the association said in a statement.

A seven-member medical group advising FDA said use of cyclamates—even in sugar-free diet foods at previously permitted levels—could allow young diabetics to consume amounts which caused bladder cancer in experimental animals.

The panel concluded that a safe-level consumption of the sweetener would replace only 21 calories worth of sugar. "It is evident that the ... saving is not substantial and that the benefit as a sweetener has virtually disappeared," the report stated.

The group said cyclamates could be a factor in heart disease by breaking down the heart muscle through calcium deposits.

The FDA originally set Feb. 1 as the deadline for banning cyclamates from soft drinks, while allowing use of the sweetener in dietetic foods which were labeled as drugs.

Holbrook Is Studying a Senate Part

The Senators

Actor Hal Holbrook, with his firm jaw and lightly graying hair, fits right in with real-life senators. In the course of preparing for his new television role as a senator he talked with such law-makers as James B. Pearson, R-Kan., left, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., second from left, and Sen. Charles Mathias Jr., R-Md., right. Holbrook is second from right. (AP)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Hal Holbrook played Mark Twain on Broadway and on television, he had so mastered the look, the mannerisms, the gestures, the delivery, that it would have been hard to say where Twain ended and Holbrook began.

Now he is applying that same depth of study to his new role as the senator on NBC's "The Bold Ones."

Of course, every senator is different, yet there are common characteristics, and Holbrook made three trips to Washington with his antennae extended to discover what they are. He became as inveterate a Senate-watcher as any newsman and dogged the tracks of some well-known senators from breakfast to nightfall.

"I approached it very cautiously. I didn't want to get in their way," Holbrook said. "I thought they would think, here's an actor—in a tv series! We'll keep him amused.

"But it wasn't that way. They were vitally interested and Birch Bayh wanted to know if we were going to get into some of the controversial problems. He didn't want to warn us about it—he wanted us to do it."

On his first trip to Washington from his home in New York, he followed Bayh, an Indiana Democrat, and had a number of talks with him. In subsequent trips he met with Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., Sen. Charles Mathias Jr., R-Md., and James B. Pearson, R-Kan.

At the reception following the swearing in of Harry A. Blackmun as associate justice of the Supreme Court, he talked briefly with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I made these contacts through friends, mostly newspaper people," he said. "I talked to a number of newsmen who are terribly informed about Washington."

Holbrook said he sat down for an off-the-record talk with Pearson in his office one day. He said. "I got a really candid, helpful discussion of man in that position, what influences your vote, the feelings about what compromises you have to make, your dealings with your constituents.

"The main thing is you have to do you homework, which is one reason why the administrative staff is so important. The workload is fantastic. The only time you see other senators is on the floor. You can't sit down and chat and pick brains anymore."

Holbrook, with his firm jaw, confident manner and lightly graying hair, could pass for a real-life senator himself. In fact, in Washington his face was just familiar enough that some tourists thought he was.

Optometrist Group Reins Go to Marsh

JEFFERSON CITY — Lt. Col. (Ret.) Robert E. Marsh has been appointed executive director of the Missouri Optometric Association here.

Lt. Col. Marsh

Marsh was deputy base commander at Whiteman Air Force Base prior to his recent retirement from the Air Force. Marsh, well-known in the Sedalia area, had been stationed at Whiteman since 1963.

The new director will be responsible for conducting the business of the M.O.A. throughout the state, primarily from the central office here. A total of 290 Missouri optometrists hold membership in the organization.

Marsh's wife, Eileen, was manager of the Whiteman Air Force Base Credit Union.

Feather-Eating Birds

The grebes, aquatic birds notable for their agility in water, eat feathers. As a general rule, more than 50 per cent of the contents of a grebe's stomach consists of masses of feathers.

A Disciple of Reaction

When a person demonstrates a tendency to support what others may consider an outmoded political or social condition, policy or form of government he is described as a "reactionary." It's a tattered word in the lexicon of Russian and Chinese communist propaganda aimed at those opposing them.

In subtle sense a young woman, Patricia Young, used the word in a letter to the editor of the Nashville Banner. Recently a copy of it came to hand. She proclaims, "I Am a Reactionary!" In the kind of mood many Central Missourians have these days she goes on to explain:

"Just for the record and without apology— I AM A REACTIONARY! I react to sin and sadism, riots and revolution: gutlessness and Godlessness! I react to Hedonism and humanism; to philosophies and sophistries which seek to destroy those values which made this country great and which fashioned the fabric of civilized mankind.

"I react to dancing the permissive polka with those who would whirl me all the way to Hell while whispering that God is Dead and the Devil a myth; to those ministers who would convert my house of worship into a hootenany hall or political forum.

"I react to the emasculation of my Faith in the name of humanistic togetherness; to my love for the Holy Bible, my lovalty to the flag and my esteem for the police.

"I react to being scourged with the lash of collective guilt—as if I personally poured liquor down the alcoholic's throat, peddled the heroin, mugged the little old lady, created the slum and invented the Bomb!

I react to the glorification of welfarism over work; pot over pink lemonade; the pill over purity; demonstration over dedication; desire over discipline; nilhilism over nobility; selfishness over sacrifice; hauteur over humility; "rights" over right.

"I react to the portrayal of my friends as "facist beasts" and Ho Chi Minh as Santa Claus; to those who consider love as nothing more than the sex act; who preach "peace" to promote surrender. I react to student radicals who are so enamoured of their own worth that they must destroy all other worths—who are FOR nothing except their "right" to be against everything!

"I react to the stupifying sentimentality of amateur do-gooders who, like carved wooden monkeys, see no evil, speak no evil and hear no evil—even when it runs riot with a shotgun, molotov cocktail or plastic bomb; who would re-write Little Red Riding Hood to have her 'rehabilitate" the wolf while screaming "hatemonger" at the rescuing woodsman.'

"You'd better believe I am a Reactionary. In my book, it's time all responsible adults began reacting instead of suffering the insults, inconveniences and intimidations of a noisy minority who would sacrifice their own freedom and ours on the altar of atheistic materialism. When they do react, the kooks and creeps will soon crawl back under their rocks and abandon their communes while this tired old world binds its wounds and regains its sense of humor."

"Who Invited Him?"

Ice Cream Socials

It is time for ice cream socials
When the weather's plenty hot,
And even though we need the rain,
On those nights we'd rather not,
When the women bake their cakes,
One — or maybe two or three,
For some always have the feeling
That they may run out — you see,
There are tempting chocolate frosting
Or carmel, pink or white,
And the cake that is beneath them
Is always nice and light;
The men who dip the ice cream
Have a great big job to do,
But they smile and ask: "What kind?"
And "One scoop or two?"
It's a way of making money
And it's always lots of fun,
It's a place you can depend on
To meet just everyone,
Your neighbors and your friends,
Folks you don't even know,
And just before election
It's where politicians go,
A favorite way of money making
Since generations now long past
With all the world's changes
Still the ice cream social lasts,
They have been held in halls
That were lighted then by gas,
In church basements or in schools
Or with tables on the grass
Where strings of colorful lanterns
Glowed with their candlelight
Or later, electric bulbs
Made gay the festive night,
Oh, they are a lot of work
But from spring until fall
Ice cream socials, it seems,
Still appeal to one and all.

Eskaton: Surging Christianity

By DAVID POLING
(First of Three Related Columns.)

OAKLAND, CALIF., (NEA)

Everyone agrees the institutional church is tired, the clergy anxious and the laity uneasy. Political unheaval, social change and international conflicts have seasoned this land with unrest that borders on panic. College educators talk about putting in for combat pay. Politicians of all brands look anxiously at fall elections and yearn for the days of party regularity. Rock festivals jar entire communities. It is a distressing time.

And right in the middle of this ferment appears Eskaton.

ESKATON

Here is a group of Christian ministers and laymen who wanted to move faster in the field of human concern than was normal for organized religion.

Several years ago a group of them, no more than eight or 10, decided to incorporate as a nonprofit, charitable corporation that would undertake experimental projects in Christian education. This small group had found real success in some of its summer conferences in northern California. Retreats and theological bull sessions followed, as did a close fellowship that shared a "world-view" that became the driving force of Eskaton. What emerged is rather astounding.

In slightly more than three years of full-time operation, Eskaton has a headquarters in Oakland, Calif., where 18 salaried aides handle a $10-million budget that includes four hospitals, two low-cost housing projects and an educational-medical facility in Baja California, Mexico.

Eskaton is headed by the Rev. Josh Wilson, a minister in the Disciples of Christ denomination and the main force behind the rise of this unusual organization. Wilson spent more than a decade in Christian education projects, his most successful being the Faith and Life Institute aimed at young people from northern California churches. One discovery from these programs was the fact that a youngster could learn a year's worth of Christian education in three weeks time! The courses were exciting, high-powered and life-changing.

The early shapers of Eskaton hoped to develop an educational facility to advance this work with young people in the churches, but their major opportunity began in the field of health care—the purchase and operation of the American River Hospital in Sacramento in 1968.

Housing, health care and education—these are the three major areas of activity for Eskaton. Wilson believes that Western society will spend more and more time, money and energy in these categories of existence. Since the organized church is floundering around, unwilling or unable to expand in these fields, Eskaton is rapidly developing leadership and resources to fill the vacuum. As president of the corporation, Wilson has brought together a young staff that shares his vision and matches his enthusiasm.

Eskaton is a Greek word (eschaton) meaning "the last days" or "the last times." Josh Wilson and Co. believe we are in the fulfillment of prophecy—the end of an age is upon us. For many, this is frightening. For Eskaton, the celebration can now begin.

(The Reverend Poling is president of the Christian Herald Assn.)

The expert doesn't hold any better cards than the average player. He simply gets more value out of his.

Today's hand was played almost 40 years ago by the late George Reith, one of the old guard of auction players who carried enough skill over to contract so that he won the first contract tournament ever played. He also started his young partner, Oswald Jacoby, on a long bridge career.

This hand was played in a rubber bridge game at the old Knickerbocker Whist Club, which George was president of for many years.

His bidding was not scientific by modern standards and he was rather disappointed at what he found in dummy. It looked as if he would have to lose a trump and a club.

Then George found a way to make one loser disappear against reasonable suit breaks. Instead of discarding a club on the ace of spades, George played low from dummy and ruffed in his own hand. Then he cashed the ace of hearts and ace and king of diamonds.

Now he entered dummy with the king of trumps and played that ace of spades. Once more, he didn't discard a losing club. He tossed away his queen of diamonds.

Then he played the jack of diamonds and threw away a club. Since no one ruffed that, he continued with his 10 of diamonds to discard his last club loser and conceded a trick to the remaining trump.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Lenore Sullivan (D-Mo.) chose to be in St. Louis on the historic day when the House passed the constitutional amendment giving women equal rights under the law.

Rep. Patsy Mink (D-Hawaii) did not join her sister colleagues in sponsoring the resolution, but she did add her vote in the House which resulted in a 346-15 victory.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is eager for judiciary reform. "The days of apathy are past and I intend to be neither timid nor apathetic," he told the American Bar Association in St. Louis when speaking about the judiciary's need for more money and better management.

The Chief Justice also defended the Supreme Court's three months' summer vacation by admitting that the justices did a lot of homework when the court was not in session.

Justice Burger also told the A.B.A. that the Legal Services Program of the Office of Economic Opportunity was the nation's most powerful law firm. It has provided legal advice to the poor in 49 states staffed by 2,200 lawyers, and has kept many cases out of the courts.

President Nixon said he did not want to label his administration with anything like the "New Frontier" or the "Great Society" but somehow it has been tagged the "New Federalism." A year ago on television he said, "It is time for a new Federalism in which power, funds and responsibility will flow from Washington to the states and to the people."

David S. Broder, Staff writer for the Washington Post and a Nieman Fellow at Harvard, calls the New Federalism "a sickly infant."

The House voted August 10th to seat one elected non-voting delegate from the District of Columbia next year. It was heralded as a great step toward home rule by Mayor Washington and others. But if the delegate can't vote, he could gain as much information by sitting in the gallery as on the flor.

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount is not entirely pleased with the Postal Reform bill but he says the lobbyists will now have to deal with only five commissioners instead of 535 members of Congress.

It is rumored that Attorney General John Mitchell will resign next year to handle President Nixon's campaign for '72. Will his wife Martha mount the soap box for him?

The UPI said the Attorney General knew that President Nixon had erred when he said Charles Manson, on trial for murder in Los Angeles, was guilty. When asked why he didn't correct the President, Mr. Mitchell replied, "It is not the proper posture for anybody to correct the President of the United States."

Doctors Needed in Small Towns

WASHINGTON — Fuquay-Varina, N.C., is a little farming town whose people have found themselves with medical care cut in half. Two of its four doctors have died recently.

Jack Anderson

Parents often have to drive miles for their children's appointments. The two doctors left in the area works literally night and day. Like so many small communities, it is impossible to attract young general practitioners to Fuquay-Varina.

But although the doctors have stayed away, the politicians haven't. This time, it has been a lucky thing for the town. One of the political campaigners was Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C.

The Congressman has won the support of 127 of his colleagues for a solution to problems like those in the little town.

It would allow the federal government to pay off education loans of young doctors and dentists who go to practice in such towns and in poor urban areas for three years. The measure would cost only about $10 million a year, but has an uphill struggle in this Congress.

Meantime, Galifianakis has his staff looking for doctors who want to practice in the pleasant rural town of Fuquay-Varina, N.C.

While most reporters scheme and save to take those foreign trips that give stories exotic datelines, columnist William Buckley journeys at the taxpayers' expense.

The urbane Buckley, as a member of the advisory commission to the United States Information Agency, has taken three overseas trips for USIA head Frank Shakespeare.

USIA has benevolently picked up some $3,768 in travel and other expenses while Buckley has served two masters — the USIA and the demands of his trenchant column. The junkets took the millionaire-writer and sometime politician to Vietnam, Thailand, Vienna, Russia and Eastern Europe.

Buckley commented that when he took his advisory job 13 months ago he told USIA, "I wasn't going to adjourn my professional life. I write from wherever I am." The columnist spoke of all the hours he has put in for USIA on his travels, then purred, "In fact, I am an unsung philanthropist."

Messrs Eichenberg and Armbruster will soon commence the manufacture of all kinds of crackers in our city on a pretty extensive basis. They have purchased a large-sized cutter in St. Louis with a capacity of turning out from 300 to 500 crackers per minute. We heartily commend the enterprise of these gentlemen because we wish to see everything manufactured at home that is consumed.

Thought for Today

Now Hear This, Wife

Young people who complain that the "Establishment" doesn't listen to them have nothing on your average newly married housewife.

A survey of about 300 young couples in Peoria and Decatur, Ill., by the Survey Research Laboratory of the University of Illinois, found that while nine out of 10 wives reported discussing the purchase of a new car with their husbands, only eight of 10 husbands said they discussed the subject with their mates.

In other words, 30 out of 150 husbands just weren't listening when they were addressed by their better halves. Either that or men and women have different definitions of "discussion."

The survey was conducted last fall as part of a continuing study of consumer decisions.

Family size and the wife's working are the two decisions discussed most frequently by young couples. Nine out of 10 couples in the sample group discussed these subjects.

Weekly food expenditures and where to go on vacation are decisions discussed least often.

Another significant finding reported by the laboratory: "It is interesting to note that more wives than husbands believe that you can feel both love and hate for the same person."

Fanatics Fall on Evil Days

Another indication that Americans dislike extremists of any kind can be found in news reports of two recent "rallies."

One, in Cleveland, was to be a gathering of "hard hats" who would then march into downtown Cleveland following speeches. Two extreme right-wing speakers had been invited but declined to attend. So did most Clevelanders — only about 175 showed up.

The other, in Cairo, Ill., was to be a rally of Nazi-type persons. Just 31 came, and of that number, six were plainclothes policemen, two were reporters and nine were juveniles.

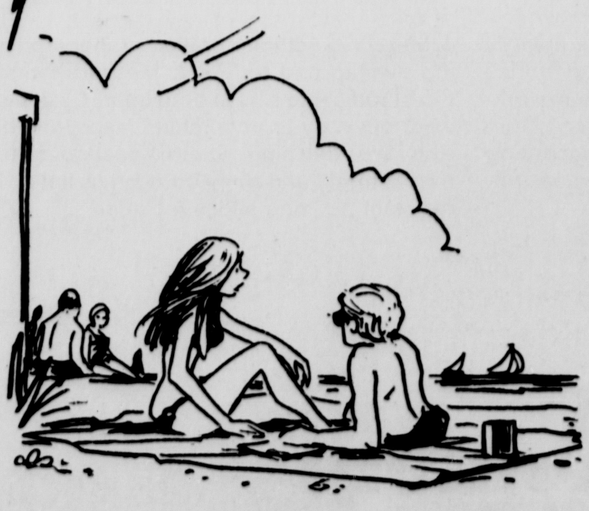

Most Americans, it seems, are tired of fanatics of the left and the right, who preach hate rather than concern for each individual.

Good Friday

The name of Good Friday for the Friday commemorating the crucifixion of Christ probably arises from the fact that Roman Catholic and other ancient traditions prescribed that that day be spent in actions which are free from sin. Hence, the proper behavior on Good Friday is one of personal goodness.

Democrat Pickups

The same day that an article and a picture appeared in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital about what a dog or animal means to a handicapped child, a ten-year-old boy in Sedalia with brain damage lost his dog. He had been reading the story with interest for he had spent several months at Columbia at that treatment center himself, so he was glad that he had a little dog of his own.

The tiny dog was a cross between a fox terrier and a chihuahua. It was never released from the house, and they have no idea how it managed to do so, but the little boy was outside with other children and here came the dog as hard as he could run chasing a cat across the street.

The boy yelled for his pet to come back and it started. A car coming at a slow rate of speed swerved to keep from hitting the animal but a speeding car struck it and the driver, about 40 years old, never even stopped.

The dog was so badly hurt it died. The little boy who saw his pet killed was crushed because the little dog had been his constant companion and was helping him get well. The feeling of sorrow among all the neighborhood children would have been lessened if the man had stopped and said: "Is there something I can do?" but he must not have cared because he was in too big a hurry to stop. Softening Tax Bite On Sale of House

By RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Owning your own home is supposed to be one of the best investments for those with limited means. And in recent years, it has been a good one. In some major metropolitan areas, homes have doubled in value in the past seven years.

These are glad tidings, indeed, if you are one of the lucky ones now in a position to cash in your investment. But watch out for the tax collector.

He is quietly waiting for you to turn a neat profit on the sale, because he is in line for a big chunk of it. Your profit is known as capital gain, and it's not uncommon for upwards of 25 per cent of it to be earmarked for Uncle Sam.

If you buy another house costing as much or more than the one you've sold, you can escape the tax for the time being. But if you're moving into an apartment, or otherwise converting your housing investment into cash, you will have to cope with the tax problem.

Broadly speaking, your profit on the sale of a house is the difference between what you paid for it and what you sell it for. There are ways to shave the amount that's taxable, however.

Let's take Jack and Lee Martin as an example. In 1960, the Martins bought their first house for $17,000. They sold it last fall for $34,000 and moved into an apartment.

The apparent gain here is obviously $17,000, but that's not the amount on which the Martins paid the tax. There were, as they say in old movies, extenuating circumstances.

For one thing, the Martins incurred several major expenses in the purchase and improvement of their home, so that for tax purposes, the cost was more than $17,000.

The day they took ownership, they paid $700 in closing costs. Tax rules allowed $500 of this to be considered as part of the price of the house, so that made their investment $17,500.

Since the house was brand-new, and the lot ungraced by blade or branch, the Martins had to invest in extensive landscaping. Installation of a lawn cost $600, another $300 went for trees, and $400 for assorted shrubs.

All told, the greenery cost $1,300 and boosted the cost of the property by that much, bringing the cost up to $18,800.

After Jack and Lee had lived in the house for five years, they decided that what the place needed was a screened porch. They added one at the rear at a cost of $1,200. This addition ran their total expenditure on the house up to $20,000.

When the Martins finally sold the house in 1969 for $34,000, they paid a real estate broker a $2,000 commission to arrange the sale. This sum was also added to the cost of the house bringing the new total up to $22,000.

By subtracting this $22,000 cost from the $34,000 they received for the house, the Martins were left with a capital gain of $12,000 on which they had to pay the tax.

Still a good-sized chunk, of course, but a far cry from the $17,000 on which they first expected to pay.

The author is unable to answer personally individual questions. Questions of general interest will be answered when possible in future columns.

Greg Cook Faces Challenge As Smith-Cotton Coach

On the first play of the 1968 Gator Bowl, MU quarterback Terry McMillian sprinted around Alabama's left end then pitched out to his halfback who streaked down the sideline for a 33-yard gain.

The halfback was senior Greg Cook, who turned in one of the Big Eight's all time best personal bowl performances, gaining 179 yards in 27 carries against a vaunted Alabama defense in the Tigers' devasting 35-10 victory over the Crimson Tide.

Cook, who was the Tigers' leading rusher in 1968 with 693 yards, also went on a 37 yard touchdown ramble in that same Gator Bowl win.

"I guess it was a pretty good way to end my college career," he reflected in a recent interview.

Today, more than a year and a half later, Greg Cook is facing a challenge which he hopes to turn into as much of a success as the 1968 Gator Bowl.

The Seneca, Mo., native is the new head football coach at Smith-Cotton High School, and his confident approach to building a winning record is spiced with enthusiasm.

The first phase of his challenge started Friday when equipment was issued to about 60 variety prospects at Jennie Jaynes Stadium.

"This is a real nice stadium and the field appears to be in good shape," Cook said. "I think we've got one of the best stadiums in the conference," (Central Missouri).

"We've purchased 50 new game uniforms and reconditioned helmets and other equipment so we should be in pretty good shape in that department," he added.

Cook spent last season as head coach at Kearney, Mo., where he compiled a 5-4 record.

He brings with him two new assistants, establishing one of the biggest coaching changes in many years at Smith-Cotton.

Larry York, another M.U. graduate, will be the head line coach. The Quincy, Ill., native will also manage defensive coaching duties.

Willie Jenkins, a Southwest Missouri State graduate will be the end coach. Jim Patrick, an assistant coach last season, will tutor the linebackers and offensive backs.

Cook will have a nucleus of 10 letterman around which he must do a lot of rebuilding and developing.

The lettermen are:

Chip Thompson, 6'1", 180, quarterback; Rick Boggs, 5'10", 165, tailback; Steve Gerlezc, 6' 165, slotback; Dick McQuitty, 6'2", 215, tackle; Charles Tippie, 6'2", 210, tackle; Danny Wissman, 5'8", 160, guard; Jeff Johnson, 5'9", 170, guard; Daryl McKinney, 5'9", 150, guard; Mick Heembrock, 6'170", end and Craig Thorpe, 6', 165, center. All will be seniors.

Cook said he hadn't been able to see the squad work out thoroughly yet (practices started only yesterday) but he has talked to many of them and says they're good football material.

Unless the heat becomes too oppressive, Cook plans two-a-day workouts for about two weeks.

We've got practices scheduled from 3 to 5 in the afternoons," Cook said.

"After two weeks," he added, "we'll have only one practice a day."

"We're going to start with the fundamentals, blocking and tackling, and work our way up from there," he continued.

"There will be a lot of technique and agility drills at first, then we'll work on the more complex aspects of the game."

"I like the "I" formation," Cook added. "It gives you a lot of flexibility and that's good in high school."

"I want to establish ball control and that takes running, but we plan to have an effective passing attack and we're going to work on it early," he continued.

Cook expects dedication from his players during the season and he says he wants them to shun an attitude of accepting defeat.

"I want the team to win bad enough to give 100 per cent. I expect a close-knit team—and that's exactly what we'll have."

When asked about his football philosophy Cook said, 'My philosophy is win. It's important for the players to learn things from football that will help them later. I want to develop their characters to face life. But the most important thing is to teach them to play as a team.'

Cook and his wife Georgia moved to Sedalia in early June with their one-year-old son.

'We like the town and we think it's a good size. We lived near Kansas City last year and that was too big, but Sedalia is a nice size town."

Cook said he has been contacted by several civic groups to talk aoout Smith-Cotton football.

"People I've talked to have been real interested in the team and for the most part have been enthusiastic," he said. "There have been a few pessimists, but I hope to change that."

If Greg Cook can make the coming season anywhere near a success on the local level as M.U.'s Gator Bowl win in 1968 was for M.U. football, then the pessimists will be few and far between.

Slower Pace, Same Faces

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — The pace will be slower but the same familiar faces are expected to dominate Sunday's Yankee 400, a key stop on the big-time stock car racing circuit.

The big stockers, 4,000-pound machines that can bolt down an asphalt oval at 200 miles an hour, have been deliberately slowed for the rest of the season for safety reasons.

The cars for the first time have been equipped with a carburetor device that will take seven to 10 miles per hour off their speeds.

The National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR), which put the rules into effect earlier in the week, said the slowdown is designed to reduce the number of blown engines, suspension failures and shredded tires that have marred recent races.

Most drivers said they felt the rule was a good one, but questioned NASCAR's decision to put it into effect at Michigan International Speedway, a two-mile semioval they consider to be the safest in racing.

Charlie Glotzbach, a veteran Dodge pilot from Georgetown, Ind., won the pole position for Sunday's race. His qualifying speed was 157.363 miles per hour —about five and one-half m.p.h. slower than Pete Hamilton's pole effort of 162.737 m.p.h. in the Motor State 400 here in June.

Glotzbach said he expects the race to be run at about 150 to 151 m.p.h., compared with the 156 to 158 m.p.h. recorded by the leaders in the June race.

Bobby Isaac, the most prolific Dodge winner with nine victories this season, starts in the front row with Glotzbach.

Bergey

PROSPECTUS — Many feel Bengals are one of best young teams in football. But they're still in throes of organizing and experimenting in different spots. So give Maestro Paul Brown more time before expecting a winner. Meanwhile he'll collect a few unexpected scalps.

OFFENSE

PASSING—Young Greg Cook, taking directions from boss on every play, is still among most impressive quarterback prospects. Great, versatile arm which puts him at top of league stats although he missed half of last season with sore arm. And Sam Wyche's not bad backup man. Rating—B+

RECEIVING—Crew that'll shake loose for its share of TD's. Eric Crabtree, Speedy Thomas at wide spot are both swift, not very big, but with good hands and elusive. The heavy duty clutcher is Bob Trumpy, who may very well be premier tight end in all of pro football. If Tommie Smith, the Olympic sprinter, should ever prove his football merit, look out. Rating—B

RUNNING—Disappointing. After joining 1,000-yard club as rookie, Paul Robinson dropped way down. Jess Phillips, settling into an offensive spot, picked up some of the slack. But he's still learning. They've got to prove themselves now as combo. Clem Turner, big hope of '69, was flop. Rating —B—

LINE—Made two important moves to improve blocking up front. Got big Rufus Mayes from Bears to play tackle, experienced Gary Kirner from Chargers to challenge for guard spot. Bob Johnson's already on way to becoming premier center in conference. Oldsters like Ernie Wright aren't long for Bengals, but young ones like Howard Fest, Dave Middendorf will help. Rating—B

DEFENSE

LINE—Got to fill spots vacated by trade of Harry Gunner, Bill Staley to Chicago (for Mayes). That's why they went for All-Americans Mike Reid, Ron Carpenter in draft. If Reid and Carpenter make it big, there'll be trouble. Rating—C

LINEBACKING—Lineup's unchanged from last year. Bill Bergey in middle, flanked by Al Beauchamp, Bill Peterson. Bergey's the big one in this trio, the guy's who got chance to be guts of defense. He's a ranging hitter who had a big rookie season. Rating—B

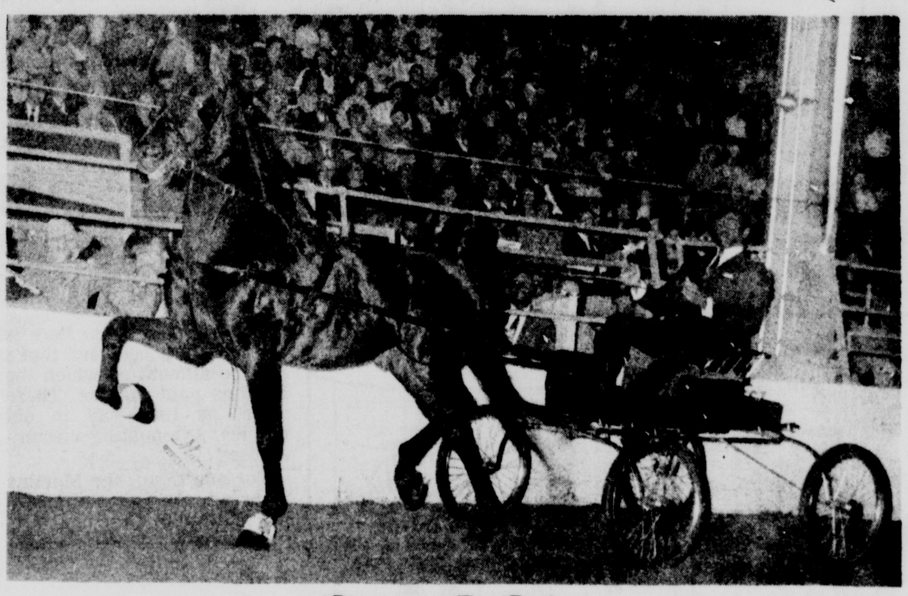

SECONDARY—Lost safety Bobby Hunt via retirement. Still lots of fellows around to pick from. Ken Dyer will step in for Hunt. Others—Al Coleman, Ken Riley, Fletcher Smith—don't have big reputations, but coaches aren't complaining. Rating—B—

KICKING—Horst Muhlmann was completely acceptable as a field goal kicker to stickler like Brown, who discovered Groza. Ready to take over punting is Dave Lewis, who also doubles as quarterback. Rating—B

PREDICTION

Second in Central Division—and wouldn't Brown like to bump off old Cleveland mates.

Follows Brother's Racing Footsteps

Ron Hutcherson of Keokuk, Iowa, has taken the same road to racing stardom as did his famous brother, Dick, more than ten years ago. Ron has entered his 1970 Ford Torino in the IMCA new model stock car races starting at the State Fair here Sunday afternoon, Aug. 23. A double-header, afternoon and night program will be staged der the sanction of the International Motor Contests Association Saturday, Aug. 29.

Ron is living in the shadow of his famous brother, Dick Hutcherson, who was an IMCA standout before switching to NASCAR (National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing). The older Hutcherson brother won the IMCA national crown in 1963-64 and then became the top money winner on the super speedways. He is now managing Dave Pearson, one of the NASCAR leaders.

The Ford Torino that Ron will be wheeling at Missouri State Fair is the same car that Dave Pearson drove last February in the Daytona "500."

But living in the shadow of a famous auto racing brother is one thing, and trying to break that record is another. Ron wants to win races on his own. Ron also wants to overcome another racing whammy. He walked away from a wreck a few years ago after totaling his car and almost quit the speed sport altogether. This year it's another story for Ron

Ron Hutcherson

Hutcherson and father, Leon, who acts as mechanic and pit supervisor. Ron has consistently finished second and third to ten-time champion Ernie Derr, but so far has acted in the bridesmaid's role. Just two weeks ago Ron was leading Derr down for the checkered flag at Donnellson, Iowa, only to run into interference and lost a disputed victory to his fellow townsman.

A field of over forty new model cars are expected to qualify for races on both the half-mile and the one-mile track Aug. 23 and 29, while the IMCA sprinters will get the spotlight Saturday afternoon, Aug. 22 and again on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 30.

Management and Players Agree Advancement Is Overdue For Blacks

By BERNARD E. GARNETT

Blacks in management tend to agree that the time for massive advancement of non-white personnel, particularly to positions that traditionally have been all-white, is long overdue. But for the most part, their confidence that management will respond soon contrasts with the overall pessimism and distrust voiced by most present-day players. Most probably would not agree with the Boston Red Sox' Reggie Smith or the Atlanta Hawks' Walter Hazzard: that true fair employment will not become a reality until blacks own their own teams.

Roosevelt Brown, while asserting that he is not entirely pro-management, says not all black grievances are justified. "I've seen some black players — and whites are guilty of this, too — who want the paycheck but don't want to put out their all." On the subject of salary, Brown suggests, "If a ball player doesn't think he's being offered fair pay, he shouldn't sign his name on that contract."

American (baseball) League public-relations assistant Jesse Owens believes that many player grievances are sparked by well-meaning colleagues who offer players bad advice. "A player does himself a lot of harm when he lets people tell him what he should or should not do,what he should or should not accept," Owens suggests, "His best bet is to set a goal for himself and try to achieve it, rather than listen to advice that could find him skidding from the sport altogether."

According to advance notices, NFL aide Buddy Young is accused of conspiring with management on black players' salaries, in Johnny Sample's forthcoming autobiography, Confessions of a Dirty Ballplayer. Young, who considers a black head coach long overdue in the NFL but "realistically" does not see any change in the near future, told RRIC, "I'm just sorry that John failed to interview me, instead of basing his claims on a 'they say' mentality. Because none of what he says is true. I'm too smart to be used by anyone." Incidentally, many of Young's ideas are close to those expressed by dissident players. He is particularly concerned that black performers are not sought after for lucrative product endorsements, like their white counterparts.

Because of family and financial obligations, the black professional athlete is not likely to dramatize his grievances through protests or boycotts, as his amateur counterparts might. Besides, most black pros consider their problems meaningless compared to those confronting the overall black community. They tend to think like Bob Gibson, star pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, who says, "The black athlete has a tremendous obligation to the black community." Thus, many spend their off-seasons in youth activities. Golfers Charles Sifford and Lee Elder plan to open schools where aspiring black youths can receive expert golf instruction, enabling them to compete in PGA play under more favorable conditions than the game's black pioneers.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference's pro sports exhibitions became a reality, due in large measure, according to SCLC Sports Project chairman Joseph D. Peters, to the behind-the-scenes efforts of professional athletes "who wanted to do their thing for the Movement." Each summer, SCLC sponsors pro basketball games in the East. Last Spring, the organization staged its first pre-season all-star game, at Dodger Stadium. Last year's nationally televised Martin Luther King Memorial track meet at Villanova University, in Philadelphia, was an SCLC project. "When we were struggling to get this idea off the ground and management kept hedging," Peters recalls, "the athletes went to bat for us and got us over." Some baseball players said they hope the pre-season star classic blossoms into an annual event.

Perhaps the most ambitious "community" endeavor by black professional sportsmen is Black Economic Union (BEU). Founded in 1966 by Jim Brown and a few other black professional football players, BEU, formerly the Negro Industrial and Economic Union, boasts offices in Cleveland, Washington, D.C., and Kansas City, Mo. and claims over 100 athletes from football, baseball, basketball and golf. With an annual budget of $250,000 from the Ford Foundation and the U.S. Commerce Dept.'s Economic Development Administration, BEU aids and arranges loans and expertise for budding black businesses. Also, the group currently is operating a "Food First" program for starving inhabitants of Marshall County, Miss.

Stockton Leads PGA

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Dave Stockton, a non-winner for two years, blazed in with a brilliant 66 Saturday and stormed into a three stroke lead in the third round of the PGA national championship.

Defending champion Ray Floyd bolted into contention on the strength of a course record 65, five under par on the demanding, 6,962 yard Southern Hills Country Club course.

Stockton had a 54 hole total of 206, four under par for the tournament and Floyd had a 209.

They were the only players in the field under par, but still had a challenge from Arnold Palmer. The 40-year-old athlete of the decade still seeking the lone major title that has alluded him, managed a third round 69 and was alone in third place at 211.

Palmer came off the course shaking his head over a missed, four-foot putt on the final hole that cost him a bogey.

He was five strokes back, but warned:

"Those two guys in front of me will have to shoot pretty good rounds tomorrow."

Gene Littler, who had the course record at 67 until Floyd and Stockton swept past him, recorded a third round 69 for 212, two over par and six off the pace.

Sam Snead, 58-year-old winner of more than 100 events in a fantastic 30 year areer, had a 68 and was one of a group at 213.

Aside from Palmer, however, some of the giants of the game had their troubles in the 101 degree heat.

Masters champion Billy Casper and South Africa's Gary Player each took 74's for 216 and Jack Nicklaus fell well back with a 73 for 217.

The 27-year-old Floyd, in a lengthy slump since he won this tournament a year ago, credited a refound putting touch with his remarkable effort. He used only 25 strokes on the green.

"I changed my style a little today" he said.

Talent Fills Liberty Card

A talent packed car featuring a Double Main event will be presented at Convention Hall next Tuesday.

Appearing for the first time in one of the headliners will be the colorful powerhouse, Baron von Raschke a 280 pound wrestler from Germany. The Baron is rated among the top ten men in the Grappling World today and has met and defeated most of the leading contenders for the World Title presently held by Dory Funk, Jr. Danny Little Bear, by virtue of his two straight fall victory over the Japanese Star Oki Shikina last week, has been selected as the logical opponent for the bald-headed von Raschke. Promoter Gust Karras has been dickering many months for the appearance of von Raschke and finally has signed the match for next Tuesday.

Sharing the limelight in the other half of the Double main event will be a U.S.-Central States Title match with Champion Roger Kirby meeting the sturdy and clever Bob Geigel. The belt and title will be at stake and Kirby will have to do all in his power to keep from being pinned by Geigel in their encounter. Kirby has defended his title successfully since becoming the Champion, against all contenders, but against Geigel he will have to use every trick he knows in order to retain the Championship.

Canadian Steve Bolus, recently returned after a long absence, will be pitted against the bald Russian Boris Kosloff in the Special event and a win for either man will put him higher on the list of title contenders. Newcomer Jerry Vickers will be meeting able and ready, and anxious to show the Sedalia wrestling fans they deserve a better position on future cards.

There will be no advance in prices for this All Star Card and patrons are advised to get their tickets early.

Local Divers Place Well

Three members of the Sedalia Divers, Inc., placed in skin and SCUBA diving competition events held this past weekend on Lake Pomme de Terre.

Donnie Kabler, 412 North Park, speared the largest fish, a 7-pound 4-ounce Buffalo, in the Sharpshooter division of the SCUBA diving event.

David Simmons, Green Ridge, won fourth place for most fish speared in the SCUBA competition. Don Simmons, also of Green Ridge, won second place for most fish speared in skin diving competition.

The Johnson County Eels Scuba Club sponsored the meet under the rules of the Midwest Diving Council, Inc.

Approximately 60 divers from Missouri, Kansas and Illinois competed in the two divisions.

Also last weekend, the club held an open water dive at Pomme de Terre for new trainees and members.

After all tests were given and passed, new divers were introduced to competition diving in the form of a underwater treasure hunt, with prizes donated by Sedalia merchants.

New trainees in the club are Vivian Prall, Tommy Miller, Bob Stevenson, Bill Spignesi, Ed Gonser, Larry Steinhauser, David Schmidle, Gary Monroe, George Wilkinson, Debbie Lyles and Richard Liedorf.

Classes were held under the of the club's Midwest Diving Council, Inc., Certified instructor, Jerry Hancock.

Moore Unhampered

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Moore, England's World Cup soccer captain, shrugged off his personal troubles Saturday and led West Ham United to a 2-2 draw against Tottenham Hotspur on the opening day of the English soccer season.

Moore still has an allegation that he shoplifted a bracelet from a store in Bogota, Colombia, hanging over his head.

His wife, Tina, was threatened with kidnaping earlier this week. Plainclothes policemen were on the sidelines to make sure no harm came to Moore.

Royals And Cards Both Lose By One

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Cater drilled a tying two-run single in the eighth inning and scored on a single by pinch hitter Jake Gibbs to give the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over Kansas City Saturday.

Kansas City's Wally Bunker, seeking his first victory of the season after seven setbacks, took a 4-2 lead into the eighth but was lifted after yielding a leadoff single by Thurman Munson. Roy White greeted reliever Tom Burgmeier with another single and Bobby Murcer sacrificed before Cater lined the tying hit to center.

The Royals scored twice in the fourth against New York starter Mel Stottlemyre to snap a 2-2 tie. Singles vy Oliver, Paul Schaal and Rich Severson got one run across and another scored on George Sprigg's sacrifice fly.

White slammed a first inning homer for the Yankees, who have won three in a row.

Later Saturday, the Cardinals also were downed by a single run when the San Francisco Gaints got hot in the ninth to end the game at 3-2.

The game was played at St. Louis.

Hal Lanier's run-scoring single in the ninth inning, after a tying leadoff homer by Willie McCovey, sent the San Francisco Giants to their victory over the hard-luck Cardinals.

After McCovey poled his 30th homer of the season off Nelson Briles, Ken Henderson singled and stole second. Briles walked Jim Hart intentionally, but Lanier crossed up the strategy with a tie-breaking single to center.

The Cardinals gave Briles a 2-0 lead before Bobby Bonds closed the gap in the sixth with his 19th homer.

Dal Maxvill's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the second sent home St. Louis' first run after singles by Joe Torre and Ted Simmons and a walk.

Frank Reberger, the Giants' starter, fanned Lou Brock in the third but catcher Dick Dietz dropped the third strike and then threw wide to first for an error. Brock stole second, took third on a fly out and scored on Carl Taylor's double.

Bruce KO's Chuvalo

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — George Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion, knocked out Mike Bruce of Springfield, Mass., Saturday night in the second round of their scheduled 10-round boxing match.

The crowd of 5,000 wildly cheered Chuvalo who is of Yugoslavian descent. After his quick and effective victory, the crowd carried the jubliant Chuvalo out of the ring.

Chuvalo said the victory proves wrong the detractors who said his ring career was ended after the defeat he suffered in New York earlier this month in a bout with George Foreman.

Weather Outlook

The U.S. Weather Bureau's 30-day outlook for mid-August to mid-September is for temperatures to average above seasonal normals over the western half of the nation except for near normal along the West Coast. Elsewhere temperatures are expected to average near normal except for below normal in the Southeast and Ohio Valley. Precipitation is expected to exceed normal over the Northeast, the Ohio Valley, the Southeast and the Central and Southern Plateau. Subnormal totals are indicated for the Great Plains and California. Elsewhere near normal precipitation is in prospect. (UPI)

Road Funds Are Sought In a Suit

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Highway Commission filed suit in federal district court here Friday in an effort to force the federal government to release all the federal highway money Missouri believes it is entitled to.

Transportation Secretary John Volpe has withheld $26.2 million in Missouri funds, the suit charges, on an announced Nixon administration policy of cooling inflation. It amounts to $300 million throughout the nation but some states, such as Massachusetts, are reported to be listed for an increase in this fiscal year.

For Missouri the cutback meant a reduction from the authorized $112 million in $86 million.

Robert L. Hyder, commission attorney, said he had been working on the suit for about three weeks. The go-ahead came from the commission Friday after a three-man subcommittee of the National Govers' Conference was established earlier this week to consider such a move.

Action by other states may also be taken, Hyder said.

The Missouri suit asks that Volpe's reduction order be set aside as illegal. It called his action "wholly without authority and law (and) is arbitrary, capricious and willful abuse of his authority."

It said Volpe acted in a discriminatory way because his order gives some states increased funds while cutting back others.

Expected To Sign Bus Bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan is expected to sign a bill that would let California parents decide whether they want their children sent to school and brought home by bus.

Its sponsors denied that the bill was intended to thwart efforts to integrate California classrooms. However, the bill originally was written to ban busing only when used to integrate schools and was changed in the Assembly when attorneys said it was unconstitutional as drafted. The author, Assemblyman Floyd Wakerfield, R-South Gate, first resisted the change, then went along.

Reagan's policy is not to say in advance whether he will sign a bill. But earlier this summer when asked about the busing bill he said: "I am in sympathy with the goal of the purpose behind it. I do not, and have never, favored busing as an answer to the problem that it is being used for."

The bill went to the Republican chief executive's desk Friday on a 21-12 vote in the Senate following probably the most emotional debate of the 1970 session, now a record 225 days old.

The only Negro in the upper house, Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, whose district includes Watts, said, "I think this is going to be another symbol of racism in this state. It's going to set up another racial war in California."

Soviet Envoy In Border Talks Is Downgraded

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has appointed a lesser-ranking chief negotiator for its border talks with Red China to succeed First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov.

The official Soviet news agency Tass identified the new negotiator as Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilyichov and reported that he arrived today in Peking. Ilyichov is one of seven deputy ministers under Kuznetsov.

Tass officially confirmed earlier reports that Kuznetsov had returned to Moscow on the advice of doctors and has resumed his duties of first deputy foreign minister of the U.S.S.R." The nature of his ailment was not given.

Governor Sees Bias In Probe

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. John Bell Williams charged today that the President's Commission on Campus Unrest was "pointedly biased" during a probe this week of disorders at Jackson State College, and encouraged racial animosity.

In a telegram, Williams urged President Nixon to dissolve the commission because of its "obvious bias on the side of lawbreakers and rioters and insurrectionists, and the absolute absence of objectivity in performing their assigned tasks."

Williams said he centered his charges on "inflammatory" statements attributed to three commission members Thursday after the close of three days of hearings on violence which resulted in the deaths of two young blacks and the wounding of nine others at the college last May.

The members and statements listed by Williams:

Joseph Rhodes Jr., a recent graduate of Harvard University: "In direct testimony they lied. People who were sworn under oath before this commission . . . lied . . . My impressions are that Mississippi is a police state ruled by terror and the black people in Mississippi are in every day danger of being murdered in the streets by elements of the law enforcement agencies of this state."

Dr. James E. Cheek, president of Howard University: "I think there is the possibility, a real possibility, of armed confrontation. Students are determined they are not going to be fired upon and not be prepared to fire back, and I think that is a dangerous kind of situation where students are confronted with officers who over-react."

William Scranton, former governor of Pennsylvania and commission chairman: "I think it is very clear that racism is the major problem involved in the Jackson State incident."

Pettis County Post 16, The American Legion, will meet Monday, Aug. 17, at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, 16th and Thompson Blvd. Police auxiliary meeting following general meeting.

Low Priced Units Can Be Effective

By PETER WEAVER

Q — In getting ready for a vacation trip, we are thinking of air-conditioning our 1966 car. How good are the units advertised in the lower price range of $150-$170? Will installation have any bad effects on the car? — J.D.C., Pontiac, Mich.

A — Air-conditioners in the lower price range are good. Pick a reliable brand and a reliable dealer for installation. Local taxi companies might give you a tip on where to find the good installation shops.

Your car won't suffer much from a new air-conditioner but you should switch the four-blade car engine fan for one with six blades. Lesser-priced air-conditioners draw about four horsepower and won't tax your engine. However, at idling speeds, your engine may operate sluggishly. It's not a major problem.

Q — I made a trip to California and, while stopping at a Shell station in Arizona, I was told I needed a new battery and regulator when my car wouldn't start. I had the man replace the battery and regulator. It still wouldn't start. He said I needed a new alternator. I told him to wouldn't start. He had to use a cable to get me going and the total bill was $118.92.

A Shell station man in California told me all I ever needed was a new starter switch ($12). Can you help me get my money back? — M.C., Dubuque, Iowa.

A — It's back. When you wrote to me, you must have also registered a complaint with Shell's computer (billing) center in Tulsa. Your account was traced, the Arizona service station was questioned and you have been credited with the full $118.92.

On long auto trips, an occasional gas station attendant gets carried away selling "repairs" to out-of-state cars. His company is none the wiser unless you make a complaint. (Including copies of bills and your account number makes things go faster.) All oil companies have this problem.

Next time make the attendant give you the old part or battery that is removed. Get his name and watch him make the repairs. This "hawkeye" approach usually discourages overzealous repair work when you're away from home.

Q — I had to have a repairman check out my sewing machine and he informed me that the trouble was caused by using silicone-treated threads. The entire sewing mechanism will have to be replaced. Is it true that silicone threads can damage my machine? — Mrs. W.S., Waltham, Mass.

A — Silicone-coated threads are sold to handle the newer fabrics — stretch and bonded knits and synthetics. They may work well in factory sewing machines but, I'm told, they can be a real problem in home machines.

The silicone flakes off and fouls up the moving parts of your machine. Nylon threads tend to move jerkily through the needle and most synthetic threads have a tendency to knot. One sewing machine technician says: "Plain old cotton thread is still the best."

Q — When we lived in Buffalo, N.Y., I bought a $5 13-foot extension cord for our phone. I was told I could use it anywhere because it was mine. But when we moved to Florida, I ended up paying $7.50 for another cord. I was told that "Southern Bell" didn't accept "Northern Bell" cords.

Does this mean, if we move again, I have to buy another cord from, say, "Western Bell"? — Mrs. E.D., Homestead, Fla.

A — With the phone company, you have to check out these details before buying new equipment. Within each Bell system (Northern, Southern and others) you can transfer extension cords. Move out of one system into another and you have to pay extra. Some items such as color and Princess phones can be transferred from one Bell System to another. If you move into a system operated by a company other than Bell, you can't transfer anything.

Revealing Letters On Pornography

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was warned months ago he would be blamed for a proposal to liberalize the nation's obscenity laws if he didn't fire the Commission on Pornography staff and most of its members, a packet of letters has disclosed.

The letters from Charles H. Keating Jr., Nixon's lone commission appointee, were released Thursday by Rep. Robert N. C. Nix, D-Pa., after the White House disclaimed the commission and called it former President Lyndon B. Johnson's.

"Inasmuch as it is a presidential commission," said one of Keating's letters, "I am concerned not only that the pornographers will have taken a giant step toward winning the war but that your administration will receive the blame."

Keating, a Cincinnati attorney and founder of the Citizens for Decent Literature, Inc., urged Nixon 11 months ago to replace all but six of the 18 commission members. He said the new Nixon commission should then "promptly install a new staff."

Last month, Keating told Nixon "the situation is critical" and that he had seen draft reports confirming the commission was headed for a recommendation to repeal all U.S. laws against pornography for adults.

The commission's draft report also recommends enactment of laws to protect children against exposure to pornography and bans its use in public displays or unsolicited mail advertisements.

The White House announced Tuesday the president would oppose repeal of pornography laws for adults. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler stressed:

"This is not Nixon's commission. It was formed under a previous administration."

"I do not think it is reasonable," Nix said in releasing the letters, "for the White House to wash its hands completely of the obscenity commission by merely blaming the whole mess on the previous administration."

Your Veteran Benefits—I

Veterans Are As Old As The Army

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ray Cromley, military analyst for Newspaper Enterprise Association, is the author of "What You've Got Coming in Benefits for U.S. Veterans" This is the first in a series.)

By RAY CROMLEY
Enterprise Publications

For as long as there have been veterans. Ever since the Romans first invented the word, the concept of community responsibility for those who served in battle has been constant.

Although this concept was carried to the colonies by the Pilgrims, it was not until 1811 that the United States government took its first official steps in caring for ill and disabled former servicemen. In that year Congress authorized the establishment of a permanent home for disabled and aged officers, seamen and marines.

Since then, a great cornucopia of benefits have been developed for the nearly 28 million living American veterans and their 70 million wives, children, parents and other dependents.

There is some form of compensation available to these nearly 100 million people—roughly half the population of the United States—ranging from a flag for veteran's funeral to lifetime compensation for the incapacitated child of a deceased veteran.

In all, compensation amounts to a 59 billion package for the 1971 fiscal year, to which half the American population is entitled by law.

This series outlines and clarifes the full range of benefits now available to veterans and their families. Many of these have been established—particularly as they affect Vietnam veterans—by Congressional action in the last year. This series and the reader service book being offered by this newspaper will enable you to discover if you—or a member of your family—qualify for such programs as:

—"GI Bill" aid worth up to $8,000 during four years of enrollment in a qualified college or educational institution.

—Veterans Administration guaranteed or direct loans to buy, build or improve a home in which you intend to live or a farm which you plan to operate.

—Preference in competing for and retaining a job with the federal government.

—Aid in obtaining employment including job counseling, training and rehabilitation.

—Securing the nation's best buy in life insurance.

—Full-time or outpatient medical care in a Veterans Administration hospital.

—Pensions as high as $130 per month even when the disability is not connected with military service. This figure can be increased either by an aid and attendance allowance of $100 per month or by a housebound benefit of $40.

—Four years of education aid for the wives and children of veterans who die or are totally disabled as the result of military service.

The total cost of these programs in the future is, of course, virtually impossible to calculate. It will be high. But this money is widely regarded as an important investment. The GI Bill of post-World War II days, four example, helped create hundreds and thousands of professionals such as doctors, lawyers, teachers, engineers and skilled technicians.

The existence of this supply of highly trained manpower is regarded as a major factor in the great technological and economic advances of the last decade. Government statistics reveal that the median income of veterans is nearly 30 per cent higher than the average income of nonveterans.

Thus, the investment in aid for veterans pays off in higher tax returns to the United States and the states and lower welfare costs.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The term "Vietnam veteran" as used in this series refers to any veteran who had active duty in the "Vietnam era" which began Aug. 5, 1964. Veterans with active duty during this period are eligible for the Vietnam benefits outlined, even if they saw no duty in Vietnam.

Tenure Guide Nothing New

A new state teacher tenure law, effective July 1, is not in variance with set standards of Sedalia's board of education, according to Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools.

The Board of Education approved teacher contracting arrangements last week to conform with the state law.

Rules governing behavior of teachers, and those for which a teacher may be asked for his resignation, have been in effect "as long as I have been here — 12 years," Dr. Norris said. He added that less than a dozen teachers have been asked to resign for infractions of rules such as those to be enforced by the state.

These include: "physical or mental condition unfitting (a teacher) to instruct or associate with children; immoral conduct; incompetency, inefficiency or insubordination in the line of duty; willful or persistent violation of, or failure to obey the school laws of the state or the regulations of the board of education, or district, employing him; excessive or unreasonable absence from performance of duties; or conviction of a felony or a crime involving moral turpitude."

Under the law, the instructor is hired as a probationary teacher for five years, thereafter becoming permanent. Should charges be made against the teacher he will be given 30 days warning, during which the superintendent and teacher may confer on the matter.

Notice of a hearing before the superintendent and the school board must be given the teacher 20 days in advance. If charges are not challenged by the taacher within 10 more days, the teacher is suspended. Should a teacher be found not guilty of charges his salary is refunded for the period he was under suspension.

The legislature provides that the hearings be made public, with both parties represented by counsel, provided witnesses, and costs paid by the school board, with the exception of the teacher's counsel. Losing his case, a teacher may appeal to the circuit court in his school district.

Before the teacher tenure law took effect, teachers could be fired by a majority vote of the school board, Dr. Norris said.

The new tenure law, Dr. Norris said, would not have too much effect on the roster of the present teachers. "We have good teachers here. But it may make us more selective in employing new ones, and cause us to give more supervision to evaluation of probationary (one to five-year) teachers," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has not yet decided whether Egypt violated the Middle East standstill cease-fire, as Israel charged.

"We have not reached a judgement on what, if anything, occurred after the cease-fire," State Department Press Officer Robert McCloskey said Friday.

He "emphatically" denied one report that the United States had decided the charge—that Egypt violated the ccase-fire by moving anti-aircraft missiles closer to the Suez Canal—was not true.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has announced an end to federal registration of 48 industrial mercury products—30 used in laundries, 12 for slime control and 6 for algae control.

The Agriculture Department said Friday registration would be cancelled in 30 days to curb water pollution. The products may be relabelled to be sold for such still-approved uses as wood preservatives, paints, plastics and control of turf fungus. None of the products were available to home owners, officials said.

People In The News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, former West Point superintendent, and two other officers are the subject of an Army grand jury-type investigation to determine if courts-martial are warranted against them for dereliction of duty.

The accusations involved are based on a field investigation of the alleged My Lai massacre in South Vietnam two years ago.

The Army announced Friday that the investigations, closed to public and press, began Thursday at Fort Meade, Md. The other officers are Lt. Col. William D. Guinn and Maj. Frederick W. Watke.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Thomas O. Paine, retiring administrator of the federal space agency, has been named a vice president of General Electric Co. and head of its power generation group.

Paine, whose retirement from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is effective Sept. 15, had been with GE 19 years before joining NASA in January 1968 as deputy administrator.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson stepped back into the role of a political campaigner Friday night.

Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, were featured guests at a $100-a-plate appreciation dinner for Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who is seeking re-election.

Johnson told the dinner guests he "genuinely believes that Ben Barnes has what it takes to go as far as his vision will take him."

Says Youths Lacking Nutritional Values

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina's chief school officer says there is a tie-in between indifference young people have for nutritional values and their "voluntary intake of harmful substances."

Cyril B. Busbee, state superintendent of public instruction, did not specify marijuana, LSD or other drugs in his talk Friday to the governor's annual nutrition conference.

But he did say the problem of nutrition is related to "our young peoples' over-all attitude toward health, personal well-being, and even toward life itself."

Busbee said that somehow society "has failed to sell its fun-seeking young people or. the idea that good health puts more zest—more fun—into life, for a lifetime."

Equal Time To Reply To Nixon on Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Noting President Nixon has made five nationally televised speeches on the Vietnam war in nine months, the Federal Communications Commission has ruled the networks must give time for opposing views.

The FCC, in the ruling announced Friday, said it was neither criticizing the networks' news coverage of the war nor discouraging broadcast of presidential reports.

The critical consideration, the FCC said, is whether the public has a reasonable opportunity to be informed when the leading spokesman for one side uses five prime-time opportunities to present his views.

The case for rebuttal time could not be made on the basis of one presidential speech the commission said.

The FCC decided the question in response to complaints filed under the fairness doctrine by the Committee for Fair Broadcasting of Controversial Issues, Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace and 14 U.S. senators.

Network spokesmen declined comment on the ruling.

The doctrine requires a broadcast licensee who presents one side of a controversial question to give the public a reasonable opportunity to be informed on other sides of the question.

The FCC also ordered the Columbia Broadcasting System to give the Republican Party an opportunity to reply to a July 7 television program by Democrats.

The commission said that while CBS acted in good faith in giving Democrats time to reply to President Nixon, the presentation did not fulfill the network's intention.

Nixon's addresses had dwelt mainly on the war issue but the Democrats' broadcast, featuring Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, referred only briefly to the war, the FCC held.

O'Brien attacked that ruling as based on false premises and promised an appeal unless the FCC reverses the decision.

It was not the network's intention at all to confine the content of the Democratic reply to the war, O'Brien said.

Sweet Springs Is Expecting Fewer Pupils

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SWEET SPRINGS — Enrollment in the Sweet Springs R-7 school this fall is expected to be lower than last year, according to Robert Longwith, superintendent of schools. He cited closing of local industries and subsequent moving of families in the area as the cause.

Pre-enrollment for new residents will be held Monday at the school. First day of school will be Aug. 31.

Eight new teachers were hired this year, completing the staffs of the high school and elementary schools. They are: Mrs. Betty McKeage, kindergarten; Mrs. Marilyn Wolfe, second grade; Mrs. Jean King, third grade; Mrs. Gayleen Johnson, sixth grade; Mrs. Barbara Becker, seventh grade; John Johnson, physical education instructor and varsity coach; Carl Baxter, music, and John Rapp, driver education and social studies.

Benton County R-II Expects 420 Pupils

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LINCOLN — Benton County R-II School in Lincoln will begin the 1970-71 school year Aug. 31, with an estimated enrollment of 420 students — 300 in the grade school and 120 in high school.

Five new faculty members have been employed: Norman F. Eldridge will be high school principal and teach physical education; Glen Hughes, science, math and basketball coach; Mary Hughes, math and psychology; Mary Ervin, special education, and Alice Schawo, first grade.

Other faculty members include: Russell Pile, superintendent; Helen Brown, elementary principal; Mrs. Nadine Payne, kindergarten; Mrs. Marie Rambow, remedial reading; Mrs. Dorothy Edmonds, second grade; Mrs. Mabel Estes, third grade; Mrs. Margaret Ellen Hansen, fourth grade; Mrs. Ethel Alcorn, fifth grade; Miss Linda Cooper, sixth grade; Miss Shirley Adams, business education; Larry Floyd, music; Mrs. Louetta Kullman, home economics; Mrs. Rita Pile, English and speech; Hugh Wilson, industrial arts and driver training; Mrs. Dorothy Brady, elementary music; Donald Kauble, science, and Larry Huffman, social studies and Spanish.

Psychology and Spanish II are being offered this year as new courses. The elementary school rooms and industrial arts department have been redecorated for the new school year.

Lunch will be served the first day, and school will be dismissed at 1:30 p.m. After the first day the regular dismissal time will be 3:07 p.m. Buses will run about the same schedule as last year. Students who would be affected by a change will be notified. Cost of lunches remains the same as last year. Grades 9 through 12 will have a book rental fee of $7 with workbooks costing extra.

Kindergarten enrollment will be Aug. 19. Those students who will be ne v in Benton County R-II this year may enroll Aug. 24 to 27 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Non-teaching employes of the school are: Mrs. Orene Sartin, school nurse; Mrs. Evelyn Gardner, secretary to the superintendent; Mrs. Lora Gardner, teacher's clerk; Mrs. Clara McCubbin, Mrs. Gladys McCartney and Mrs. Irene Henry, school cooks; Theodore Fischer, Edward Kullmann and Mrs. Leota Fischer, custodians; Leo Hare and Jim Meuschke, bus contractors.

Full-Day Kindergarten For the Smithton School

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SMITHTON — The Smithton R-VI School will open for the 1970-71 term Aug. 31, with a full day of classes scheduled. Buses will run the same routes as last year for the first few days until parents and students can be notified of any changes necessary.

The enrollment schedule will be announced at a later date.

Arrangements have been made for kindergarten to meet all day this year so that transportation may be provided both ways for the children, complying with state requirements on kindergarten transportation.

Administrators for the year will be Wendell M. Ware, superintendent; Ben Walden, high school principal; and Mrs. Opal Johnson, elementary principal.

Two new faculty members will join the staff. John Miller, will teach social studies and coach junior high basketball, and George Bowers will teach junior high social studies. There is a need for a physical education and driver's education instructor due to a last minute resignation, Ware said.

Registration Date

Final registration for Sacred Heart Grade School will be held in the school cafeteria from 2 to 5:30 p.m. on Friday.

Medical education began at the University of Missouri-Columbia more than a century ago.

Corn Blight Is Causing Alarm

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — An epidemic of southern leaf blight, a fungus disease which attacks corn, is spreading across the United States and could destroy 50 per cent or more of the 1970 corn crop, a group of scientists and seed producers says.

The group, meeting at the University of Georgia, said in a series of reports Friday it had confirmed that the disease had hit the nation's corn belt and reached the epidemic stage as far north as Des Moines, Iowa, and Terre Haute, Ind.

They also said it may have spread into Canada.

Agriculture Department spokesmen in Washington said the disease had been found in at least 60 Illinois counties and as far north as Wisconsin. They said reliable estimates of damage in most areas were difficult to obtain but that field reports said corn production had been cut by 50 per cent in Mississippi and also reduced in other Southern areas.

Plant pathologists at Iowa State University said the blight had been spotted on one to two per cent of the plants in eastern and central Iowa.

A spokesman for the group in Athens, including 125 agriculturalists from 10 corn-growing states, said the seriousiness of the disease cannot be fully determined until after the fall harvest. However, he said that some members "are predicting that as much as 50 per cent or more of this year's anticipated yield could be lost."

The Department of Agriculture is estimating this year's corn crop at 4.6 billion bushels.

At current prices, the officialy said, such a loss could cost the nation's farmers more than $2.5 billion in income.

One of the agriculturalists said this would send corn prices skyrocketing, increasing costs for producers of poultry and livestock, because corn is a primary feed for both.

The officials said their estimates were based on what already has occurred in six Southern states.

"We don't know that it will hit the Midwest as hard as it has here," said one Southern scientist who asked that he not be quoted by name. "We're hoping and praying that it doesn't, but it's going to be a touch-and-go situation at best."

The officials—federal and state scientists, corn breeders and seed growers—met to share research data in a battle to cope with the disease.

In Washington, Dr. Harlan Smith, a U.S. Extension Service plant pathologist, said there is no effective treatment once the disease has started in corn plants. The remedy, he said, is in producing new, disease-resistant seeds.

He said southern leaf blight has existed for many years but hybrid corn had been developed to resist it. Now a new, more virulent form has emerged to attack these hybrids, Smith said.

No one is sure where the new fungus variety originated, Smith said, but it was reported earlier in the Philippines. Last year it attacked Florida sweet corn severely and has spread rapidly.

Ex-Addicts March To Help Others

EDITOR'S NOTE—An Associated Press writer interviewed a former drug addict as he and hundreds of other ex-addicts marched in a parade as part of New York's Drug-Out Day" Friday. Here is her report:

By JOAN TUMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Every time you stick the spike in your arm," said Glen Shelton, "you're risking your life cause the chances of 'O-D-ing' (taking an overdose) are pretty good."

Shelton, 22, of North Tarrytown, N.Y., was one of about 500 former drug addicts who joined Friday in a rally and march which marked "Drug-out Day" in New York.

The young addicts many still under treatment at city rehabilitation centers, moved beneath a sea of floating helium balloons and hand painted signs saying "dope is death" and "we can" as they marched up Sixth Avenue to the Central Park Band shell for a Drug-out rock show.

Shelton, as he marched, told of the lonely world of the addict where one's only concerns are the daily routine of "the search, the copping and the rush." Copping is the purchasing of drugs and the rush is the injection's effect.

The tall, slender ex-addict said he had experimented with drugs since high school, and had been on heroin for a year and a half until he "looked in the mirror one day and saw the condition I was in."

"My clothes were ragged, the tracks on my arms looked like something for the Penn Central railroad," he said, opening his arms, palms upward, to show the still-visible brown marks that showed the needle's path.

Shelton listened politely as Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and former baseball great Jackie Robinson addressed rally participants. Both men commended the young people for their efforts to focus nationwide attention on drug addiction.

Shelton said this effort was "long overdue" but still might turn many potential addicts away from heroin.

"The best time to catch a person is when's he's still thinking and just snortin' (sniffing heroin)" he said, "cause when he sticks that needle in his arm it'll be a long time before he knows what he's done to himself."

Shelton said he had been off heroin for two months, and was undergoing detoxification therapy at the Melrose Community Day Center, a Bronx drug rehabilitation center.

A Nose for Booze

PAW PAW, Mich.—(AP) — Mike, a Michigan State Police tracking dog, is also a booze hound.

Mike ran off into the woods while being exercised behind a tavern by Trooper John McKenzie—and returned a few minutes later with a fifth of wine in his mouth.

McKenzie released him again and the dog retrieved two more fifths.

The wine was believed to be part of loot stolen in recent burglaries of the tavern.

Indict Several In Kansas City For Gambling

KANSAS CITY(AP)—A federal grand jury indicted 12 persons Friday on charges of operating a gmalbing enterprise.

The indictments allege the defendants conspired and used interstate communications such as telephone in gambling and bookmaking on the outcome of sporting events from Oct. 1, 1969, to Jan. 1, 1970.

The government obtained evidence through the authorized wiretapping of at least two telephones.

Also, acting under the recently passed omnibus crime bill, the government granted two men immunity from prosecution in return for their promise to testify before the grand jury.

Torpedoed By Mate

HONOLULU (AP) — Allen C. Wilcox Jr., president of Alexander & Baldwin, says his wife wasn't happy over his firm's decision to take its subsidiary, Matson Navigation Co., out of the Pacific cruise business.

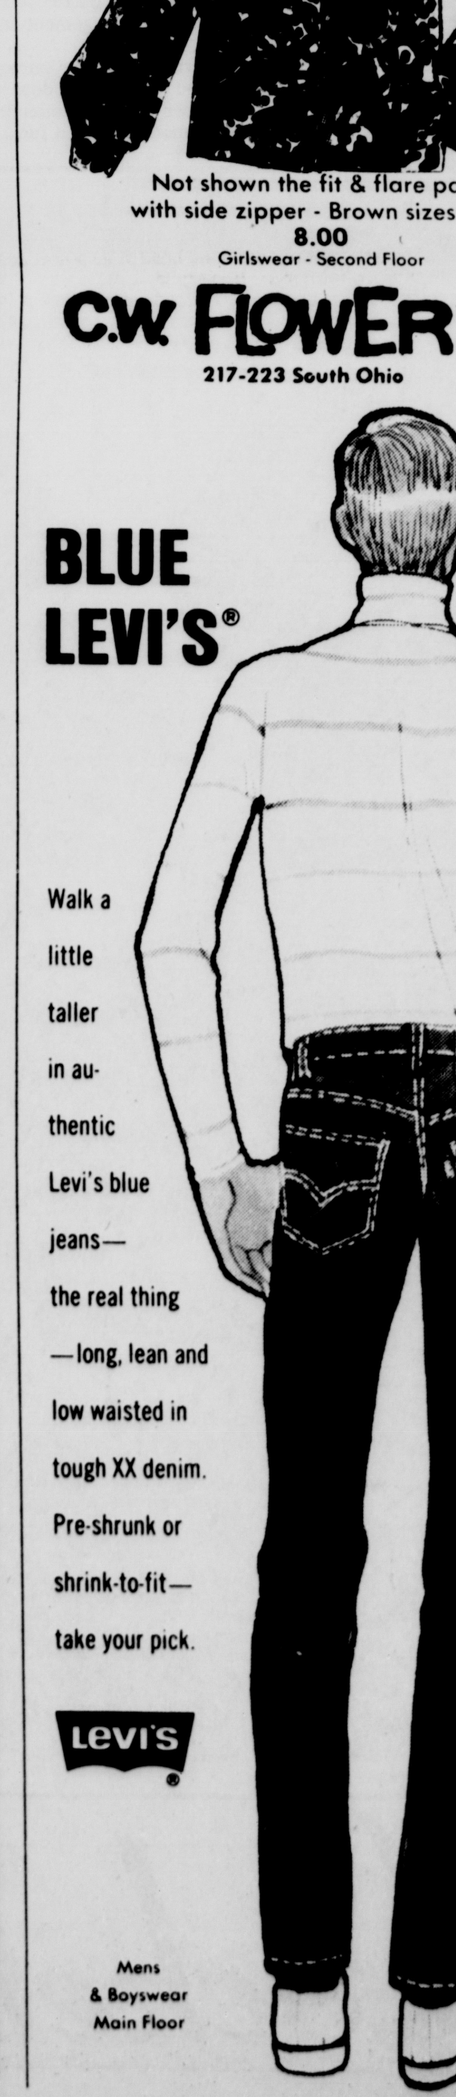

"She was planning a cruise in October," Wilcox said Friday. "I hadn't told her we were selling the ships."

This Week in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation this past week moved a step closer to abandoning the liberal foreign trade policy it has been pursuing since the 1930's.

At the same time, the country seemed to be pulling closer to a long-awaited upturn in the economy.

Chances that a major departure in trade policy would occur were improved by the House Ways and Means Committee's approval of trade legislation that would impose quotas on shoe and textile imports and would pave the way for import restrictions on a host of other products.

The bill contains a drastically revamped "escape clause," which would allow industries claiming injury from imports to petition for relief to the Tariff Commission.

The Nixon administration, which favors a continuation in substance of the present trade policy, is known to be cool to the bill approved by the Ways and Means Committee.

Nevertheless, the legislation approved by the committee represents something of a victory for the administration. The President had threatened to veto the original committee bill and under administration pressure a new proposal was drafted.

Evidence that the economic slowdown may have spent itself included the following news released this past week:

—Industrial production for July increased after a year of nearly uninterrupted decline.

—Revised estimates of the gross national product for the second quarter indicated that the production of goods and services was higher than had been originally reported.

—Total personal income surged upward in July.

—Corporate earnings, which had fallen sharply, didn't decline much further in the second quarter.

Less encouraging was a government report that the nation's unemployment rate bounced back up to 5 per cent in July to match the five-year high posted in May. Unemployment had dropped to 4.7 per cent in June.

The Commerce Department reported that total inventories held by manufacturing and trading companies rose $350 million in June although manufacturers reduced their stocks during the month for the first time since September 1967.

The June increase brought the total accumulation for the second quarter to $1.3 billion.

New car sales in early August fell 4 per cent from a year ago with dealers reporting sales of 148,577 American-type cars compared with 155.439 a year ago. This represented the lowest rate of sales for early August since 1963.

It was also learned this week that Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has been meeting with top auto industry officials in Detroit.

It was reported in Washington that McCracken and other top Nixon administration officials are keeping close watch on the auto talks and the automakers' apparent determination to push for price increases when they introduce the 1971 models next month.

Meanwhile, General Motors, the nation's largest automaker, agreed to pay consumer advocate Ralph Nader $425,000 in an out-of-court settlement of his suit against the company for alleged "Harassment" and invasion of privacy.

The suit alleged that in 1965 when GM learned of Nader's book charging the automakers failed to design safe cars, it started a campaign to intimidate the author and other potential critics of GM products. As part of that campaign, the suit alleged that GM hired a private investigation agency to inquire into Nader's private life.

Meanwhile, another critic who headed a study which concluded that the Federal Trade Commission should be completely reorganized or else abolished was named by President Nixon to head the agency.

He is Miles K. Kirkpatrick, a Philadelphia lawyer, who will replace Casper W. Weinberger as chairman. Weinberger has become a deputy director of the new Office of Management and Budget.

Kirkpatrick's nomination was announced hours after a departing member of the commission, Philip Elman, proposed fundamental changes in all the government's independent agencies that directly regulate business.

In another development his past week William H. Moore, executive vice president of the Southern Railway System, was named new president and chief executive officer of the Penn Central Transportation Co., which applied for reorganize under federal bankruptcy laws on June 21.

"I certainly realize the Penn Central has many, many problems," said the 55-year-old executive who has a reputation of being a tough, "old-line" railroad man. "But I feel capable of solving them, otherwise I would never have taken the job."

Curriculum Expanded At Stover

(Democrat-Capital Service)

STOVER — Vocational business education and vocational industrial arts have been added to the high school curriculum at the Morgan County R-1 School.

The business education curriculum will be taught in two-hour blocks, using two teachers in this department. Approved 11th and 12th grade industrial arts students will be transported to the area vocational school at Eldon for specialized classes.

Expected enrollment is 650 students when the school opens Aug. 31 with a full day of classes. Lunch will be served on that day.

According to Dean Ringen, high school principal and Ronnie Stephens, elementary principal, their offices will be open after Monday to enroll new students.

Six new staff members have been hired for the coming year. They are Karen Bellis, second section third grade; Lonnie Williams, special education; Carolee Sturble, fifth and sixth departmentalized; Betty Wienbery, fifth and sixth departmentalized; Thomas Bunch, jr. high math, and Emma Banks, junior high English.

No Action On TV Bill Is Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rush toward a 3½-week recess has delayed House consideration of a bill to limit campaign broadcast spending, leaving little hope the measure will have any effect on elections this fall.

"I don't think we will see much of it after the recess," Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said after Democrats looked at a quorum call and pulled the bill from Friday's calendar.

"I can't be sure it's dead for this year but between Sept. 9 and November there isn't much time," Ford said.

The recess began after only 253 of the 430 House members answered the quorum call. "We just didn't have the troops," said a Democratic leader in explaining the delay.

The recess will end Sept. 9, leaving less than two months before the November elections when a new House will be chosen.

Republicans are fighting the House-Senate conference committee version of the bill, mainly because of a clause which would put the spending limitations into effect 30 days after enactment.

Republicans charged that strategy was designed to favor incumbents in this year's elections—and there are more Democratic congressmen than Republicans.

The bill would allow a candidate to spend seven cents for each vote cast in the last election, or $20,000, whichever is higher. Ceilings for primaries would be half that total.

The bill would repeal the equal time requirement for candidates for president and vice president, and would prohibit broadcasters from charging higher political time rates.

Covered by the measure would be candidates for president, vice president, senator, representative, governor and lieutenant governor. Presidential primaries would be excluded.

The University of Missouri-Rolla granted 1,243 degrees in the 1969-70 fiscal year, more than any previous fiscal year.

U.S. Marine Convicted Of Murder in Vietnam

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — An 18-year-old U.S. Marine was convicted of unpremeditated murder Saturday in the slayings of 15 South Vietnamese women and children in a village southwest of Da Nang last Feb. 19.

Pfc. Samuel G. Green Jr. of Cleveland, Ohio, was the third man tried in the case so far and the second convicted. The maximum penalty for unpremeditated murder is life imprisonment.

A jury of three officers and two senior enlisted men found Green guilty after deliberating nearly all day. He was convicted of 15 counts of murder involving the slayings of four women and 11 children. He was acquitted of a 16th count involving the killing of another woman.

The young Marine took the jury's verdict with the same calm he showed during his one-day trial Friday. Afterward, apparently referring to his chances in the appeal that is automatic, Green said: "I think they'll get me off. I don't know."

The conviction came to some observers as a surprise. The government's key witness, another member of the roving "killer team" patrol that was involved in the incident, testified Friday that he did not see Green kill any of the victims.

Similar testimony by the same witness, Pfc. Michael S. Krichten, 19, of Hanover, Pa., had been instrumental in the previous acquittal of Pfc. Thomas R. Boyd, 19, of Evansville, Ind.

Already convicted of premeditated murder and sentenced to life in the case was Pvt. Michael A. Schwarz, 21, of Weirton, W.Va. Still awaiting trial is the patrol leader, Pvt. (then Lance Cpl.) Randell E. Herrod, 20, of Calvin, Okla. He was reduced to private after the killings for an incident that had nothing to do with the case.

Krichten, testifying Friday, said all 16 of the slayings were actually committed by Herrod and Schwarz but that Green fired his weapon on three occasions during the incident in Son Thang village, in the enemy-infested Que Son Valley.

Krichten was originally charged in the case but later was granted immunity in exchange for his testimony against the others.

In outlining its case, the prosecution had said Green should be convicted even though his M16 rifle shots did not cause "each and every death." The rounds fired along with those of the others caused the deaths, the prosecution claimed.

The defense contended that Krichten's testimony was supported by an absence of any other evidence that he killed anyone or was an accomplice to those responsible.

Willy Brandt To Send Envoys

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt will send envoys to Washington and Paris in the next few days for briefings on his Moscow talks with Soviet leaders, a government spokesman said today.

Brandt will send State Secretary Egon Bahr to Washington, while Paul Frank of the foreign ministry undertakes the Paris mission.

The task of informing the British government will be left to Bonn's ambassador to London, Karl Guenther Von Hase.

Bahr played a key part in preparing the Moscow treaty, in a series of meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Moscow.

The result was the "Bahr Paper" which formed the framework for the nonaggression pact signed by Brandt and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin last Wednesday.

The three envoys are expected to report back on Big Three reaction to Brandt's recent proposal for a western four-power summit meeting to discuss developments in West Germany's relations with the Soviet Union.

Linda Sticks to Story

Wins Freedom

Star prosecution witness Linda Kasabian, accompanied by two security guards, left the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles for a secret destination last week, a free woman after 14 days of testimony in which she related her version of the Tate - La Bianca murders last year. Mrs. Kasabian was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for her testimony in which she described what she saw the nights in which the hippie cult, led by Charles Manson, are accused of having murdered eight persons. (UPI)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm telling you the truth!" shouted Linda Kasabian, her face red with anger, as Charles M. Manson's lawyer began a last effort to discredit the state's star witness in the Sharon Tate murder trial.

The outburst came Friday as Irving Kanarek challenged the petite green-eyed witness' testimony that she once believed the shaggy-haired Manson was Jesus Christ, but stopped believing that during the Tate killings a year ago.

"I guess you would call it a vision," she said. "I had a vision in my head and I saw who he really was when I saw those things happening," the killings at the Tate home.

Kanarek asked if perhaps Mrs. Kasabian still believed Manson was Christ when he took her and other followers on a second foray which she says ended with the slayings of wealthy market owners Leno and Rosemary LaBianca.

"No!" Mrs. Kasabian shouted. "I'm telling you the truth, Mr. Kanarek . . . I realized the moment I saw Mr. Frykowski that I knew who he (Manson) was."

Manson, 35, is on trial for murder-conspiracy along with Susan Atkins, 21, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

Questioning of Mrs. Kasabian under recross-examination was interrupted when Kanarek produced a defense witness and asked that deposition testimony be taken without the jury present.

The witness, who identified himself as Marine Lance Cpl. Jon Marsh, said that in July 1969 he and a friend met Mrs. Kasabian and Miss Atkins at a beach.

Marsh said Mrs. Kasabian asked his friend, called "Picolo," if he had a hallucinogenic drug called psilocybin. He said the friend gave her some, she poured it in her mouth and then "they were jumping up and down around the beach and swimming. They had some dogs with them."

When Mrs. Kasabian resumed the witness stand, she was asked if she had taken psilocybin in July 1969. She reiterated earlier testimony that she took only one hallucinogenic drug that month and she didn't know what it was.

The 23-year-old Marine, upon leaving court, was seized and handcuffed by a military policeman and a shore patrolman. Authorities said later he had leave papers which indicated he should have been in San Francisco Thursday night and was AWOL.

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, mother of two babies and former Manson clan member, was granted immunity from prosecution for her testimony about the seven slayings. She was taken out a back door of the courthouse Friday to spend the weekend at a hideaway apartment, guarded by two policemen and a matron.

Q — Property owners are required to keep their lots free of noxious weeds, but Kroger's had done nothing about the north side of their lot. Also, what can be done in regard to the week patch on East Fifth across from the Post Office? — B.C. and G.L.

A — Sanitation Department director Arthur Bethke told Hot Line that Kroger's had been notified to clear their north lot. The local manager must first contact the building owner in Little Rock, however, and it has caused a delay. The woman who owns the property on East Fifth has also been contacted several times, Bethke said. Since she continues to refuse to clear her lot, it is likely a warrant will be signed for her arrest, he added. Under a tree and shrub ordinance passed last year, she is subject to a fine.

Q — Many people in Sedalia are wondering why the Sedalia merchants do not honor Sedalia Day during the State Fair by closing their shops. This practice was honored for many years and then suddenly discontinued. — Mrs. G.M.

A — P.J. Hedderich, president of the Downtown Merchants Association, told Hotline that it is up to the individual owner whether he wants to close or not. While many big stores are open, Hedderich pointed out that most hometown merchants close.

Nerve Gas Journey Helps Bunny Love

SUNNY POINT, N.C. (AP) — The rabbits which accompanied rail shipments of nerve gas this week from Army depots in Alabama and Kentucky to detect leaks have not only remained healthy—they have given birth to two more.

The rabbits will accompany an aged Liberty ship when it tows the gas into the Atlantic Ocean, but will be removed to a tug before the obsolete gas and the LeBaron Russell Briggs are sunk 283 miles east of Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Green Ridge Preparing For School

(Democrat-Capital Service)

GREEN RIDGE — Students at Green Ridge High School will begin classes full time Aug. 31 in both the secondary and elementary schools.

Elementary classes, which this year will include seventh and eighth grade—previously classed with the high school—will enroll the first day of school.

Robert L. Williamson, superintendent of schools, does not expect much change from last year's enrollments of 125 students in the high school, and 175 in the kindergarten through eighth grade.

For the second year the all-day kindergarten, which school officials describe as working very well, will be in operation with a new teacher, Mrs. Joyce Fischer.

Other new faculty members include: Miss Elaine Duehler, first grade; Mrs. Marjorie Meyer, second grade; Mrs. Jean Allen, elementary remedial reading; Mrs. Marvalee Flourney, fifth grade; Miss Linda Coons, sixth grade; Mrs. Merl Ragar, seventh grade, and Gerald McGee, high school English.

Tom Callahan, formerly sixth grade teacher, will be elementary school principal as well as teaching eighth grade.

The school board has two openings for teachers in the high school—for science and home economics.

The present medical program at the University of Missouri-Columbia dates from 1956 when the Medical Center was opened.

Two Teachers Required In LaMonte R-IV School

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LAMONTE — Two teaching positions remain open in the LaMonte R-IV school, according to Ordell Sholl, superintendent. The positions are in the fifth and seventh grades. The administration hopes to have the positions filled by the beginning of school, however.

Several school improvements have provided the school with better facilities. All the buildings have been cleaned and painted, and the playground area, which was black-topped previously, will be expanded. By fall new playground equipment should also be available for the students.

Elementary for the coming year includes:

Mrs. Marjorie Curtis, kindergarten; Mrs. Vivian Neff, first grade; Mrs. Georgia Neal, second grade; Mrs. Ruth Binderup, third grade; Mrs. Helen Chalfant, fourth grade; and Mrs. Ruth Hepler, sixth grade and Mrs. Mary Petering, eighth grade and elementary principal.

High school teachers will be: Mrs. Minnie Pummill and Mrs. Waunita Lovercamp, who is high school principal, both business education; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Pummill assisted by William Jones, physical education; Larry Pummill and Siebert McDaniel, mathematics; Mrs. Mary Weston and Ordell Sholl, language arts; William Jones, social studies; Siebert McDaniel, industrial arts; Mrs. Donna Baumgardner, home economics and science; Michael Rooks, vocal and instrumental music.

The bus drivers for the coming year are Claude Finley, Jr., Herbert Frerking, Jr., William Bennett and Eugene Trelow.

Custodians are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hinten and food service personnel will be Mrs. Gladys Schouten, Mrs. Vivian Breshears, and Mrs. Dorothy Dillon.

Enrollment for kindergarten will be at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 27, in the elementary building.

The elementary and high school will begin their new school year at 8:40 a.m. Aug. 28.

Seek Communist Teacher In Courthouse Shooting

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Warrants charge Communist philosopher Angela Davis with murder and kidnaping in the Marin County courthouse shootout Aug. 7 that left four dead including a judge, the sheriff's office said today.

The warrants, issued Friday night by Superior Court Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin County, were used later Friday night in a raid by heavily armed San Francisco police on a Potrero Hill district house.

Miss Davis, 26, was not at the house where police found her sister, Fania Jackson, 23, of Los Angeles, whom they questioned and released.

Mrs. Jackson was here to attend the funeral today of Jonathan Jackson, 17, the youth who supplied the weapons for the attempted escape of three convicts from a trial in a Marin Civic Center courtroom.

Young Jackson and two of the convicts were killed and Judge Harold J. Haley, 65, whom they took with four other persons as hostages, also was shot to death. A third convict and two of the other hostages were wounded.

Miss Davis—formerly an assistant professor of philosophy at the University of California at Los Angeles—previously had been reported by deputies to have purchased the guns used in the courthouse break.

Officers had told newsmen two of the guns used in the incident were registered in Miss Davis' name and said a third gun might have been purchased by her on July 25 from a Los Angeles surplus store.

And, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner reported today in a copyrighted article, the shotgun that killed Judge Haley was purchased by Miss Davis in San Francisco, just two days before the shooting. The newspaper attributed the report to "investigative sources." San Francisco police had no comment.

Efforts to contact Miss Davis throughout the week had ended in failure, prompting some of her former colleagues at UCLA to speculate she may have left the country.

Miss Davis was the center of controversy last year after University of California regents ordered her dismissed because of her communist party membership. A judge ordered her reinstated and her association with the university was not severed until her one-year contract expired.

The house raided by San Francisco police, at 298 Missouri St., has on its second floor a headquarters of the Soledad Brothers Defense Committee, in which Miss Davis has been active.

Jackson's brother, George, 28, is one of the three Negro convicts, known as the Soledad Brothers, for whom the committee is raising defense funds.

The three are accused of killing a white guard at Soledad State Prison Jan. 16, three days after three Negro convicts were killed by a guard's rifle fire while they were fighting in the prison exercise yard.

Miss Davis had been seen several times recently in the company of young Jackson, who witnesses said carried the weapons into the courtroom.

The Soledad convicts accused of the guard killing are scheduled to go on trial in San Francisco Sept. 21. They were moved to San Quentin Prison in Marin County from Soledad to await trial.

Moon Craters Will Be Named For Astronauts

BOSTON (AP) — The world's astronomers, meeting Monday in Brighton, England, will name three small craters on the visible face of the moon for Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, the first men to walk on the moon, and for Michael Collins, their Appollo 11 comrade who orbited above them, the Boston Globe said today in a copyright story.

The International Astronomical Union will also name several features on the far side of the moon for the late Yuri Garin, the first man to fly in space, and for several other dead and living Soviet cosmonauts, the Globe said.

The triennial assembly of astronomers will also act on a list of 500 lunar place names proposed for approval including the names of writers, scientist, and Greek mythological figures.

Cole Camp Prepared For Year

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLE CAMP — Registration for the opening day of school, Aug. 31, at Cole Camp public schools will begin Wednesday for all freshmen and for sophomores, whose last names begin with A through M.

The remaining sophomores, and the junior class members will register Thursday, while seniors will register Friday. About 240 students are expected in the high school this year.

Elementary pupils, kindergarten through eighth grade, will register the first day of school, which will be a full day of classes. New students should register prior to opening day. At present 425 students are expected at the elementary level.

New faculty members added this year are: William Smart, junior high physical education and mathematics; Mrs. Elizabeth Floyd, high school English, and Gary Hardison, high school music. The faculty roster for the year has been filled, school officials said.

A Partial Eclipse Of Moon Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — A partial lunar eclipse will begin Sunday night and be visible over most of North and South America, a Hayden Planetarium official said today.

The moon will enter the earth's shadow beginning at 9:07 p.m., EDT, Sunday.

Wallace Resigns Pastorate

The Rev. Jess Wallace

The Rev. Jess R. Wallace has resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church — Sedalia's largest church — effective Sept. 1 to accept the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Tecumseh, Okla.

Mr. Wallace, Mrs. Wallace and their three children came to Sedalia in October 1957 from Konowa, Okla. Under his leadership, the church has continued to be known as a Bible-centered, evangelistic congregation. During his pastorate, an educational building was constructed and the overall plant improved.

While in Missouri, Mr. Wallace served six years on the Executive Board of the Missouri Baptist Convention and eight years on the Missouri Baptist Children's Home Board. He also served on several committees of the state organization. He was moderator of the Harmony Baptist Association in 1961 and assisted in almost every department of associational work during his pastorate in Sedalia.

Mrs. Wallace has taught in the Sedalia public school system for several years.

Additions To Faculty At Warsaw

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — Eleven new members have been added to the faculty at Warsaw R-IX school, which will open Aug. 31.

Students will enroll Tuesday and Wednesday. The faculty will hold a workshop Aug. 26-28.

New additions to the high school curriculum include allied arts, world geography, business mathematics, and transformational grammar at the seventh and eighth grade levels.

New members added to the staff this year include: Darrell Rodman, senior high mathematics; Larry Tevis, junior high English; Miss Marilyn Hill, girls' physical education; Kenneth Kramme, senior high science; Richard Pemberton, senior high industrial arts; J. C. Owsley, senior high social studies; Dewey Hale, fifth grade; Miss Judy Kinkead, third grade; Mrs. Nancy Gardner, kindergarten; Mrs. Barbara Crowder, elementary special education, and Mrs. Mary Stalder, elementary physical education.

New Postal Emblem

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount has unveiled a new postal emblem and color scheme, replacing the old horse and post rider emblem. The new emblem features a dark blue eagle poised for flight on a white field, above red and blue bars farming the words, "U.S. Mail." The entire emblem is bordered with ochre.

Dixie Audience Hears Nixon on Desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, assuring Southern leaders of an even-handed policy on school desegregation, says he has no intention of waiting for trouble before enforcing the law.

After meeting in New Orleans Friday with federally sponsored citizens committees on desegregation from seven states, Nixon said:

"I believe that leadership in an instance like this requires some preventive action. We are trying to take some preventive action and we are getting magnificent cooperation from dedicated people in seven states involved."

The President was greeted warmly on a motorcade through downtown New Orleans. He offered no new policy in his statements about school desegregation, but it was considered significant the comments were made to an audience in the Deep South.

"I emphasize this is one people, and we are going to carry out the law that way, not in a punitive way, treating the South as basically a second-class part of the nation," Nixon told newsmen in relating details of the meeting with Southern leaders.

But, he added, his administration will exercise strong leadership on desegregation "because we believe in order and justice and believe in enforcing the law."

Resistance to integration, the President declared, will hurt mostly the next generation of Southerners. "They will pay the price, the price for failure of leadership," he declared.

He urged members of the local advisory committees to use their leadership to prevent possible disruption and unrest accompanying the breakdown of separate school systems.

California R-I Adds Teachers

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CALIFORNIA — Five new teachers have been added in California R-I School of Moniteau County. Classes will begin at the school Aug. 31, including kindergarten through 12th grade.

The new teachers beginning the school year:

Miss Peggy Jo Ballinger, science and biology. She is a 1970 graduate of Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, with a major in biology.

Mrs. Arlene Su, a 1967 graduate from the School of the Ozarks, with a major in physical education, will teach health and physical education.

A 1970 graduate of the University of Missouri, Miss Victoria Louise Counsil will teach mathematics.

Mark Alan Meinhardt, a 1966 graduate from Central Methodist College with a political science major, will teach social studies and will be an assistant coach.

Wayne Martin Brooks, who graduated from Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia, Kan., in 1970 with a major in social studies, will teach social studies and be an assistant coach.

Total enrollment for the junior and senior high school will be 590.

Kindergarten Is Scheduled At 2 Schools

(Democrat-Capital Service)

Green Ridge kindergarten will again be run on a regular school schedule, with students arriving in the morning and remaining throughout the afternoon. It was the first kindergarten of this type in Pettis County when it began last year.

The first day of classes this year will be held Aug. 31, with 20 pupils enrolled. Mrs. Joyce Fischer will begin her first year with the kindergarten. She replaces Mrs. Gerald McGee, who has retired.

Smithton school will also have a new kindergarten, on the same basis as the one at Green Ridge. This full day for the students will take the place of the former separate morning and afternoon sessions.

The Smithton classes will also begin Aug. 31 with 25 students enrolled. The kindergarten will be held in the building formerly occupied by Dr. Pete Siegel.

Tipton Plans For Enrollment Of About 800

(Democrat-Capital Service)

TIPTON — An enrollment of more than 800 students is expected at Tipton's public schools on opening day, Aug. 31. The high school will have 325, and the kindergarten through eighth grades will total 484.

Aug. 31 will be a half-day session, with full-day schedules beginning the following day. Freshmen entering the high school will register Aug. 27 and 28.

New enrollees in the elementary and high schools will register on the first day of school. The faculty meets Aug. 27 at the high school.

New additions to the elementary faculty include: Mrs. Mildred Dillon, first grade, and Mrs. Anna Eldenburg, elementary special education. In the high school new are Richard Logan, foreign languages; John Cheary, music; Gary Driver, art, and Mrs. Joan Rages, home economics.

Hughesville Enrollment Increasing

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HUGHESVILLE — An increase of about 20 per cent in student enrollment is expected in Hughesville schools, which will open Aug. 31 with a half-day session, followed with a full-day session Sept. 1.

Enrollment for freshmen and sophomores at Northwest High School will be held all day Aug. 27, and for juniors and seniors Aug. 28. The elementary and kindergarten pupils will enroll the first day of school.

A faculty meeting and workshop will be conducted Aug. 26 at the high school.

The enrollment increase is due to population growth in the Hughesville area, and will bring the present enrollment to about 425 pupils, Superintendent of Schools William S. Spears said.

New faculty members include Mrs. Susan Sanger, kindergarten; Gary Kinder, elementary music; Mrs. Donna Ray, third grade; Miss Maria Sidebottom, high school music, and Mrs. Jean Ann Pepin, high school mathematics.

Mrs. Susan Phillips, kindergarten teacher, will teach the seventh grade.

Add Rooms At Versailles R-II School

(Democrat-Capital Service)

VERSAILLES — Four new classrooms will brighten opening day at the R-II school of Morgan County at Versailles, Aug. 31. Two high school classrooms and two kindergarten rooms were built during the summer.

New teachers added to the faculty are: Prince Deall, junior high school mathematics; Mrs. Gloria Knipp, librarian; Larry Donley, junior high school social studies; David Cameron, basketball coach and physical education instructor; and Mrs. Tom Kuruz, fourth grade.

There's a Grand Bit of Great Britain in Every Bite!

And, thereby hangs a tale.

You think Fish & Chips are just fried fish and potatoes? My word, Sir (or Madam), do you know what you're saying? To call Alfie's Fish & Chips "just fried fish and potatoes", is like saying the London Symphony is just a group of fiddlers! It's like saying Great Britain is just an island! (The very idea!!)

But how to describe Alfie's Fish & Chips? The mind boggles! I can tell you that the Fish are tender, flaky filets, fried crackling crisp in fresh, hot oil. The Chips are golden bits of fried potato. But what's been done? You can't really eat words, that's just a saying! There's nothing else to do . . . you'll just have to eat Alfie's Fish & Chips! Be sure to splash on plenty of Alfie's exclusive malt vinegar . . . which is neither malt nor vinegar . . . but a zesty, tangy, imported flavoring you'll find only at Alfie's! Once you've eaten Alfie's Fish & Chips, you'll know the answer to our question!

Alfie's Fish & Chips are Covent Garden, The Beatles, Robin Hood, Mary Quant, Selfridge's, The Red Lion, Piccadilly, Shakespeare . . . and all the rest!!

Utah College Students Are Active in Election

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah college students, spurred by success at state party conventions, are working to make their voices heard in fall legislative campaigns.

The students are being organized under a nonpartisan project known as Participation 70.

The main thrust "is to build a favorable climate in the legislature," said Suzanne Dean, Project 70 chairman.

"We want to communicate student desires to the legislators and work toward goals such as lowering the voting age, obtaining adequate financing for higher education and avoiding the passage of repressive legislation," she added.

Earlier this year, Participation 70 leaders urged students to attend local mass meetings where delegates to state conventions were chosen, and, Miss Dean said, 500 to 1,000 did.

The Democratic convention had 170 students among its 1,500 delegates. They concentrated on the Resolutions Committee and won approval for resolutions against U.S. participation in the Vietnam war and in support of voluntary abortion and sterilization.

Fewer students were elected to the Republican convention, but they said their voices were heard behind the scenes.

"We felt that if student participation died out after the convention," Miss Dean said, "we would be opening ourselves to the charges that students lose interest rapidly and don't care to work hard for their goals."

Plans are being made to provide block-by-block supervision of efforts to register students to vote, to see that they have a chance to learn the issues and that they actually vote.

Candidates for both parties will be supplied with names of students who have indicated a willingness to work for them.

"The candidates are amazed to find out we have so many voters up here," the 21-year-old chairman said.

The nonpartisan nature of Participation 70 is illustrated by the fact that Miss Dean is a Republican, while cochairman Scott Anderson is a Democrat. Both are students at the University of Utah.

Added Space Is Required To Meet Needs

Striped College has installed two additional classrooms and added four teachers to handle the increased enrollment this school year, which will begin Sept. 8.

The new classrooms became available when the auditorium was divided. New teachers are Mrs. Lois Shirkey, eighth grade; Jerry Brock, seventh grade; Mrs. Carol Klein, fourth grade; Mrs. Barbara Morrison, first grade.

Sweet Springs R-I school has enrolled students ranging from the first to the sixth grades. Classes begin Aug. 31. New enrollees will register on the first day of school.

R-12 School, including the Dresden and Oak Grove districts, will open Sept. 8 with full day classes. Like High Point School, which will also open on that day, eight grades are taught.

An entering class of 100 is accepted annually for medical studies at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Otterville Will Begin Aug. 31

(Democrat-Capital Service)

OTTERVILLE — The Otterville R-VI School will open the 1970-71 school year at 8:30 a.m. Aug. 31, when all students from kindergarten through grade 12 will be present.

Students in grades kindergarten through sixth should report to their regular classrooms, and students in grades 7 through 12 should report to the auditorium for general introductions and announcements.

Grades 7 and 8 will be operating on a junior high basis and will have the same teachers that teach the high school subjects.

Buses will run their regular schedules on Aug. 31, and students are asked to be at their previous year pick-up spots on this first day of school.

On Aug. 31, a half-day of school will be held with students being dismissed at noon. Sept. 1 will be a regular day of school, with the morning session from 8:30 to 11 a.m. and the afternoon session from 12:24 to 3 p.m.

Tuesday will also be the first day that the cafeteria will be in operation. Lunches will remain at 30 cents.

Pre-enrollment for grades 9 through 12 will be on Aug. 20. Freshmen and sophomores are asked to enroll from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and juniors and seniors should enroll from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Changes of Staff For Knob Noster

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Several changes have taken place this year in the administrative staff in the Knob Noster school system. Two who will remain in their same positions are James Jageman, who is starting his 17th year as superintendent, and Mrs. Louise McDowell, who is in her 10th year as principal at Whiteman Elementary School.

Other administrators have changed positions or are new in the system. Thomas Fairlie has been appointed junior high principal for 1970-71. Last year he was administrative assistant and taught junior high art the previous five years. He has completed his master's degree in school administration.

Fred Frye, who was junior high principal the past four years, will become curriculum coordinator for the junior and senior high and counselor and basketball coach for the junior high.

A new senior high school principal Richard Roda, is filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Harold McGuire. Roda has taught at Gallatin and Blue Springs. He received his training at Kansas State in Manhattan, Kan., and Central Missouri State College.

With the resignation of James E. Graves, Fred H. Price has been selected elementary principal. He has been employed in the Raytown school system and completed his master's degree in elementary school administration at Central Missouri State College. He is currently working on a specialist degree.

Mrs. Rita Tomburrini will be a fulltime counselor at the senior high this fall, serving in similar capacity to her junior high job last year.

Transferred to part time counselor and assistant principal at the senior high is John Parker. He will continue as varsity basketball coach and will have an office on the ground floor across from the cafeteria.

Law courses at the University of Missouri-Columbia are fully accredited.

Postal Clerks Seem In a Militant Mood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nationwide postal clerks convention has voted to back repeal of laws making strikes by federal employes illegal and to support total amnesty for postal workers who struck last March.

The AFL-CIO union, which says it represents 300,000 postal clerks, put the questions to a vote of 2,300 members present Friday.

Stan Allen, a spokesman for the clerks, said the union was not aware of any impending governmental action against the 150,000 clerks who struck for wage raises in March.

Thank you...

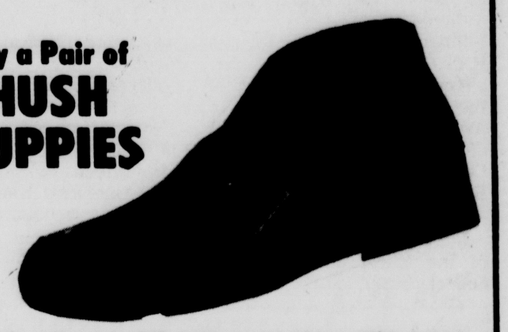

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the voters of the Western District for their vote of confidence in the recent election. To all those who worked in my behalf, your help was sincerely appreciated.

I will strive, as I have in the past, to faithfully serve to the best of my ability.

Miss Patricia Jean Gray

Miss Patryca L. Tebbenkamp

T-Sgt. (ret.) and Mrs. Charles R. Gray, Knob Noster, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Jean, to Arthur Jackson Collins II, son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. James E. F. Collins, Whiteman Air Force Base.

Miss Gray is a 1968 graduate of the European Dependents School, Izmir, Turkey, and a sophomore physical education major at Central Missouri State College.

Mr. Collins, a 1968 graduate of Knob Noster High School, also attends CMSC and is a junior majoring in accounting.

A winter wedding is planned.

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Tebbenkamp, Concordia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patryca Lynn, to David William Bock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bock, Alma, Mo.

Miss Tebbenkamp is a 1970 graduate of Concordia High School and Mr. Bock graduated from Santa Fe High School, Alma, in 1968.

Oehrke-Gardner Exchange Wedding Vows

Sacred Heart Church was the scene of the August 13 wedding of Miss Judy Ann Oehrke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin C. Oehrke, Route 1, and Thomas L. Gardner, son of Mrs. Mary T. Gardner, 504 South Grand and the late Lawrence F. Gardner Jr.

The Rev. Father Ron Hoenninger performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with arrangements of white mums, purple asters and seafoam statice. Spiral candelabra entwined with smilax and white satin bows flanked the altar and large emerald palms were at the communion steps.

Miss Debbie Eckhoff, organist, accompanied Dick Esser as he sang, "I Believe," "Ave Maria," "More," "One Hand, One Heart," and "The Lord's Prayer." The processional was "March Nuptiale" and the recessional was "March Nuptiale No. 2."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length, empire styled white dotted swiss gown. Venise lace formed the high neckline and cuffed the full Bishop sleeves. Lace tatting encircled the waist and bordered the watteau train which fell from the empire waist. Appliqued daisies of Venise lace graced the skirt and train and the cathedral length illusion veil was secured by a camelot cap of matching Venise lace. The gown was designed by the bride and fashioned by Mrs. Jim Reed.

The bride's bouquet was an Edwardian style of white roses, and lily of the valley accented with purple seafoam statice and lavender streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Jerri Lynn Oehrke, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Gary Weller was a bridesmaid. Miss Diana Oehrke, sister of the bride, was a junior bridesmaid.

They wore identical gowns styled in an A-line empire waist silhouette. The lavender dotted swiss gowns had short puffed sleeves and embroidered lace centered lavender daisies enhanced the high necklines and encircled the empire waistlines. A deep violet ribbon and streamers fell from the waists. They carried colonial bouquets of purple asters and lavender pompons with deep purple streamers. In their hair they wore headbands of matching flowers.

(Lehmer Studio)

MRS. THOMAS GARDNER
Miss Judy Ann Oehrke

Miss Janet Marie Weller, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length gown identical to the other attendants and carried a princess basket with lavender trim. Ringbearer was Chris Hanrahan, nephew of the groom.

Best man was Lanny Palmer and groomsmen were Gary Weller and John R. Van Dyne III. John Boyd, Jim Reed and Dale Cairer were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore a beige ribbon lace dress in an A-line design with matching accessories. The groom's mother wore a white and silver metallic knit dress with matching accessories. Both had corsages of purple orchids.

Maxine's Gourmet House was the scene of the reception following the ceremony. The serving table was covered with a floor length lace tablecloth over lavender satin and garlanded with smilax and lavender bows.

The three tiered lavender and white scalloped wedding cake centered the table and was topped with an arrangement of purple seafoam statice and miniature pompons. Silver candelabra with lavender tapers flanked the cake.

Serving were Miss Kathy Palmer, Miss Dixie Kemp and Miss Linda Boyd. At the gift table were Miss Mary Ellen Fischer and Miss Linda Stone and presiding at the guest book was Miss Linda Reed.

For traveling on a wedding trip to Northern Arkansas, the bride chose a pink and white striped knit dress with matching accessories.

The couple will reside in Sedalia where the groom will be a student at State Fair Community College majoring in sociology and the bride will attend Central Missouri State College majoring in business administration.

Bunceton Church Is Scene Of Hudson-Jones Wedding

Miss Betty Sue Hudson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Corydon Hudson, Bunceton, became the bride of Philip Edward Jones, son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip M. Jones, Shawnee Mission, Kan., Saturday night at the Bunceton Baptist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the bride's father before an altar decorated with bouquets of pink gladioli and white mums. A large Bible with a long stemmed pink rose highlighted the center of the altar and vine entwined candelabra holding pink tapers flanked the setting.

Mrs. John Gerhardt, organist, played traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. David Reedle who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Richard Setzer, the bride wore a floor length gown of white lace and satin. The bodice featured long sleeves with lace scallops at the wrists and the scoop neckline was adorned with appliqued roses and pearls. A white satin band and bows highlighted the empire waistline and the lace train, attached at the shoulders, was edged in scalloped lace. A satin pillbox hat held her bridal illusion veil and was set with lace scallops and pearls.

She carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses centered with two white cymbidium orchids and trimmed with ribbon lace streamers.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Larry Stewart, and Miss Karen Long, bridesmaid, wore princess style floor length gowns of pink satin crepe featuring high neckline and puff sleeves. The empire waistlines were encircled with white sequin trim and a pink bow and streamers decorated the back. They wore pink satin hats with white sequin trim in a pillbox style with pink illusion veils and carried nosegays of white carnations and pink pompon mums with pink ribbon streamers.

MRS. PHILIP E. JONES
Miss Betty Sue Hudson

Miss Ronda Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rodgers, was flower girl and was dressed similar to the other attendants. Allan Joe Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foster, was the ringbearer.

Candlelighters were Miss Ronda Setzer, and Master Tony Caldwell.

Acting as best man was John Jones, brother of the groom, and groomsman was John Kovar. Ushers were Richard Nelson and Charles Scott.

The mother of the bride wore a green knit dress with beige accessories. The groom's mother wore a blue knit dress with beige accessories and both mothers wore corsages of pink cymbidium orchids.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the church. A four tiered cake trimmed with pink roses and sugar bells centered the serving table. The cake was topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom.

Serving were Mrs. Riley Edwards, Mrs. Robert Case, Mrs. Robert Foster, and Mrs. Jim Moore. Miss Debbie Gerhardt and Miss Sandra Hazlett presided at the gift table.

For a wedding trip to Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas, the bride chose a blue knit dress with white accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids from her bouquet.

The couple will reside at Knollwood Apartments, North Kansas City.

Napoleon's Victory Dinner

Chicken Marengo was Napoleon's victory dish.

Napoleon's chef, Dunand, created his now-famous dish to celebrate Napoleon's defeat of the Austrians in the north Italian village of Marengo June 14, 1800.

Chicken Marengo basically is sauteed chicken and other good things in a splendidly seasoned sauce. Napoleon's original "poulet saute" has many variations. Still basic are garlic, onion, tomato and mushrooms but many add sweet Italian sausage with its fennel flavor, or ripe olives, celery, sweet pepper or parsley flakes. It is still a treat for a victorious emperor or husband or boy friend.

CHICKEN MARENGO WITH MUSHROOMS

- 1 pound sweet Italian sausage links, sliced
- 4 tablespoons salad or olive oil
- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in pieces
- 1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) tomato puree
- 1 can (8 oz.) stuffed green olives, sliced
- ½ cup mixed vegetable flakes
- 1½ teaspoons Italian seasoning
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon instant garlic powder
- ½ cup water or chicken broth
- ¼ cup liquid drained from olives

In a Dutch oven brown sausage. Reserve sausage, discard fat. In Dutch oven heat 2 tablespoons of the butter and the oil. Add chickens and saute until brown. Remove chickens. Add tomato puree to drippings along with seasonings, water and olive liquid. Return chickens and sausage to pan. Cover and simmer until chickens are tender. Meanwhile, rinse, pat dry and trim stem ends of mushrooms. Saute in remaining 2 tablespoons butter until pale gold. Ten minutes before cooking time is up add mushrooms to Dutch oven.

SFCC Practical Nurses Graduate

The President's luncheon honoring the graduating practical nursing students was held Thursday at the Coffee Pot Restaurant. Honorees were: Miss Terri Alcorn, Sedalia; Miss Mary Kathleen Baugher, Sedalia; Mrs. Norma Coffey, Lincoln; Mrs. Sharon Farrington, Cole Camp; Miss Martha Goetz, Cole Camp; Mrs. Jeanette Hancox, W.A.F.B.; Miss Rhonda Hassler, Otterville; Mrs. Emily Himmer, W.A.F.B.; Mrs. Helen Kranz, Cole Camp; Mrs. Maurine Lane, Sedalia; Mrs. Pearl McHenry, Windsor; Miss JoAnn Rodick, Sedalia; Mrs. Malva Sanders, Florence; Miss Ruth Ann Wienberg, Ionia; and Mrs. Goldie Sue Williams, Sedalia.

The program was highlighted by a message read to the group by President Fred E. Davis from William C. Hopkins, President of the Board, State Fair Community College, congratulating the class on their successful completion of the program.

Hopkins pointed out that "the Practical Nursing Program ... will cause the Pettis-Benton County areas to be way out in front of most rural areas in the country as far as health and social services."

Certificates and pins were presented to the students by Dr. Marvin R. Fielding, Dean of Vocational Technical Education, Mrs. Dixie Collins, R.N. and Mrs. June Hieronymus, R.N., Instructors. Special honors were presented by Mrs. Yolanda Dolecki, Coordinator of the program.

Outstanding Students Honored

Mrs. Emily Himmer, W.A.F.B., left, and Mrs. Goldie Sue Williams, Sedalia, second from left, were named as the winners of the Rhonda Roadrunner all around student practical nurse award at the President's luncheon honoring the graduating practical nursing students Thursday. Also named was Mrs. Helen Kranz, Cole Camp, second from right, and Mrs. Yolanda Dolecki, coordinator of the program, right, received special honors from the class.

The Rhonda Roadrunner all around student nurse award was given to two students: Mrs. Emily Himmer and Mrs. Goldie Sue Williams. An honorable mention award went to Mrs. Helen Kranz. The students selected Mrs. Emily Himmer as Miss Congeniality; Mrs. Norma Coffey as Miss Conviviality and Mrs. Sue Williams as Miss Intrinsic Factor. Miss Terri Alcorn presented the college, in behalf of the class, with $25 for the Frances Ward Memorial Fund.

Vignettes included the Class will and citations to the administration faculty.

Club Notes

The State Fair Saddle Club met with a covered dish dinner Thursday at the R.E.A. building. A film on the qualities and abilities of the quarter horse was shown by club president, John England.

Bob Griffith and Ernest Jones were welcomed into the club.

Church Notes

The Mission Action Group of the Bethany Baptist Church met Tuesday with Mrs. Sarah Hollcroft. Mrs. Jerry Brock was welcomed as a guest.

Mrs. Claude Cooper presided at the business session and Mrs. Clyde DeHaven gave the devotion. Mrs. Dewey Osborn presented the program.

Miss Linda Pearson Marries Dennis Ball

Miss Linda Sue Pearson and Dennis Ray Ball were united in marriage in a late afternoon ceremony on August 8, by Rev. Marvin T. Nobles at the New Hope Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William L. Pearson, 1004 West 16th, and the late Mr. Pearson and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorman E. Ball, Route 1.

The double ring ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with an arrangement of yellow and white killion daisies and babies breath. The altar was flanked by brass candelabra, each trimmed with palm and yellow bows. In front of these were white urns on pedestals which held arrangements of yellow and white killion daisies and babies breath. The pews were marked by yellow bows trimmed with daisies and greenery and a white carpet covered the center aisle.

Keith Owen, organist, cousin of the bride, played "Climb Ev'ry Mountain" and the theme from "Romeo and Juliet," and accompanied Mrs. Dorothy Owen, as she sang, "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by Edwin Shoemaker, the bride wore an empire styled gown of chantilly lace and silk organza. The bibbed effect bodice had a high neckline and the long Victorian sleeves were fashioned from chantilly lace and embroidered with seed pearls. The A-line skirt was of silk organza with a detachable cathedral train which was edged with scalloped chantilly lace.

The bride's elbow-length mantilla and Spanish style comb were brought to her as a gift from Madrid, Spain, by her aunt Mrs. Chester Tucker. Her bouquet was a cluster of white marguerite daisies.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Janice Finnell, who wore a floor-length bright yellow skirt of crepe radiance and a white crepe blouse with full Victorian sleeves. Soft ruffles and covered yellow buttons trimmed the front and cuffs of the blouse.

MRS. DENNIS RAY BALL
Miss Linda Sue Pearson

Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Kovachevich, Miss Diane Linville and Mrs. Barbara Turner. Their pale yellow skirts and white blouses were identical to that of the matron of honor. In their hair they wore bands of small yellow daisies and babies breath and they carried white baskets arranged with yellow and white marguerite daisies and babies breath.

Gary Jones was best man and groomsmen were Bill Koehler, Dean Thomas, and Bob Hagerman. Alan Litz and Dean Thomas lighted candles and served as ushers.

The mother of the bride wore a lime green crepe sheath dress with white accessories and the groom's mother wore a light brown linen dress with brown accessories. White daisy corsages were worn by both mothers.

Daisy corsages were also presented to Mrs. Rhoda Williams and Mrs. Jack Gann, grandmothers of the groom, Mrs. Chester Tucker, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Edwin Shoemaker.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the Ambassador Room at the Bothwell Hotel. The serving table was decorated with white table cloths covered with a yellow nylon illusion. Champagne glasses separated the three tiered wedding cake which was trimmed with yellow daisies and topped with a nosegay of yellow and white marguerite daisies. Silver candelabra with epergne arrangements of yellow and white daisies and babies breath flanked the cake.

Serving were Miss Cathy Grant, Miss Shelia Linville and Mrs. Sharon Woolery. Miss Gail Kemna and Mrs. Diane Heckemeyer received gifts and Mrs. Linda McCubbin was in charge of the guest book. Assisting generally was Mrs. Grace Tucker, Landover Hills, Md., aunt of the bride.

For traveling the bride chose a shrimp-colored sleeveless double knit dress with black patent accessories. Her corsage, lifted from her bridal bouquet, was of white marguerite daisies.

After a wedding trip through Texas they will be at home at Alton Apartments in Independence, Missouri.

The grooms parents hosted a rehearsal dinner for the bridal party at The Hickory House the evening preceding the wedding.

Nancy Downs Joins PanAm As Hostess

Miss Nancy Downs

Miss Nancy Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Downs, 600 West Fourth, recently received her "gold wings" as a stewardess for Pan-American Airlines at graduation ceremonies held in the Pan-Am Building, New York City.

N. E. Halaby, president of the airline, awarded the wings to the former Sedalia girl, who completed training for international flight stewardesses in Miami, Fla.

A 1966 graduate of Sacred Heart High School, Miss Downs attended Ibero-Americana University in Mexico City, in the summer of 1968 while living with the family of a Mexican industrialist. A graduate of Loretto Heights College, Denver, Colo., with a bachelor of arts degree in Spanish last May, she spent her junior year at the University of Madrid in Spain under the "junior year abroad" program sponsored by Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

Miss Downs, who is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. F. Downs, 716 West Seventh, is presently based in New York, and from there makes flights aboard 747 jets to the Caribbean area, the Mid-East, and the Netherlands.

MRS. JERRY LEE MATTHEWS
Miss Emily Ann Rhodes

Rhodes - Matthews Exchange Nuptial Vows

Miss Emily Ann Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Rhodes, Knob Noster, became the bride of Jerry Lee Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. Matthews, Carthage, Mo., August 8th, at the First Presbyterian Church, Knob Noster.

The Rev. James W. Williams, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Two candelabras, holding eight white tapers, and decorated with greenery and pink and lavender ribbon formed the background.

Miss Jacklyn Burnett, organist, played a prelude of organ selections and the traditional wedding marches. She also accompanied Michael Mills of Knob Noster, who sang, "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

Miss Libby Gumm and Miss Joan Walter were the candlelighters. They wore lavender floor length empire gowns of dotted flock, with white satin ribbon trimming the bodice, and carried bouquets of pink tipped pompons centered with pink candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of candlelight silk peau de soie, styled with sheer long puffed sleeves, and the bodice and neckline were accented with Venise lace. The floor length mantilla veil, which formed the train of the gown, was edged in the same Venise lace.

She carried a colonial bouquet of stephanotis, pink rosebuds and lavender bachelor buttons.

Miss Deborah Rhodes, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Saults, cousin of the bride, and Miss Chris Poggi. They wore pink floor length empire gowns of dotted flock with short puffed sleeves, and white lace accented the neckline and bodice. They wore picture hats of the pink flock accented at the crown with lace, and carried colonial bouquets of pink rosebuds and white and lavender pompons.

Eugene Matthews, the bridegroom's father, was the best man and Bert Roberts, and Martin Lown were the groomsmen; and Jim Sellers and Bob Kendrick acted as ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Rhodes wore a dress of pink peau de soie, appliqued at the neckline and sleeve edge with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Matthews, the bridegroom's mother, wore an aqua sheath dress, trimmed in matching lace with matching accessories, and a white cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Stanford Elliott, the bride's grandmother, wore a blue lace dress with a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Miss Carol Gee, attended the guest book, and Miss Cynthia Smith, was in charge of the gifts.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Warrensburg Country Club. The bride's table was covered with a floor length pink taffeta cloth with white net overlay. The table was centered with a three tier square wedding cake, decorated with love birds, sugar bells, lavender pompons, and topped with a nosegay of pink rosebuds, bachelor buttons and lavender pompons. The cake was encircled with leather leaves.

Assisting at the reception were Miss Susan Hughes, Mrs. Michael Wark, and Mrs. Wallace Wimer.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 2100 East 51st Street, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

The bride has completed two years at the University of Missouri at Columbia, and will continue her education at the University of Tulsa, majoring in Language Arts.

Mr. Matthews was a 1969 graduate at the University of Missouri at Rolla with a BS Degree in Geology. He is now a second year law student at the University of Tulsa School of Law.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Matthews, parents of the groom, entertained at a rehearsal dinner, August 7th, at the Holiday Inn in Warrensburg, for members of the wedding party.

Quotable Women

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"The themes of today's music are protest—war, drugs, racism and poverty. They respond to it, they imitate it and the classical just doesn't reach them as well as their own music."—Jacquelyn Hardy, teacher in an experimental program in Baltimore in which schools will integrate rock, soul and country and Western music into their basic music courses.

"V.C. very strong, but Cambodians will win because they fight with a full heart."—Neta Bory, 14-year-old girl rifleman in the Cambodian army.

"It's a square job, but beautiful. After all, how often do you get a chance to be nice all the time? To express appreciation for the good things people do?"—Actress Laraine Day, who presents official commendations from the National Association of Real Estate Boards for accomplishments in its Make America Better program.

"I'm not sure what women's liberation is all about, but I think women should do whatever they want."—Tammy Grimes, at a women's liberation fund-raising party.

Sheila Witt Is Married To Michael Judd

Miss Sheila Dawn Witt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Witt, Richland, became the bride of Michael Ray Judd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Judd, Knob Noster, August 4th, at the First Christian Church, Richland.

Brother Henry B. Pratt, pastor of the First Christian Church, Rolla, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Baskets of white gladioli, white chrysanthemums, pink baby's breath and greenery, flanked with a nine-branch candelabra holding white tapers, formed the background. A large white decorated wedding candle, with lighted single tapers on each side, highlighted the altar.

Mrs. Ogle Hopkins, the organist, played a prelude of appropriate nuptial selections. She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Giebler, who sang "We Would Be True," and "They'll Know We Are Christians By Our Love."

Following the exchange of rings the wedding candle was lighted from the tapers, which were then extinguished.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of peau de soie. The bodice was fashioned with rose point lace, and was styled with long slightly full lace sleeves banded tightly at the wrists, and had a high neckline with an old fashioned lace stand-up collar. The floor length skirt was bordered with matching lace, and slightly gathered with a brush train. Attached at the shoulders was a chapel length train edged in lace with a band of lace matching the skirt. A white bandeau of pearl trimmed lace secured the elbow length three-tiered veil of hand-rolled imported pure silk illusion. She carried an arrangement of white orchids, white baby's breath, and white lace ribbon streamers on a white Bible.

Miss Jerrolynn Nakashima was the maid of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Cheryl L. Smith. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Debra L. Judd, sister of the groom, and Miss Merrily K. Witt, sister of the bride. All of the attendants wore long mint green gowns of polyester crepe, featuring a jewel neckline, short bell sleeves, full skirt topped with a bow at the waist in the back, and green shoes to match.

Their headpieces were of matching green bows, daisies and short veils of illusion and they carried bouquets of orchids, pink baby's breath and pink and green lace ribbon streamers.

Miss Rita Witt, sister of the bride, was the flower girl. Her dress was a white miniature of the bride's gown. Leland Judd, brother of the groom, was the ringbearer.

Lawrence W. Baygents, was the best man. George W. Cadwallader, was the groomsman, and junior groomsmen were Alan Norman and Tony Zink, cousins of the groom. Randall Van Wey, cousin of the groom, was the usher.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Witt wore a rose polyester knit dress with white accessories. The groom's mother wore an orchid polyester knit dress with white accessories. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Mrs. Norma Noe attended the guest book.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white cloth, with a white net overlay, which was caught in scallops with sprigs of lilies of the valley.

The table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with white sugar roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom, and was flanked with white tapers in crystal holders. An arrangement of pink carnations, baby's breath and greenery completed the decor.

Serving were Mrs. Dale Hicks and Mrs. Baker Wilson Jr., assisted by the "Gleaners" of the church.

After a short wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks, the couple will be at home in Rolla, Mo. Both Mr. and Mrs. Judd are students at the University of Missouri in Rolla, and plan to continue their courses of study there.

A rehearsal dinner was given August 3rd, at Workman's Cafe, Richland, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Judd, parents of the bridegroom.

Chrysler To Boost Its Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. has become the second major U.S. automaker to announce a tentative increase in the price charged dealers for its 1971 models.

Chrysler said the increase will be 5 to 6 per cent—an average of about $125 per car. Ford Motor Co. announced last week a 5 per cent wholesale price boost for all lines except the Maverick and 6 per cent hike in the price of the economy compact.

The price increases announced so far affect only cars shipped to dealers before 1971 prices are formally set. Both Ford and Chrysler say the final prices paid by dealers can be adjusted up or down once final prices are announced.

American Motors Corp. officials have indicated they plan to raise the dealers' price by about 5 per cent. General Motors, the No. 1 automaker, traditionally does not bill its dealers until after final prices are announced.

Chrysler officials said Friday they have not decided on their warranty policy for new models. This year's Chrysler products carried a 12-month, 12,000-mile warranty on all components and a five-year, 50,000-mile warranty on engine, transmission and other drive-train parts.

Ford announced last week that the five-year drive-train warranty, available as an extra-cost option on 1970 models, will be discontinued when new cars are introduced.

Juarez Fears Divorce Law Revenue Loss

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz' plan to outlaw quickie divorces in Mexico would cost this border city 55.2 million a year, says the man in charge of the municipal finances.

The loss in taxes alone would reach 51.4 million to 51.6 million annually, Ignatio Duarte, the tax collector, said. The rest would be living expenses for divorce seekers in this city across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex.

Duarte said Juarez awards 18,000 quickie divorces every year, mostly to Americans.

Diaz Ordaz is seeking a tougher national policy on divorce in keeping with "the respect that the people of Mexico have for the family as an institution." Current law requires Mexican citizens to wait three months before a final decree is granted. But in some states—including this state of Chihuahua—foreigners can obtain a divorce in a day by paying the necessary taxes.

The proposed law would have no effect on Mexicans, but foreigners would have to present residency certificates from the Interior Ministry before their divorces could be granted.

Henry Ford introduced his famous Model-T automobile on Oct. 1, 1908.

Bill Collecting Profits In Economic Downturn

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill collecting is one business that has profited from the economic downturn, credit experts say.

The American Collectors Association—ACA—reports that the number of delinquent accounts referred by businessmen to its 2,600 member agencies last month was 20 per cent higher than a year earlier and the third highest for any month in history.

The rising cost of living, tight money, layoffs and uncertainty about job security are cited by credit authorities as reasons some consumers are either slower in paying their bills or failing to pay them altogether.

"People are being laid off and seasonal workers are finding it harder to get jobs. Where there's a lot of uncertainty about what's going to happen, the consumer holds onto money as long as he can," says an ACA spokesman.

"People have built up a tolerance to nonpayment," adds Morton Goldberg, a New York attorney specializing in bill collections. "Since the beginning of the year, there's been more and more of this. People have the money but won't part with it."

The real problem areas, the officials say, are where unemployment is high.

In Seattle, where the Boeing Co. has laid off thousands of employes since the first of the year, the credit manager of a large department store says that "payments are much slower now and we have many more delinquent accounts. This kind of a situation is bound to hurt both sales and payments."

In Boston, where a cutback by the government in its aerospace program has contributed to a slackening in the local economy, the State Street Bank and Trust Co. reports a "slight lag in bill payments." However, it adds: "There is a tendency for payments to lag a little in summer months."

Harold Simmons, owner of Harold's Radio Corp., a Boston discount house, says that "about two or three months ago bill payments slowed up and so did business."

The ACA says that the businesses that have to wait the longest for their money are those that provide services.

The slowdown in bill payments is by no means universal. Several large retailers whose operations are either national or regional say payments are coming in at about the same rate as a year ago. And some credit cards have been unaffected by the lag in payments.

Real Diary

"The Diary of Samuel Pepys" was a genuine chronicle of the daily life of the author from 1660 to 1669. Originally in cipher, it was not published until 1825, and it is believed that he intended the diary only for his own enjoyment.

Retired Rail Employes Get Increased Benefits

Retired railroad employes will receive a 15 per cent increase in retirement annuities as a result of legislation signed recently by President Nixon.

The increase is retroactive to Jan. 1, the Railroad Retirement Board here announced. The board added, however, that beneficiaries who received a 15 per cent increase earlier this month will not be eligible for another.

Annuities can run as high as $250 monthly, the board said. The amount paid is based on an individual's average hourly wage while working and the number of years of service.

The key factor on benefits is the amount that a railroad employe has paid in retirement taxes.

A portion of the annuities, 9.55 per cent, is paid by the railroad and includes hospitalization benefits, the board said.

Checks reflecting the increase will probably be mailed Oct. 1 to those eligible in the 25-county area served by the local board.

Checks covering the retroactive increase will be mailed a month or two later, the board said. All persons scheduled to receive the increase will be notified by mail.

The local board said it had no record of the number of recipients in this area, nor the total value of the improved benefits.

Big Catch of Fish

Fisheries in the cold and temperate waters of the northern hemisphere yield about 75 per cent of the world catch — 41 million metric tons.

'Clean-Up Week' For Post Office

This week has been designated "Clean-Up Week" at the Sedalia Post Office as part of a nationwide postal activity announced by Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

Postmaster Maurice Hogan, citing the national emphasis on improving the environment, said the local program is aimed at making the post office "a symbol of good housekeeping and a credit to every community in the nation."

Besides emphasizing the appearance of the post office, Clean-Up Week also will cover removal of health and safety hazards and general repairs.

Stalin's Daughter Adjusting to America

SPRING GREEN, Wis. (AP) — "What is this bra-burning business?" asks a bewildered Mrs. William Wesley Peters.

"I don't understand this. I am a conservative, a convinced conservative. I think to be a wife is a good job to have. I don't agree with women that it's not enough."

Relaxed and tanned Svetlana Alliluyeva, daughter of Joseph Stalin, has begun to settle without fuss into what she calls "just the usual life of a housewife" in rural Spring Green.

Wisconsin, and the lush, rolling countryside around her new home reminds her of Central Russia, she says.

The quiet, sturdy-looking woman who walked into the American embassy in New Delhi, India, over three years ago and asked for asylum in the United States is now the wife of William Wesley Peters, chief architect of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation.

They were married April 7, just 20 days after they met at Taliesin West, the Wright Foundation's winter headquarters near Phoenix, Ariz.

She had been invited by Wright's widow, Olgivanna, and his daughter, Iovanna, who were intrigued by Svetlana's book, "Twenty Letters To A Friend," an account of her life in Russia under her father. It was written in 1963 and published after she came to this country in 1967.

"I had been invited just for a two-week visit," she says, almost apologetically, "but things worked out differently."

The wedding was a simple Quaker ceremony, conducted by a Unitarian minister.

After a trip to the Grand Canyon and the Rocky Mountains, the couple arrived here at Taliesin, headquarters for the architectural foundation, just two weeks ago.

"She got so sick of the mountains," Peters recalls, "that when we got to the lush, green landscape of Wisconsin—" His wife finishes the sentence: "I felt peace of mind."

Svetlana's second book, "Only One Year," told of her decision to flee Russia, her trip to the United States and her life in Princeton, N.J.

She insists she has no plans to do any more writing. "Two books were enough trouble," she says. "I am planning to do nothing except be a good wife to my husband. That is a full-time job."

She ventured into the village of Spring Green for the first time last week, to do some shopping, and was unrecognized. She could probably pass for a market-going housewife almost anywhere.

"Generally, I avoid interviews," she said, "because I think I am a private person. The wedding, of course, that was different. Then we wanted to let people know what took place."

Sea Farming Woman

Higher Fares Are Sought By the Nation's Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the nation's airlines have filed requests for higher fares, ranging from 3 to 6 per cent.

All but one of the 11 trunk airlines, and five of the nine regional carriers, filed proposals with the Civil Aeronautics Board Friday for higher fares to take effect Oct. 15.

The remaining companies—Northwest, a trunk airline, and North Central, Ozark, Piedmont and Texas International—merely proposed that present fares be continued beyond their expiration date.

This tactic left them free to make competitive filings after the CAB has ruled on the proposals that are acceptable to it, probably about Sept. 15.

The airlines, burdened by rising costs and by heavy commitments for new equipment, have long complained that rates are unduly low.

A year ago they proposed a variety of fare increases, to take effect last Sept. 15, which the CAB rejected as unwarranted.

Instead the CAB made public Sept. 12 a fare formula and said it would approve tariffs filed in accord with it. The formula increased fares for the trunk airlines by 6.35 per cent, and for the local airlines by 7 per cent.

The airlines promptly complied, and the fares went into effect last Oct. 1.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., and 31 other members of Congress fought the increase and won a Court of Appeals ruling July 9 that the new fares were illegal because they were imposed without public notice.

Accordingly, the CAB ordered the airlines to file new tariffs by Aug. 14, to become effective Oct. 15.

The congressmen since have asked for hearings on the overcharges resulting from the illegal fare increase of last October.

Twelve airlines have supported that request, and two have expressed opposition.

Representative of the larger group was the argument of Delta Air Lines that public hearings would help dispel uncertainty over the present fare structure, particularly with regard to pending lawsuits in various parts of the country which seek damages and refunds for the 6.35 per cent excess over the legal fares.

United, the largest domestic airline, proposed that fares be increased 5 per cent over the present level on Oct. 15.

Other proposed increases were said to range from 3 to 6 per cent.

Radiation Risk Seen By Expert

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — A radiation expert with an Atomic Energy Commission laboratory in California says it's time "the government faced the fact they allowed something stupid to happen" in this community where radioactive waste was used in building construction.

"They should acknowledge it and get in there and correct it," Dr. Arthur Tamplin of the AEC's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Livermore, Calif., said in an interview.

Tailings, leftovers after uranium ore has been refined, were used as fill in construction of as many as 4,000 homes and other buildings here, a uranium center on the western slope of the Rocky Mountains.

Earlier this week, Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld issued guidelines for radiation levels at which remedial action should be taken in local homes and buildings. In a letter to Colorado Health Director Dr. Roy L. Cleere, Steinfeld suggested remedial action only after completion of an adequate study, probably more than a year away.

Cleere said the additional exposure of residents to gamma radiation from radon gas "should not result in a significant health risk."

Buildings where outdoor levels of gamma radiation are found consistently to exceed .1 milliroentgens an hour will require some corrective action, Steinfeld said. He added that similar measures must be taken if indoor measurements in progress show a level of radon gas byproducts consistently higher than an .05 working level.

The health department has begun testing in 534 structures in Grand Junction and nearby communities of Newcastle, Collbran and Palisade. It has found 30 in which the outdoor guideline is exceeded, and 65 which exceed the indoor recommendation.

The tailings were obtained free by contractors from nearby uranium mines.

When the practice was disclosed four years ago, the AEC disavowed responsibility for custody of tailings, and the state health department said it was unaware the practice had continued for 15 years.

Hearing Conservation Crusade Launched Here

The Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation has been launched in Sedalia by Harry B. Young of Beltone Central Mo. Hearing Service, 211 So. Lamine, Sedalia. Young is the local authorized dealer for Beltone Electronics Corporation of Chicago.

The Crusade is dedicated to educating the public to the imperative need for controlling noise pollution and to protecting every individual's hearing ability. Young said that U.S. government statistics indicate that currently more than 15 million Americans suffer from impaired hearing.

"Unless effective action is taken immediately to cope with the excessive noise levels encountered by people on their jobs, traveling to and from their jobs, in recreational pursuits and even in their own homes, this figure could grow to tragically immense proportions," he said.

Young stressed that even though hearing loss problems are most common among people over age 55, this does not mean that hearing impairment is a respecter of age. "Teenagers, and even pre-teens, are encountering very real hearing loss danger due to the noise pollution people are subjected to daily."

Initial emphasis for the Crusade is a new Beltone, produced 16 mm color and sound motion picture entitled "To Conserve and Protect." The film, which is narrated by James Mason, a leading Hollywood personality, is available to local civic, fraternal and religious groups and schools through Young.

Training Pact Called Abuse Of Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has agreed to help train 5,000 Cambodian and Khmer-speaking Thai troops in Thailand, a move denounced as a violation of the intent of the Senate-passed Cooper-Church amendment to limit U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said in announcing the tentative agreement Friday that no overall agreement had been made. He said that would depend on arrangements to be worked out between the Thais and Cambodians.

But Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, cosponsor of the amendment with Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said it was the second violation of its intent this week, the first being "direct American air support" for Cambodian troops.

Killed in Accident At Camas, Wash.

VANCOUVER, Wash. — William Crawford, 18, grandson of Mrs. Laverne Hays, Weathers Kort, Sedalia, was killed Thursday morning in a one-car accident, when the car he was driving skidded off a bridge over the Columbia River at Camas, Wash.

Crawford, an honor student at graduation this spring in Vancouver, had been awarded a scholarship to college. He was alone in the car when it ran off the bridge, and was trapped inside the vehicle. Cause of death was listed as drowning.

His parents are Mrs. Dale Lehr, Vancouver; and William Crawford, state of Washington. Mrs. Hays is manager of the Sedalia Adjustment Bureau.

Late Authorization

Congress did not authorize the erection of a monument to the memory of President John Tyler until 1911. When the former president died in 1862, the government had taken no official notice of his demise.

Seek Ways To Prevent Seasonal Car Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frustrated federal officials and the railroad industry are searching for ways to eliminate the annual boxcar shortage when the peak shipping season begins next month.

A poll of shippers indicates no shortage of boxcars now but no one is betting the trend will continue.

Three rail cars go east for each one that moves west, and the problem shows up when the Oregon lumberman, the Kansas wheat grower and the New England utility demand service at the same time.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has drawn a new schedule of penalties for use against shippers who allow cars to stand idle. This has worked only partially in the past, and the ICC has had to send strings of empty cars westward to balance up things.

Several alternatives have been proposed but most would cost the taxpayer.

It's not a new problem. A complaint from the farmers of the Dakotas was the first order of business for the ICC in 1887.

"And they're still complaining," an exasperated Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., told the Federal Railroad Administration at a hearing recently.

"The frustration is so great in Congress," says Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., "that we have the senator from Montana (Mike Mansfield), not a radical man, proposing a $100-a-day charge, which, if we passed it, would bankrupt every railroad east of the Mississippi."

Mansfield and Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., are calling for abolition of the ICC unless the agency finds a solution to the shortage.

A check of Kansas wheat shippers, Oregon lumber companies and utilities in New England indicates no shortage of boxcars at this point—but the peak season begins Sept. 1.

The only legislative solution under consideration is a proposal by Pearson to give the Defense Department $120 million for its own 10,000-car fleet.

Pearson has singled out the Pentagon as one big shipper which lets cars stand idle, paying the penalties rather than moving them promptly out of such places as ammunition depots.

The Association of American Railroads says 50,000 boxcars a year are needed to replace and beef up the 1.8-million-car rolling stock to meet demand in 10 years.

Farm Roundup

Report Crop Program Is Nearly On Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says its aim for getting payment checks in farmers' hands for participating in 1970 crop programs by mid-August is about on target.

A spokesman for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said $3.16 billion in payments had been distributed by Aug. 7 and that most of the remaining payments—a total of more than $3.2 billion—would be made soon.

The checks represent payments for taking part in this year's key government programs for cotton, feed grains and wheat. Feed grains, including corn, sorghums and barley, are expected to account for more than $1 billion, with cotton and wheat each totaling less.

Payments are determined on the basis of several factors but are made only to farmers who voluntarily sign up in the programs and agree to keep plantings within allotted acreages.

In return, the government agrees to guarantee producers a basic price support rate or floor price and in addition makes direct or supplemental payments on part of their normal crop production. Also, in the case of feed grains and wheat, farmers also can collect "diversion" payments for land idled beyond minimum requirements. There are no mandatory diversion requirements for cotton this year.

However, all programs are keyed to acreage reduction from historical planting patterns. In this sense, farmers participating in the programs become eligible for payments by agreeing to plant less of the specific crops than they otherwise might.

The 1970 payments being made now are the last under existing programs provided in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965. This law expires at the end of this year. Congress is now expected to complete action on new program legislation—perhaps by Labor Day—which would continue the basic system of payments but with features allowing more flexibility and wider authority for setting price support loan levels.

The new programs almost certainly will include a limitation on payments—excluding price support loans—for the next three years. The House passed the omnibus farm bill on Aug. 5, including an Agriculture Committee amendment calling for a $55,000 per crop ceiling on payments any individual producer can collect in one year.

The measure now is in the Senate where the agriculture committee members are expected to take it up next Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk production in July totaled 10,162,000,000 pounds, a gain of two-tenths of one per cent from a year earlier but down seasonally by eight per cent from June, says the Agriculture Department.

Production for the first seven months was about three-tenths of one per cent less than during January-July 1969, the Crop Reporting Board said.

Ex-Burglar Finds Colleagues Active

NEW YORK (AP) — An employe of a store operated by ex-convicts, finding it had been burglarized of $1,000 worth of cash and goods, said Friday "I used to be a burglar myself—it's kind of ironic."

Stanley Eldridge, 20, recently released from the Rikers Island prison, discovered the burglary when he arrived to open the store.

"I didn't think we'd come to it, but I guess we'll have to have a burglar alarm installed," said Prentice Williams, 33, another ex-convict who is now outside sales co-ordinator.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DAVID KENNEDY, Secretary of the Treasury

How do you determine the denomination of paper currency burned beyond recognition? Does the Treasury refund the money?—John E. Hansen, Racine, Wis.

● No refund is made for currency which has been burned beyond recognition because positive identification as to denomination must be made before it can be replaced. If fragments which lend themselves to identification are submitted, then payment may be made in accordance with the Treasury Department regulations.

FOR REX REED, writer and movie critic

What do you think was the best movie of 1969, and whom do you consider to have been the best actor and actress? —L. Fitzsimmons, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● A miracle happened this year when the best actress of the year actually won an Oscar. Maggie Smith gave the finest performance of the year in "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie." Unfortunately, I considered Peter O'Toole the best actor for "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," and Luchino Visconti's masterpiece, "The Damned," the best picture of 1969. Neither of them won anything at all.

FOR RANDY HUNDLEY, Chicago Cubs

When you go out to the pitcher's mound to calm a pitcher, what do you actually say? —M. L. Nestler, Spring Valley, Ill.

● I go to the pitcher's mound during a game for one of three reasons: one, to ask the pitcher what kind of a pitch he wants to throw in the particular situation in which we are involved at that moment; two, to make sure we are together on the set of signs being used; or thirdly, to try to "loosen up" the pitcher if he appears nervous.

FOR PEGGY LIPTON, tv's "Mod Squad"

How long did it take you to get your hair to the present length? —Gail Dent, Blademboro, N.C.

● My hair took about six months to grow to its present length. It extends to the middle of my back.

FOR WALTER CRONKITE, C.B.S. newscaster

What is the purpose of the symbol in the upper right-hand corner of the tv screen on your early news broadcast?—Mrs. J. O. Boswell, Owensboro, Ky.

● The symbol you refer to is a hand folded around the globe. It is used whenever we are reporting on environmental pollution.

FOR SEN. WARREN G. MAGNUSON, Washington

What problem does the shortage of railroad box cars create?—Mrs. Steve Moyer, Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada

● Every year for at least the past 25 years there have been insufficient freight cars available to meet the needs of grain producers for transportation of their harvest to market. Failure to supply box cars for the harvest means that it must be piled on the ground. Much of it is lost.

FOR FRANCES KNIGHT, Director of U.S. Passport Agency

Is there a minimum or maximum age when a passport is not needed? —Mrs. Bert Anderson, Green Bay, Wis.

● There is no exception to the passport requirement by reason of age.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

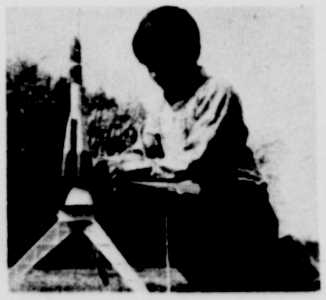

Do you have plans to run for Governor of Pennsylvania and then eventually for President of the United States?—Ricky Haldeman, Ephrata, Pa.

● I have no plans whatsoever at this time to run for any public office.

What in the World!

Soviet Scale Model A Soviet rocket was recently launched from an American Air Force base in Massachusetts. The reason the event didn't make world-wide headlines was that the rocket was a 1/100 scale model. However, it did make some news as it soared 300 feet into the air because, until then, all models for hobbyists were of American rockets. This one was of the Vostok, which opened the space age in 1957 by boosting Sputnik into orbit. The Vostok research was conducted by G. Harry Stine, one of America's leading experts on Soviet and NASA rocketry, who was retained by Model Products Corp. "For historical reasons, we felt it should be made available to American hobbyists," explained Stine. "We beat the Russians to the moon, but they were first in space."

Archery, Anyone? Bows and arrows are making a comeback. Archery will be classed as a new gold-medal sport, open to both men and women, at the 1972 Olympic games in Munich, Germany, according to Ben Pearson, the "Babe Ruth of Archery." Today archery equipment sales ($45 million a year) are twice those of tennis. It's a relatively low-cost sport; $30 could get the basic simple fiber-glass bow and arrows. Or, an afficionado could go wild with a $200-plus sophisticated

Practice Makes Pianists Popular pianist Roger Williams, whose records are consistent best sellers, used to hate to practice. "I was more interested in sports and girls," he commented to FAMILY WEEKLY. Though he became an avid 10-hour-a-day practicer, he still is sympathetic to reluctant students. "In the first year, 70 percent drop out because it takes too much time and patience. Also, there's a shortage of teachers—especially of popular music. I can't even find one for my own 10-year-old son." Yet Williams believes there's a great future for professional pianists. So he has endorsed the computerized "International Music Centers." In 39 lessons, with a half hour of practice a day, it's hoped kids can absorb what once took four years. Roger Williams jokingly advises budding keyboard artists: "Don't practice too hard—I have enough competition!"

How to Put Your

Communities large and small throughout the U. S. are

By FRANCES L. KOLTUN

Fort William Henry, at Lake George Village, New York, has reenactment of historical battle scenes to attract visitors to area.

In northern Georgia, where the Blue Ridge foothills offer the first breath of cool mountain air to anyone driving north from Florida, lies the lonely hamlet of Hiawassee—so like a thousand others it hardly takes your eyes off the road as you drive through.

Yet Hiawassee, population 405, has become the site of one of Georgia's most joyous, popular, and colorful events, the Georgia Mountain Fair. The way it happened provides a perfect working model of how to put small-town America on the map.

In 1950, worried about the isolation of Hiawassee, its dwindling population, and its "nothing future," the Town's County Lions Club decided to hold a small exhibit of local mountain crafts. Few visitors were expected that first year. Yet amazingly, more than 1,000 showed up. In 1968 more than 100,000 came, thronging both town and surrounding countryside for nine days.

When the Fair started, 20 years ago, Hiawassee had no visitors and perhaps only two dozen summer homes. Today it has nearly 400 summer residences. Its two supermarkets together gross over a million dollars a year. Its bank deposits nearly doubled during the month of August when the fair was held. Clearly, by using their heads and a once taken-for-granted asset, the good people of Hiawassee have rescued their town from the brink of its economic grave.

Years ago, Natchez, Mississippi, was a small forgotten river town wilting away in the summer heat. Cut off from the main stream of traffic, without passenger railroads, her only link with the outside world was a rutted dirt road. "We felt so remote," one resident recalls, "that a car with out-of-state plates caused a commotion."

Then one day Mrs. J. Balfour, president of the Natchez Garden Club, faced the problem of entertaining the Mississippi State Federation of Garden Clubs. It was usual to treat the Federation to a display of local gardens, but most of those in Natchez were in poor condition due to a March freeze that year. In desperation, Mrs. Balfour decided to show the visitors the town's opulent white-pillared, ante-bellum houses instead. They were so enchanted that she and the Garden Club organized a similar tour the following year and "invited the world to come."

Doubtful residents wondered whether it would work. These were dark Depression days and money was scarce, especially for such things as house tours and trips. Yet, miraculously, from the first moment, the tour proved a great success—and Natchez came back to life.

Last March, the now-famous month-long Natchez Pilgrimage brought several thousand visitors and nearly a million dollars to the town. It has given people a fresh awareness of the whole state of Mississippi, and Natchez, after years without a new industry, now boasts a number of important branch offices and plants.

About 600 miles west lies the small city of Albany, Texas, (population less than 2,250), home of the famous, rip-roaring Fort Griffin Fandangle.

Each June, in a natural amphitheater at the edge of town, there unfolds at dusk a cheerful, joyous musical pageant that the people of Albany write and produce entirely on their own. Using only the talents of their citizens—no outsider can participate—they tell the history of their own community, "not as it comes from the texts but as it lingers in the hearts of old-timers."

The Fandangle started life 32 years ago as a high-school play and was so successful that it was taken over by a committee, aided by the Albany Chamber of Commerce,to be staged annually. Since then, the cast has grown from 30 players to 300, and the town is flooded with visitors on Fandangle days. Everyone in Albany knows the heart-filling satisfaction of bringing vibrant theater—and thousands of appreciative visitors—to the remote ranching country of north-central Texas.

Throughout the country, people are pouring energy and heart into events that help their communities. They work long hours, without pay, to get one going, then to sustain it. Sometimes an idea starts with the initiative of an individual, perhaps a local historian, sometimes it comes from the Chamber of Commerce. Sometimes it has the backing of the town's financial interests; sometimes, it moves ahead as a club project.

Almost always, it starts small, then takes hold and develops. Seldom does it have much seed money. (When the Natchez Garden Club started its Pilgrimage, it had next to nothing in the bank.) Gaspee Days, a Pawtucket, Rhode Island, historical festival, got going on $60.

But those that prevail pay off handsomely. Here's why:

Visitors bring in money: Somerset R. Waters, a travel-industry economist, shows how even a small number of visitors make a big contribution. "Suppose one touring couple spends one day and night in your town. This couple will spend at least $35 for a room, meals, gasoline, shopping and sight-seeing. If

How to Attract Visitors to Your Community

1. Organize a Visitors' Council. The Council can be a special project for an existing civic organization, or it can be an entirely new community project. The most important ingredients: an enthusiastic leader and a true cross-section of your community interests, including business, education, women's clubs, and cultural groups.

2. Start with a small steering committee to lay the groundwork. Expand to a larger committee with sub-committees assigned to Inventory, Program, Promotion, and Hospitality. Warning: a sure blueprint for failure is to build the Visitors' Council around a group of citizens interested only in profiting directly from the visitor business. Visitors benefit the total community. Every segment should be represented.

3. Get as many people involved as possible. The secret of success is to make sure that the whole community has as much fun as the visitor. Give everyone a chance to shine.

4. Establish your hospitality plan. Set up a committee to take care of the visitors' needs for housing, feeding, entertainment, and shopping. You'll need a centrally located visitors' information office. The atmosphere of hospitality you create is the key to increasing visitor growth in succeeding years. The director of your state travel department can advise you and help promote your event. Consult also your state's branch of the American Automobile Association, oil-company touring services, the Chamber of Commerce, and airlines serving your general area. If there are big industries in your town, get the advice of their advertising and public-relations departments.

The Georgia Chamber of Commerce's Travel Council has assembled a comprehensive kit, detailing every facet of its uniquely successful, award-winning Stay and See Georgia program, as used by 325 communities in that state. The kit is available at $50 from Georgia Travel Council, 1200 Commerce Building, Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

The American Petroleum Institute publishes a manual, "Economic Growth Through a Community Visitors Council." Up to 25 copies will be sent free to a civic organization, on request. What Do You Know About Your

By JOHN E. GIBSON

Marriage can be one of life's most richly rewarding experiences—or it can be disappointing and frustrating. Whether a marriage turns out to be a happy one depends largely upon the personalities of the two persons involved, and how capable each is of accepting the other's frailties and imperfections.

This true-false quiz provides answers to some of the questions concerning the marital state which you may have speculated about.

1. If a couple can just manage to reconcile their major differences, the little things will take care of themselves.

2. A marriage has two strikes against it if the wife is older than the husband.

3. If a husband can out-talk his wife in a family discussion, he stands an excellent chance of getting his way.

4. Most happily married couples fell in love at first sight.

5. Domestic fights are frequently triggered by noisy household appliances.

6. Couples who blame their relatives for domestic troubles are usually just passing the buck.

7. A family should have only one head.

8. The husband may appear to be the boss, but most marriages are dominated by the wife.

9. In a family argument, it's the wife who is most likely to turn the discussion into a snarling, bickering, personal attack on her spouse.

10. A sexless marriage, where physical love is absent, can be a happy, fulfilling relationship.

ANSWERS

1. False. Surveys in which couples were carefully questioned show that some of the most upsetting influences are the "little things." Irritating personal habits are often borne in silence by each partner until the cumulative resentment finally reaches a festering point and is expressed in unfocused hostility.

2. False. Wide-scale studies at the University of California have shown "no consistent relationship between the age of the spouses and their mutual happiness." Some of the happiest marriages are those in which the wife is older. Only when there is a great difference in ages—such as two decades or more—has an age differential been found to be an obstacle to happiness.

3. True. Sociological studies of marriage relationships at a leading university indicate that the husband who is more voluble than his wife in a discussion usually has the inside track when it comes to getting his way. Another interesting finding: having a male friend present gives a man a definite edge when he is trying to persuade his wife to his point of view. The reverse is true, too.

4. False. A noted sociologist found that even for thousands who perspire heavily

A different formula has been found to keep underarms absolutely dry—even for thousands who perspire heavily. A formula so different it has far more anti-wetness agent than it is possible to put in any aerosol can. By anybody. After decades of common "deodorants," it took a chemical invention to make this truly effective protection possible — with the same safety to clothing—the same skin mildness as popular "deodorants." Called Mitchum Anti-Perspirant, it is the product of a trustworthy 57-year-old laboratory and guaranteed by Good Housekeeping. By the thousands, women with problem perspiration are finding the protection they need—and never could find before. And fully effective as a deodorant, too, of course. If you perspire more than average—even heavily — get the positive protection of Mitchum Anti-Perspirant. Your choice, liquid or cream. Ninety-day supply, each $3.00. Available at your favorite drug or toiletry counter.

Rag Time

My wife's an incessant collector of rags.
With rags she fills boxes and barrels and bags.
What one day is clothing, all manner and sorts—
My shirts and pajamas, my socks and my shorts—
The next day's a rag. This distinction is subtle.
It's useless to argue or offer rebuttal.
When my wife has that look in her eyes, she's a fright.
I hide things away, and I button up tight.
—Richard Armour

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The old farmer had brought his prize hog to town to sell. A friend questioned him about the possible profits in pig farming.

"How much did you pay fer her?"

Pocketing the check, the old man said, "About 10 dollars, ah guess."

"And how much did it cost to feed her?" his friend persisted.

"About 40 dollars, ah guess," the farmer replied.

"Ah know," admitted the old farmer. "But I had her company all winter!"
—Wilfred Beaver

Mature wisdom: maintaining a strong disapproval of temptations I no longer have the vigor to yield to.
—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

One Sunday morning, as a beggar stood on a corner holding out his hat, a woman stopped and glared at him.

"If you went to church," she scolded, "maybe you would be more fortunate."

"You're wrong, lady," replied the beggar. "I passed my hat around at church last Sunday, but I was thrown out." —Robert Brown

The small boy's mother had let him invite his chum over for dinner. When the young guest ate well, except for his spinach, his hostess said, "Eating plenty of spinach will put a lot of iron in your blood."

The young guest thought for a moment, then asked, "Gee, don't you think it'll make me kind of stiff?" —Dorothea Kent

He isn't as busy as he says he is if he has time to tell you how busy he is.
—Bill Copeland

As she entered the room, a woman recognized the celebrity who was about to address her club. He was pacing madly back and forth. "Are you always nervous like this before you make a speech," she asked.

"Why, no, I never, never get nervous," he protested.

"Then why are you here in the Ladies' Rest Room?" —Euxdora T. Sabo

The Trouble With That Old Saying

"Confession is good for the soul"
In many a situation,
But there sure are times when it's apt to Raise hell with your reputation.

Kabobs for Cookouts

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Called "shish kabobs" in Middle East countries (Turkish for skewered roast meat), kabobs are usually prepared with lamb. Here are kabobs in the American manner, fine for cookouts—lamb, seafood, vegetable, and frankfurter — with wonderfully flavored marinades to add to their succulence.

A blend of herbs with other seasonings imparts delightful flavor to lamb chops and vegetables on skewers, grilled over an open fire.

Shoulder Lamb Chops and Vegetables on Skewers

6 round-bone shoulder lamb chops, cut about 1½ in. thick
¼ cup lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon marjoram leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
⅛ teaspoon onion powder
¾ cup cooking or salad oil
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen cauliflower, partially cooked and drained
Green pepper squares (about 1½ in.)
Tomato wedges

1. Put lamb chops into a large shallow dish.
2. Combine lemon juice, garlic, herbs, onion powder, and oil; mix well. Pour over lamb and marinate in refrigerator several hours, turning chops over occasionally.
3. Remove chops from marinade (reserve for brushing) and thread 2 chops on each of 3 long skewers. Put on a hot grill about 4 in. from coals. During grilling, turn chops frequently and brush with marinade. Cook about 18 min., or until desired degree of doneness. To test for doneness, slit meat near bone and note the color of the meat. Season with lemon pepper marinade.
4. Meanwhile, alternately thread vegetable pieces on long skewers. Brush generously with marinade. Grill until of desired doneness, turning and brushing with marinade. Sprinkle with Accent.
5. When meat and vegetables are done, remove from skewers to paper plates.

6 servings

Scallop Kabobs

1 lb. scallops, fresh or thawed frozen
¼ cup olive oil or other cooking oil
1 small clove garlic, crushed
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
¼ cup all-purpose soy sauce
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper
1 can (13 to 13½ oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
1 can (4 oz.) button mushrooms, drained
Green pepper squares (about 1 in.)
12 slices bacon

1. Rinse scallops with cold water to remove any pieces of shell; drain on absorbent paper. Cut large scallops into smaller pieces.
2. Combine oil, garlic, lemon juice, parsley, soy sauce, salt, and pepper to taste in a large bowl. Mix thoroughly and add the scallops, pineapple chunks, mushrooms, and green pepper pieces. Toss to coat ingredients with the marinade. Set aside at least 30 min., tossing several times.
3. Meanwhile, panbroil the bacon until cooked but still soft. Halve the slices.
4. Using long, thin skewers, thread each with a scallop, pineapple chunk, mushroom cap, green pepper piece, and bacon piece; repeat to fill skewer.
5. Brush kabobs with some of the leftover marinade and place on grill about 4 in. from the hot coals. Cook until bacon is crisp and browned, 10 to 12 min. Turn kabobs several times while cooking and brush with the marinade.

About 6 servings

Frank and Vegetable Kabobs

6 frankfurters, cut in 1½-in. pieces
1 large green pepper, cut in 1½-in. squares
12 small cooked potatoes (use canned, if desired)
6 small cooked onions (use canned, if desired)
Favorite bottled barbecue sauce

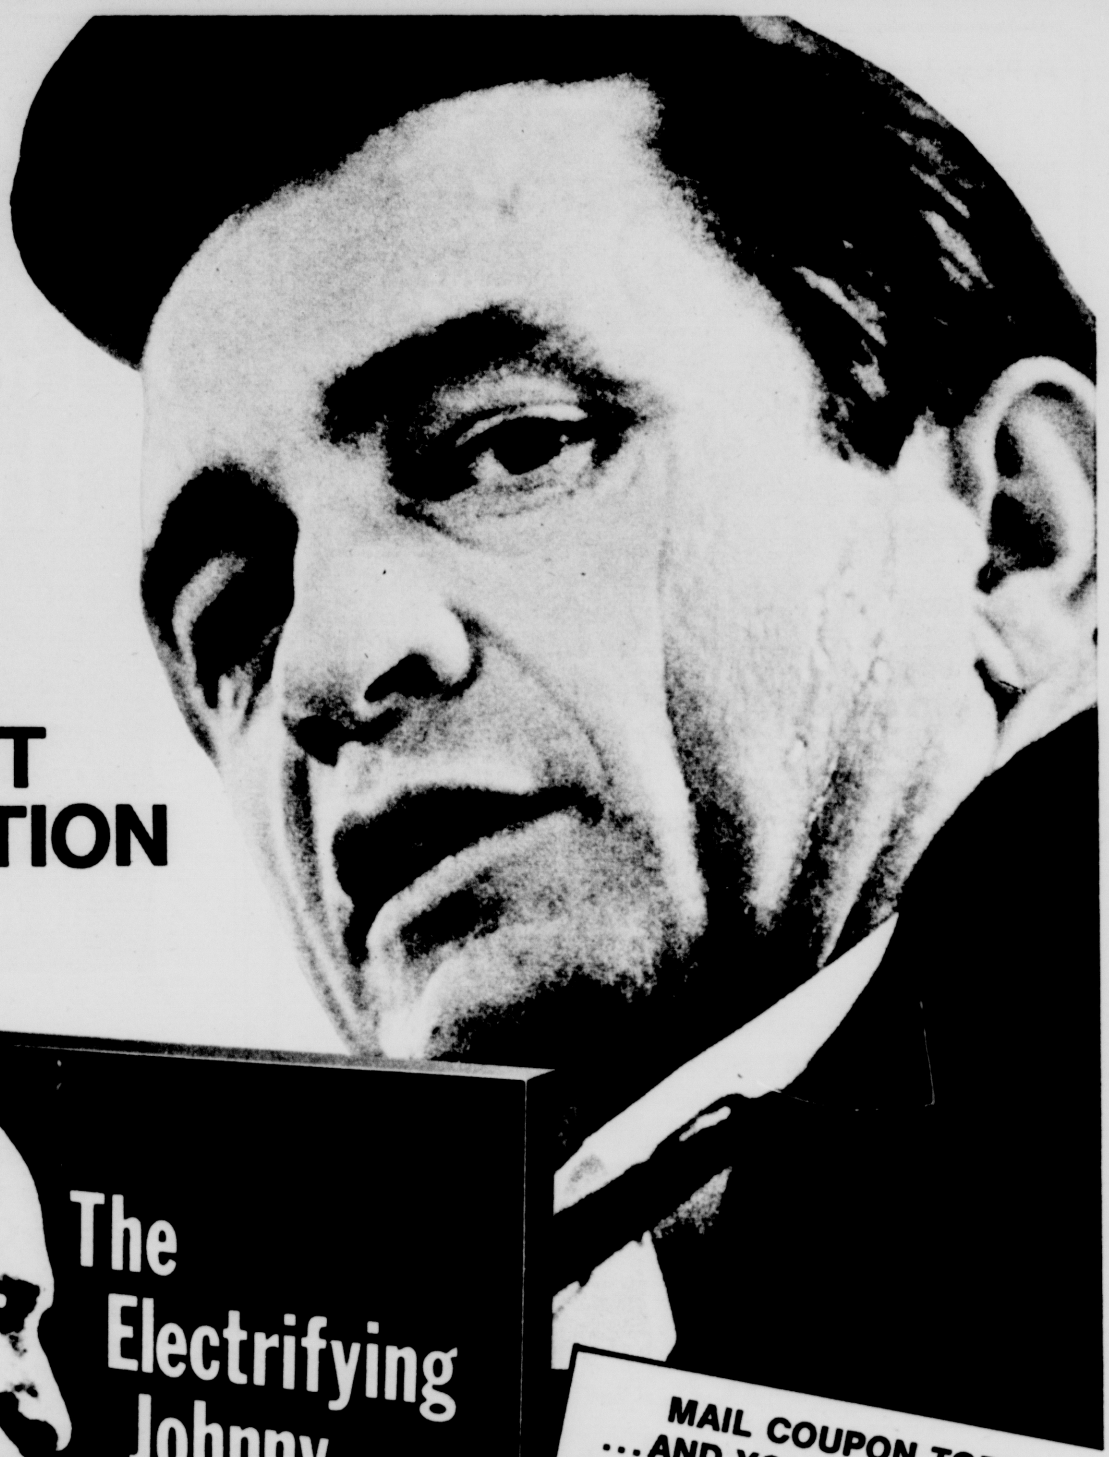

1. Using 6 long skewers, thread on each: 1 piece meat, 1 sq. green pepper, 1 potato and 1 onion; repeat to fill the skewer.
2. Brush kabobs generously with melted butter or margarine and then with barbecue sauce. Place on the grill about 4 in. from hot coals and cook until franks and vegetables are thoroughly heated and lightly browned, turning kabobs occasionally.

Johnny Cash—The Man Behind the Mask

The past of this country-music star represents the worst in many of us—his future represents the best

By HUGH CHERRY

Jim Marshall

This story is not about me—it's about Johnny Cash. But it's important to say that I may know him as well as anyone because Johnny Cash is a very private man.

As a country-music disc jockey for more than two decades, I have had the opportunity to associate with Johnny Cash both socially and professionally—during the good times and in some very bad ones. I have introduced him from the stages of Carnegie Hall, the Hollywood Bowl, and in the crowded mess hall at Folsom Prison. I have attended his recording sessions, interviewed him on international radio, and have been a guest in his home. We have gotten drunk together, sometimes fought, and I have known his wife, June Carter, whom he married in March, 1968, for some 20 years now.

During a recent trip to Nashville, where Johnny broadcasts his weekly country-music show (it returns on ABC-tv on Sept. 23), I visited my old friend and tried to relate this new image as a superstar to the guy I had known and worked with over the years. It wasn't easy.

I first met Cash in 1962. The circumstances are a bit hazy for both of us because he was popping pills, and I was guzzling scotch. We talked a lot about Indians and Jimmie Rodgers and folk songs. He thought I drank too much, and I thought he was a nut for popping amphetamines. Our paths crossed with increasing frequency, and we came to be friends.

Many of Cash's compositions possess a foreboding, almost dirgelike quality. The melody line is secondary to him, often in performance as well as composition. His writings often display a disdain for meter. A good example is "Don't Take Your Guns to Town." The meter of the song is as unorthodox as its writer, but the combination of lyric, melody, and meter accomplished Cash's intended statement. He once explained its origin:

"This song idea comes from another song I had written earlier called 'Don't Step on Mother's Roses.' I thought the idea was good enough to warrant a song or maybe it was because I had felt so much about the incident that inspired it. I went to my aunt's funeral in South Arkansas. The pallbearers were trying to take the casket out of the house, and one of the pallbearers stepped on a rose bush. My cousin saw the man's foot on the rose bush, and with tears in his eyes, he said, 'Don't step on Mother's roses.' I wrote the song that night and I got to thinkin' of other 'Don't' ideas, using the same meter. I was cleaning a pistol one night, and I got to thinkin' about the things you shouldn't do with a pistol, and the 'Rose' song became 'Don't Take Your Guns to Town.'"

An excellent poet and composer, Cash could have made a comfortable living from his compositions alone. But during the past 15 years, Johnny has been one of country music's top performers and money-makers. He was earning $200,000 a year 10 years ago. But until recently, success was as frustrating to Johnny as failure is to most men.

Cash's first wife, Vivian, the mother of his four daughters, told me that Johnny took his early success in stride. But as his career began making increasing demands upon him, he became tense. His increasing tenson was at its peak when he finished a performance. He began to drink heavily in the late '50s, usually after a show.

Pills did not become a part of Cash's dissipation until after the death of his good friend and fellow performer, Johnny Horton, who was killed in an automobile accident in 1960. Cash and Horton were very close, and his death was a shock. The drugs brought changes. He began missing engagements. His marriage was disintegrating.

Perfect for Fall

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

The time when summer ends and fall begins is the time for the transition dress—that doesn't need a coat! This smartly tailored silhouette, which you can sew easily at home, does the job splendidly. It features handsome top seaming, a face-framing funnel collar, set-in sleeves, and, with fashion currently focusing on the waistline, a nifty wrap-around belt. It would look lovely in a wool or gabardine fabric.

To order your pattern for this attractive silhouette, simply fill out the coupon.

A Wonderful Collector's Item

1922 MONTGOMERY WARD Catalog

This wonderful Catalog is America during the Roaring Twenties. Enjoy all the nostalgia of post WWI America through the vast collection of illustrations, photos, and copy depicting America's tastes and products of 1922.

Would you believe—a man's 2 pants suit (with vest) for $12.95 . . . a woman's polo coat with fur collar for $7.98 . . . and a boy's sled for $1.48! And fashions! See the styles of the Flappers and the Sheiks, plus the curios, furnishings, toys, cars, etc. See America on its wildest binge with prohibition booze, plenty of money and swinging people.

Autos were the rage as Americans took to the road . . . the Radio was brand new and Clara Bow led the flapper revolution.

The Ward Catalog is 670 pages and measures 9¼ x 13" (the actual size of the 1922 Catalog) and has over 40,000 items carefully illustrated and fully described. A joy to read for young and old.

Arteries Arthritis

Now Cleared By Tasty New Diet

A WONDERFUL NEW DISCOVERY, By ROBERT S. FORD, B.S.

New scientific studies show how cholesterol and fat choke the arteries only when eaten in aged and stored form such as in sausage or cheese, but are harmless when FRESH as in pork chops or milk. Cholesterol and fat slowly dry and harden like paint when aged in many stored foods, and can form deposits only when changed in this way. This research break-through comes as a welcome surprise, at last solving the agonizing riddle of choked arteries and cholesterol.

Recently published in booklet form, these findings also cast new light on the arthritis problem. A network of fine arteries in the membrane and porous bone around the joint nourishes the moving parts. When these arteries are choked by hardened fatty materials from stored foods, the joints are starved and arthritis develops. Fully explained in the new booklet (third edition) with large clear drawing. Shows the beautiful self-repairing natural design of our joints, and how we hurt them with the wrong food and drink.

Best of all, it is shown that powerful natural forces in our bodies gradually attack and remove non-living matter. When we stop polluting our systems with the wrong foods, these slow but sure natural forces can catch up in their cleaning work. The body can thus become clean again in a few months without drugs or surgery. At last it has been shown which foods form deposits, leaving us all the wonderful FRESH FOODS to enjoy without limit.

You can read all about it in a new easily understood booklet through which thousands have found relief. This booklet tells how to select FRESH foods so as to help clear arteries and joints without surgery. How to reduce high cholesterol and blood pressure without drugs or weakening diets. How you can enjoy a full diet of tasty FRESH food and grow strong while your circulation and arthritis improve. A typical reader said with a happy smile: "Sixty days ago I needed plastic arteries. But I went on the new diet instead, and now I mow my whole yard without resting. My heart and leg pains are gone. Blood pressure and cholesterol dropped to normal. And those fatty yellow lumps in my eyelids faded away!"

This booklet gives clear instructions on the delicious FRESH FOOD DIET. How to relieve suffering, save on food, and reduce kitchen work. Effects of better food on face and figure. New easy ways to cook well for one or two. Diabetes control. Real sweets for diabetics. Ear noises, deafness, and dizziness. Indigestion, acid stomach, and general health aids. Pictures of arteries and joints. A new practical approach that really works. Fully guaranteed: may be returned for refund if you are not satisfied. Over 40,000 satisfied customers. Very popular, now in a new third edition with four pages added. Special prices on quantity orders.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—A great timesaver when sewing is to have the measuring tape right at hand. Sew it across the bottom of your sewing apron. Just lift the bottom edge of the apron and check the measurements of anything you may be working on. Such aprons are nice to make for a bazaar or to give as shower gifts.—BRENDA

DEAR POLLY—To display a few flowers to good advantage, use an old-fashioned cruet set. I have an antique one with glass containers in a silver rack and it is great for this. A very charming bouquet can be made with only a few roses, etc., and pansies show off especially well in it.—H. B. K.

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—The picture holders in billfolds make nice places to carry samples of material or paint colors when shopping.—CHERYL

DEAR POLLY—I use the wire from used spiral notebooks for small household repair jobs. It is flexible and better than any I have been able to buy in small quantities, and certainly a money-saver.—MRS. P. W.

DEAR POLLY—Here's a great carpet-saving pointer: We had three badly burned spots on our carpet. At my brother's suggestion I rubbed the spots with a silver dollar and then shampooed them. Now we cannot find the burned spots.—C. M. F.

DEAR POLLY—Here's one of those "Why didn't I think of it before?" ideas. I took three antique house keys to the jeweler, had him silverplate them and attach each to a bar pin. Now I have a set of scatter pins that are unique.—TRUDI

DEAR POLLY—When I finish a painting job I put a piece of clear plastic over the top of the paint can before putting the lid on. This helps prevent a skin from forming over the paint.—ARLENE

DEAR POLLY—I have one preschooler and I baby-sit with others, so I cut sponges to make blocks for them to play with. No one is hurt when their buildings tumble down.—DEBORAH

DEAR POLLY—I remove the brushes from the lids of empty fingernail polish bottles, clean them well with polish remover and then use them to apply cosmetics.—L. S.

DEAR POLLY—To heighten wigs or hair pieces without ratting or teasing I place nylon net in the dome of the wig. This cuts down on that constant job of ratting, and then having to get it out.—MRS. R. G.

Town on the Map

you attracted just one couple a day, every day of the year, it would mean a tourist income of $12,775. Just 100 couples a day would mean a tourist income of $1,277,500. This in turn would cause employment of approximately 127 people—waitresses, bus boys, tour guides, life guards, bell hops, parking attendants, sales clerks—jobs that require little training and that can absorb the normally hard-to-employ: the young and unskilled. This added payroll of about half a million dollars spent in the community would set in motion economic activity that could result in another million dollars in local business."

Visitors fatten tax coffers and create jobs: Since their home is elsewhere, out-of-state visitors are tax contributors without being major tax consumers. The taxes they leave behind—on gasoline, hotel rooms, retail sales, fishing licenses, and the like—can be used for schools, libraries, roads, and a whole range of public works.

Visitors generate new industries: A better place for visitors is a better place to live—and a better place to live is a better place for new industry. The Birmingham, Ala., Arts Festival is credited by the city's businessmen as a very influential factor in the decision that the home office of the $2 billion Central Bell Telephone system would be located there. The men who called the Natchez Pilgrimage "feminine foolishness" are the first to admit that it helped attract some notable industries.

Visitors put your town on the map: A notable event draws notable publicity, often national and international news coverage. Real-estate values invariably rise as people get to know a place. A Sag Harbor, New York, real-estate dealer, says, "I've sold several homes to people who told me they'd never heard of Sag Harbor until they came for our Old Whalers' Festival."

Visitors give a town a sense of pride and accomplishment: An event born of local history or uniqueness or special talent, cannot help but knit the community together and give it a sense of fulfillment. Just as a handsome house that is never visited seems dead, so a town that never shares its rich traditions seems lifeless and dull.

Log rolling at Timber Carnival in Albany, Oregon, attracts huge crowd each summer, which comes to see local skill.

What kind of event can you dream up for your home town? Here, from all around the country, are some very successful ideas:

- If yours is an area distinguished for a single crop, plant, or foodstuff, build a festival around it. There is, for example, a sauerkraut festival in Springfield, Minn.; a strawberry festival in Humboldt, Tenn.; an apple-blossom festival in Wenatchee, Wash.; a Maine seafood festival in Rockland, Maine; a clam festival in Annapolis, Md.; the famous Cotton Carnival in Memphis, Tenn.; the National Cherry Festival in Traverse City, Mich.; the Beaufort Water Festival in Beaufort, S.C.; the "Trail of Tears" drama at Tsa-La-Gi, Okla.; and the Minneapolis Aquatennial in Minneapolis, Minn.
- If yours is a town of historic homes or beautiful gardens—even a handful will do—plan a tour of them. There are house-and-garden tours in Rhode Island, Virginia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Connecticut, Louisiana, Maryland, and many other states.
- If a "famous son" has grown up in your part of the country, present a pageant built around his life and show his boyhood home. Or, if history has swept through your section, re-enact some of the highlights.
- If music and art are your town's "thing," organize an arts festival around your musicians, painters, sculptors, singers, dancers, and writers. Or have a country-music jamboree, or an all-night sing. There are many music festivals around the country today, and the sound ranges from Beethoven under a tent to banjo-strumming under a tree. In Weiser, Idaho; Union Grove, N.C.; and Oakland, Md.; as in a number of other towns, the old-time fiddler is celebrated with contests and festivals.
- If your community has strong ethnic ties, try a "national" festival. Michigan's colorful Highland Festival and Games in Alma, for example, is billed as "the largest Scottish event held outside Scotland." The annual Bavarian Festival in Frankenmuth, Mich., features German food, arts and crafts, singing and dancing.
- If yours is a great fishing area, sponsor a fishing rodeo. A gifted handcraft area? Take a tip from Asheville, N.C., or Gatlinburg, Tenn., and hold a craftsman's fair. Does your town have a sports tradition of a particular kind? Create a tournament. In the bayous of Louisiana, they celebrate spring with the World's Championship Pirogue Races, a competition among the narrow cypress boats built to navigate the shallow swamps.

Costumed residents of Natchez, Miss., act as host-guides during annual Pilgrimage through ante-bellum houses.

Don't be afraid to let your imagination soar, even if you think your resources are modest. Remind yourself that what may be commonplace to you can be enormously appealing to a visitor. And remember, there is a growing flood of mobile and curious Americans who like to travel about on weekends, holidays, or summer vacations. By bringing even a small percentage of them to your town, you can make a large contribution to its well-being. ◆

What we need is a cooler heat wave

A nice little arctic breeze to take the sizzle out of the sun, 'cause it's downright uncomfortable sometimes. Especially when it's also monthly period time.

But there's one way to keep that discomfort bearable. Tampax tampons. The internal sanitary protection developed for comfort. The smooth container-applicator makes insertion easy and comfortable, even the first time. And you won't feel the tampon when it's properly in place.

NO BELTS NO PINS NO PADS NO ODOR

Removal is effortless and safe because our tampon doesn't expand to uncomfortable proportions. And the moisture-proof removal cord is securely chain stitched the entire length of the tampon. Of course disposal is no problem since everything is flushable.

QUIZ

the cases of love at first sight that do not end in happy marriages are far more numerous than those that do. Love at first sight often blinds a couple to personality differences which may make it extremely difficult for them to get along amicably.

5. True. A University of Texas study reports that vacuum cleaners, kitchen mixers, blenders, tv, dishwashers, among others, raise the sound level in some homes to the point where it seriously disturbs family harmony and leads to violent arguments.

6. False. Sociological studies show that interference by relatives and in-laws ranks close to first place as a disturber of family peace. Newlyweds would do well to avoid setting up housekeeping too close to either his or her relations—regardless of how well-meaning they may be.

7. False. Studies of thousands of marriages conducted by the American Institute of Family Relations show that the happiest families have not one head but two, with the husband and wife mature enough to cooperate on the basis of equality.

8. False. In the same study of a cross-section of the marriage population, dominance was rated by close friends and relatives. Findings: "It was decided that 28 percent of the marriages were definitely dominated by the wife, 35 percent by the husband, while 37 percent were genuine copartnerships."

9. True. According to a University of Michigan study of young married couples, it was the wives who were more likely to respond with a personal attack during an argument. The report stated that when the husbands started the argument, the wives were more likely to retaliate with biting, attacking, or coercive remarks. But when the wives started the arguments, the husbands were more inclined to cool down the verbal disagreement and to kiss and make up.

10. True. Dr. John F. Cuber, professor of sociology at Ohio State University found that the sexless marriages are no rarity and are far more prevalent than suspected. He notes that there is a sizable percentage of people for whom physical love is unimportant, and when two such people find each other, a quietly satisfying kind of sexless life fulfillment emerges. ◆

Paradoxically, this was one of Cash's most productive periods. Several of his epic writing and recording works were accomplished while he was suffering his heaviest addiction. Such albums as "Ride This Train," "Johnny Cash Sings the Ballads of the True West," and his collection of Indian ballads were all researched, written, and recorded while indulging in severe drug abuse.

I worked a country-music show with Johnny at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium in 1966. He and Vivian had been separated for some months, and he had been living in Nashville. He looked bad. His clothes just hung on him, and he was terribly nervous. But none of this interfered with his performance. He was brilliant that night.

During the next year I spoke with Cash a couple of times on the phone but did not see him again until November, 1967. I was scheduled to introduce him from the stage of the Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium. As I entered Cash's dressing room at the Shrine, I saw a new man. He had put on some weight. He was sitting quietly, talking with June Carter. As I entered the dressing room, Johnny stood and extended his hand warmly. We chatted for a moment, then I asked him about the pills. "I'm off of 'em!" Cash said quietly, "Can't you tell?" Yes, I could.

After the show was over, I was with him in his dressing room, and he said, "Hugh, I gonna' go to Folsom Prison and record an album, and I would like for you to come along and MC the show for me. Do you wanna' go?" I didn't have to be asked twice.

The experience at Folsom is one I shall never forget. I had worked shows at prisons in Tennessee, but none had the forbidding reputation of Folsom.

The Cash party—musicians, engineers, newspapermen—were escorted behind the walls by several guards. Armed with shotguns, they paced the catwalks above the mess hall. The stage was a make-shift construction at one end of the long room. The mess-hall kitchen was used as the performers' dressing room.

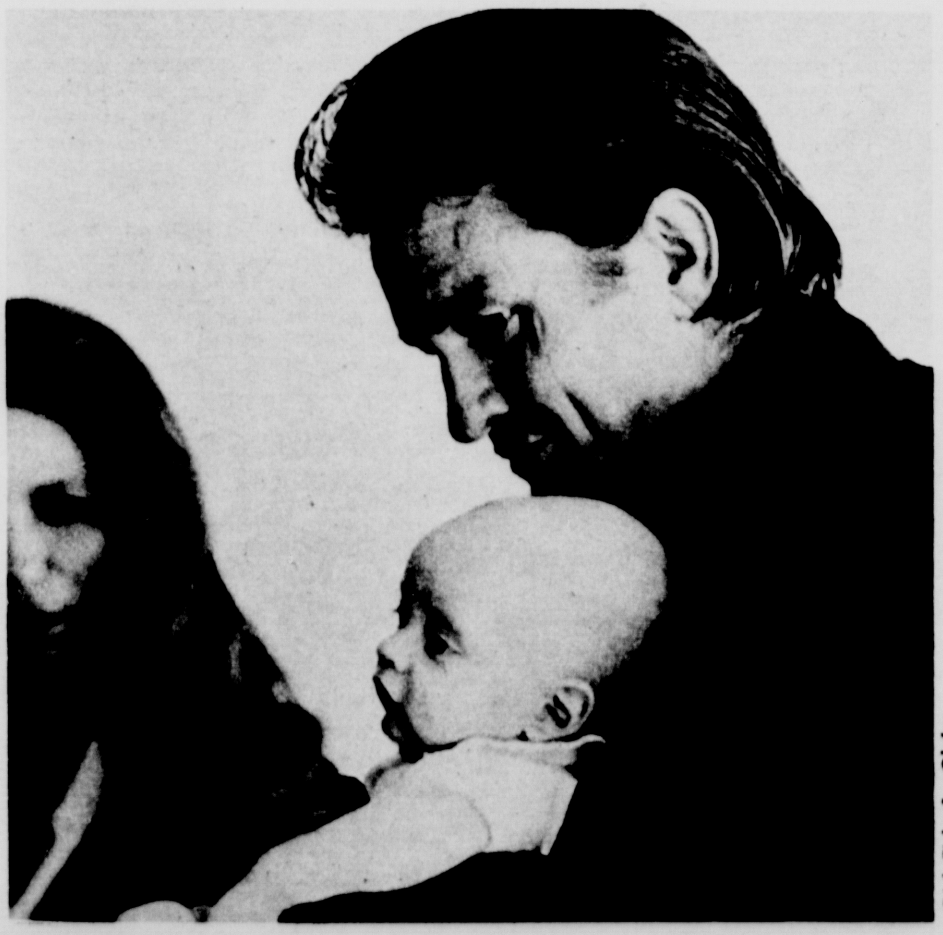

As Cash mounted the stage, he looked over his shoulder and spoke to his recording director. Cash said, "Bob, is there anything in particular that you want me to say to them to open the recording?" The director just shrugged, indicating that, from that moment on, it was Johnny's show all the way.

At that tense moment the now-familiar greeting—"Hello, I'm Johnny Cash"—was born.

Johnny Cash's purpose in life is to make a statement—whether it's about the plight of the Indians, prisons, railroads, or just being lonesome—and his past experience helps to get the statement across. And while that past is fraught with dark depressions, his future couldn't be brighter.

The Cashes are the proud parents of a baby boy—John Carter—born in March. Johnny appears in the film, "The Gunfighter," with Kirk Douglas, made during the summer before he returned home to Hendersonville, Tenn., near Nashville. A new tv season gets under way soon, and Johnny will once again be in his element—the musical spotlight, making his personal statements. ◆ now enjoy smokeless "outdoor" barbecue indoors or on patio ...in all weather! ...12 months a year!

New! Self-Clean Infra-Red

The reason most of us drool even thinking about an outdoor-broiled steak, hamburger, or even a lowly hot dog, is that crispy, crusty brown exterior — that juicy, succulent pink interior — impossible to duplicate on any indoor broiler. Until now!

Now wondrous new Electric Hibachi does the impossible, creates luscious, mouth-watering gourmet steaks, chops, chicken, seafood, hot snacks, that even the most avid barbecue-fan finds impossible to tell from outdoor-broiled. The secret — new, safety sheathed, UL—listed infra—red heating element. 1500 watts of broilpower! Inch for inch, there's never been a broiler this hot, this fast! Sears meat instantly, makes it impossible for juices and flavors to escape, broils away more fats and greases! Does it all without smoke, without steam, without spatter or splatter.

So clean, so attractive, you'll barbecue right on your dining room table (raised, heat-resistant legs protect table tops or linens). Quality made for lifetime service of heavy-gauge anodized aluminum. Bonded with triple-strength steel, plated in gleaming gold! King-size 13" x 9" x 7" broils 2 steaks, 4 chops, 6 burgers, 8 franks, shishkabob for 6. Plugs in anywhere. Full-year guarantee. ONLY $17.98.
